MISS PERKINS ASKS CONTROL OF PRODUCTION

Seeks Amendment Of Black's 30-Hour Bill.

HELD BACKED BY PRESIDENT

New Board Planned to Expand or Curtail Industry.

By ROBERT C. ALBRIGHT.

A far-flung plan for controlled production has been laid before the House Labor Committee by Secretary of Labor Perkins.

Offered as an amendment to the Black 30-hour-week bill, the proposal would set up a new Federal board to expand or curtail industrial output as urgencies arise.

The board, one of two that would be established to administer provisions of the bill, would be apart from any existing Federal agency. The Secretary of Labor would sit with the body.

Amendments Guarded.

While Chairman William P. Connery, jr., of the House Labor Committee, carefully guarded amendments presented by Miss Perkins, these facts were gleaned from authoritative sources.

The Perkins amendments, embracing minimum wage features and a more flexible provision governing hours of work, are reputed to have administration support.

Meanwhile a meeting of the Labor Committee was called for 10 o'clock tomorrow morning to consider the bill, immediately following the Senate's refusal yesterday to reconsider the 30-hour-week measure. By a vote of 52 to 31, the chamber reaffirmed its former approval of the bill.

Sent back to the House, it was referred to the Labor Committee. The course mapped by Chairman Connery calls for appointment of a subcommittee to study the administration proposals and report back to the full committee early next week.

Creates Two New Boards.

As it passed the Senate, foreign products would be exempt from the provisions of the measure. Chairman Connery favors subjecting them to the same conditions as domestic products. If this is not done, he holds foreign goods, produced by cheap labor working long hours, will flood domestic markets. He said he will fight enactment of the bill unless this change is made.

Under confidential amendments submitted by Secretary of Labor Perkins, some of the details of which

Surprise Money Hoard Found—in Closed Bank

Reno, April 17 (A.P.).—It was only recently that F. E. McCafferty learned he had some money in the bank. Deposited in 1910 by his wife, who died nine years later, the amount has grown through accumulation of interest to $2,548.55.

But here's the rub. McCafferty didn't find it out until the bank was closed. Now he's wondering how much of it he will be able to get.

House Revolt

Nebraskan Calls for Rump Caucus to Fight "Gag" Rules Planned.

(Associated Press.)

An outright revolt against the Democratic House leadership was instigated yesterday in a call for a rump caucus of party members "who do not want to be gagged" by the chieftains' plan to tighten House rules as a move to prevent the consideration of legislation not on the President's program.

Circular letters were sent to the Democrats by Representative Carpenter (Democrat), Nebraska, calling a meeting for this morning to lay plans for resisting the leaders' proposal to increase from 145 to 218 the number of petitioners necessary to force bills out of committees for a House vote.

"This meeting is called for members in sympathy with the rule being kept at 145 signatures instead of 218," Carpenter's letter said.

FIVE-YEAR SABOTAGE PLAN CHARGED TO SIX

10-Year Sentences Seen for Two Britons and Death for Two Russians.

Moscow, April 17 (A.P.).—A "5-year plan of sabotage" by six British electrical engineers on trial for bribery, sabotage and espionage, was charged tonight by the counsel for three of their Russian codefendants.

The accusation was made at the beginning of the defense summations shortly after Prosecutor Andrey Vishinsky asked that charges against Albert W. Gregory be dismissed but that the five other British employes of the Mertopolitan-Vickers Electrical Co. be convicted as "spies, saboteurs and bribers."

Speculation regarding the possible verdicts included 10-year sentences for two of the Britons, a possible 3-year sentence for one of them and death sentences for two of the Russians. It was speculated also that the other nine Russians would be given various prison terms and that two Britons would probably be released and bound over.

The session tonight was devoted to pleas by four defense attorneys, all of whom are acting on behalf of the prisoners who had pleaded guilty and whose activities therefore were confined to the most perfunctory sort of defense.

A. A. Smirnov, counsel for William L. MacDonald, was the first to plead for any of the Britons. He emphasized that his client had been crippled since childhood.

"Otherwise his legs might have brought him to a proletarian environment," Smirnov declared.

Saying that MacDonald lacked a college education and normal associations with other youths, his client

Ruth Judd Plea To Go to Roosevelt

Ruth Snyder's Champion to Seek President's Mercy Today.

New York, April 17 (A.P.).—Ernest Whitehouse Cortis, of East Orange, N. J., who interested himself years ago in futile efforts to save the life of Ruth Snyder, convicted sash-weight murderess of her husband, announced today that he would leave for Washington tomorrow to make a "prayerful petition" to President Roosevelt for Winnie Ruth Judd, convicted trunk murderess.

At the time of the Snyder case, Mr. Cortis formed the "Men's League of Mercy," of which David Belasco accepted the presidency, and which had as its purpose agitation against the execution of women. He said today he was reviving the "idea of the league" in connection with the Judd case.

He said he would petition the President that the men of the country "may be spared the awful consciousness of having hanged a woman in this year of our Lord 1933."

D. A. R. STANDS, PLEDGING HELP FOR PRESIDENT

Vital Conference Forces Him to Cancel His Appearance.

MRS. MAGNA VOICES CONGRESS' LOYALTY

Delegates Present Banner to Cathedral; Legalization of Beer Denounced.

By ELISABETH E. POE.

A last-minute call for a White House conference on important matters of state prevented President Roosevelt from attending the formal opening of the Forty-second Continental Congress of the Daughters of the American Revolution in Constitution Hall last night.

It had been announced earlier in the day that President Roosevelt would be present last night and make a brief address and the thousands of delegates were awaiting his appearance with the keenest of anticipation.

Disappointment was apparent when the president general, Mrs. Russell William Magna, after the invocation had been offered by the Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington, requested the audience to rise while she read a letter from the President.

White House Regrets.

The text of the letter follows:

"My dear Mrs. Magna:

"It is with very genuine regret that I find it impossible to be with you tonight. Up until 6 o'clock this evening I had planned to come, but an important conference at the White House tonight makes it impossible for me to do so.

"Will you convey to all the delegates a greeting from me and express to them my deep appreciation of the loyal and patriotic service they are constantly rendering. Particularly in a time like this the country needs the fine ideals, the loyalty to our national institutions and the willingness to serve which your organization always manifests.

"Again expressing my regret that I can not be with you,

"Sincerely yours,

"FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT."

Tribute to President.

Before reading the letter, Mrs. Magna asked the delegates and guests to stand. When she had finished reading the letter she said:

"I have asked you to stand at this particular time that we may in unison express our regret that the President can not be with us tonight, but as we all gather together in the National Capital I know that you stand with me in paying tribute to the President of the United States and in pledging our loyal support to him as he transacts the business of the Nation.

"With a complete understanding of the situation we can make no finer gesture in these critical times than to accept his regret gracefully and loy-

3 Escape With $4,000, Locking Two in Vault

Havana, N. Dak., April 17 (A.P.).—Three men escaped with $4,000 in cash and an equal amount in securities from the Havana State Bank today after locking two employes in the vault. G. A. Kiefstad, cashier, and Helen Kriesler, assistant cashier, freed themselves within a few minutes.

The bandits, heading west in a car, outdistanced their lone pursuer, Chris Weber, a merchant, who entered the bank just as the bandits left.

U. S. Investigates Politician's Income

Grand Jury to Study Tax Return of Rosenberg, Chicago Leader.

Chicago, April 17 (A.P.).—United States District Attorney Dwight Green announced today that the Federal grand jury tomorrow will begin an investigation of the 1929 and 1930 income tax returns of Moe Rosenberg, West Side Democratic leader and powerful figure in Illinois Democracy.

Twelve witnesses have been summoned, Green said. Their names and connections were not revealed, though some were said to be bank employes.

Rosenberg, who is a ward committeeman, is unofficially credited with being the "boss" of Chicago Democracy. He was close to the late Mayor Anton J. Cermak and is a political ally of Gov. Henry Horner.

6-Mile Swim Swine Epic

Sextet of Arkansan's Porkers Hog-Paddle Far Across Landscape When Finally Aroused by Impudently Rising River; Then They Nap.

Marianna, Ark., April 17 (A.P.).—The 6-mile swim of Garland Sutton's six hogs was something to talk about here today.

They wouldn't leave for Marianna when Sutton temporarily abandoned his home in the face of backwater from the overburdened Mississippi River. Sutton says they hid from him.

Over the week-end, however, the waters kept rising, and the realization apparently dawned that it was "root hog, or die," or rather "swim hog, or die."

They started on their watery way to Marianna and higher ground. Three miles out, they stopped to rest on the water-surrounded front porch of a home.

On again, they went to a little cabin about a mile from Marianna to tarry a while on a chicken roost.

They landed Sunday, just north of Marianna, at different points but within 200 yards of each other.

Sutton found them fast asleep.

ARMS EMBARGO BILL IS PASSED BY HOUSE

Victory Is Forecast for Plan After Decisive Defeat of Republicans.

(Associated Press.)

Congressional approval of the administration's proposal that President Roosevelt be empowered to clap embargoes on arms shipments to countries in conflict appeared certain yesterday after overwhelming House adoption.

Beating down stubborn opposition led by Republicans, the powerful Democratic majority sent the legislation through the House 252 to 109 and, to the Senate, where it is supported by most of the Democrats.

A similar proposal, requested by former President Hoover, was adopted by the Senate in the last Congress but it died in the session-end legislation jam after former Senator Bingham (Republican), Connecticut, moved for its reconsideration. Despite some indicated Senate opposition, Democratic leaders are confident the measure will be approved.

The House vote broke party lines. Twenty-two Democrats joined 83 Republicans and four Farmer-Laborites in opposition, while nine Republicans and one Farmer-Laborite—Kvale, of Minnesota—voted with 242 Democrats for adoption.

A final effort to modify the measure, drawn as requested by Secretary Hull, was made by Representative Fish, of New York, ranking Republican on the Foreign Affairs Committee. His motion to send the resolution back to the committee for insertion of an amendment to "protect the neutrality of the United States" was defeated on a roll call vote of 247 to 113.

In two days of bitter debate concluded Friday, Fish and Tinkham

18,000 ARMY SLASH BEFORE ROOSEVELT

Dern and Douglas Expecting Executive Order Will Effect Economy.

By LAWRENCE SULLIVAN.

Plans to reduce the Army by 15,000 enlisted men and from 3,000 to 4,000 officers were placed before President Roosevelt last night. Budget Director Douglas and Secretary of War Dern, who examined the sweeping Army economy program with the President yesterday, expected last night an executive order promulgating the new military budget probably would be issued at the White House today or tomorrow.

Total reductions of $144,000,000 in the Army budget for the fiscal year 1934 are itemized in the plan now before the President. About $90,000,000 of this sum is to come from purely military functions and the balance of $54,000,000 from postponement of river and harbor works, part of which, however, may be transferred later to a separate budget for public works.

A few hours after the President had conferred with Secretary Dern and Director Douglas on the Army savings, Postmaster General James A. Farley outlined over a Nation-wide radio chain last night his plan to clip another $40,000,000 from the postoffice budget.

This saving, added to the approximately $30,000,000 already authorized in salary cuts, would reduce the postoffice outlay for 1934 by approximately $72,000,000 under the appro-

Loot From Chase Bank Recovered in Arizona

Tucson, Ariz., April 17 (A.P.).—Chief of Police Jack E. Dyer said tonight Tucson police have recovered $63,000 worth of negotiable securities stolen from the Chase National Bank of New York in a daring robbery about 18 months ago and have arrested one man they believe was implicated in the robbery.

Chief Dyer said the suspect held was Danbridge H. Bibbs, alias R. R. McMullen. Sewed into Bibbs' trousers, the police chief said, were $63,000 in bonds, listed as part of the loot obtained in the New York bank robbery in which two police officers were killed.

Missouri Guard Unit Called to Patrol Levee

Jefferson City, Mo., April 17 (A.P.).—Company F of the 140th Infantry, Missouri National Guard at Kennett, was called out by Gov. Guy B. Park today to patrol levees in southeast Missouri. The request for the patrol came from New Madrid County authorities, who said they feared efforts would be made to break the St. Francis River dikes.

Capt. Charles E. E. Fowler is in charge of the company.

Capone Gangsters Helping Factor's Search Arrested

Seizure in Chicago Hotel of Six Studying Rogue's Gallery Photos of Suspects Believed to Show They Have "Lead."

Chicago, April 17 (A.P.).—Possibility that members of the Capone gang, assisting in the search for kidnaped Jerome Factor, had obtained a "lead" was indicated here tonight as police apprehended six of them inspecting "Rogues' Gallery" photographs of three men suspected of membership in a northern Illinois-Iowa extortion ring.

Police raided a Loop hotel room and found the sextet studying pictures of Ted Patterson, 28, Archie Brown, 26, both of Chicago, and Joseph Varcelona.

Patterson was arrested here last February by State police on a charge of kidnaping. Varcelona today was arraigned at Peoria, Ill., on a similar charge and pleaded not guilty. Brown and Patterson each are at liberty on bond pending trial for bank robbery in Sangamon County.

State Policeman Hal Roberts, of Dixon, one of the officers who has been investigating the ring, when informed of the finding of the pictures, said, "It appears likely that the Capone gang suspects one or more of the three of knowing something of the Factor case."

Police Lieut. William Blaul and a squad of police went to a room in the Congress Hotel late this afternoon and took to detective headquarters six men, all identified at various times as Capone gangsters. They were Sam Hunt, Louis Kramer, Tony Accardo, Edward Gerda, Louis Romano and Michael Spranza.

During the raid a man telephoned

WHITE HOUSE WORD IS BLOW TO INFLATION

16-TO-1 ADVOCATES MAP SEPARATE FIGHT

Wheeler Demands Expansion Before World Conference on Commerce.

(Associated Press.)

A soft-spoken word from the White House yesterday crushed in defeat Senate advocates of monetary inflation as a means of aiding the farmer.

Their proposal to add remonetization of silver to President Roosevelt's far-reaching agricultural relief bill was defeated, 43 to 33.

Amid Bryanesque echoes of the turbulent '96 campaign, the Senate resounded all afternoon to a cry for free coinage of the white metal at 16 to 1 with gold, sponsored by Senator Wheeler (Democrat), Montana, and urged by others.

Borah Falls in Line.

The Chief Executive's opposition to making currency inflation part of the farm program was considered by many senators the decisive factor in defeating the silver amendment. Opponents were amazed by the strength shown for it and said several who favored inflation voted against it only because Mr. Roosevelt did not want it added to the agriculture bill.

A moment before the vote Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, the Democratic leader and only opponent to speak, informed Senator Borah (Republican), of Idaho, "The President does not desire" the amendment. Borah had said he would vote against it if the President disapproved.

Undaunted by Setback.

The Idahoan had been insisting that only through expansion of the currency could commodity prices be lifted, the depression conquered and the farmers' income restored. He contended farm relief and inflation went hand in hand.

Undaunted by this setback, but cheered by the gain from last January, when his silver plan was defeated, 56 to 18, Wheeler announced off the floor he would press it separately later on. Meanwhile Thomas (Democrat), Oklahoma, brought formally before the Senate another inflation plan.

Thomas' proposal would give President Roosevelt broad power to expand the currency, remonetize silver

British Ask Guard On Mines in China

Fear Shafts May Suffer in Fighting to South of Great Wall.

Peiping, April 17 (A.P.).—Fearing that British mines in the area south of the Great Wall of China might be crippled as the result of hostilities there between armies of Manchukuo and the Chinese, the British legation today renewed its efforts to obtain protection for the mines.

Representations were made to Japanese officials, who were asked to safeguard the Kailan mining administration at Tangshan. These mines were organized by Herbert Hoover in 1900 and the enterprise employs 40,000 Chinese.

The Kailan development is midway between Tientsin and Chinwangtao, in the region where troops of Japan and Manchukuo have been pushing back the Chinese armies.

ORDER TO FLEE IN CHINA GIVEN TO AMERICANS

Fewer Mails

Farley Would Cut Cities' Deliveries and Abolish Those in Villages.

Elimination of mail delivery in small towns, curtailment of city delivery and a shorter week for postal employes are being considered in an effort to save $125,000,000 from the Postoffice Department budget, Postmaster General Farley said last night in a radio address.

Even without these economies, the postoffice deficit for the fiscal year 1933 will be less than half what it was in 1932, Mr. Farley said. The 1932 deficit was $153,000,000, while in 1933 it is not expected to be more than $72,000,000.

Two measures, with a total saving of about $50,000,000, have already been decided on. The new reduction in salaries will save about $30,000,000 a year. Another $20,000,000 can be saved through reducing rent paid for

CIVIL SERVICE POST WILL GO TO ADDAMS

Dallman Is Favored for Treasury Job; Helvering Succeeds Burnet.

Charles Edward Addams, of Phoenix, Ariz., is to become president of the Civil Service Commission, succeeding Thomas E. Campbell, also of Arizona, it was learned last night.

Vincent Dallman, of Springfield, Ill., is the favorite candidate for the post of Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, while Harry Mitchell, of Great Falls, Mont., is likely to be Assistant Secretary of the Interior, it was learned yesterday in an authoritative quarter.

It was also learned that Edward P. McGrady, legislative representative of the American Federation of Labor, is slated for a post in the Department of Labor. He may be named as Assistant Secretary, but this has not been definitely decided upon. His appointment is significant as showing a healing of the breach created between the administration and the federation by the appointment of Miss Frances Perkins as Secretary of Labor.

No definite choice of an Ambassador to Cuba has been made, although John Cudahy, Milwaukee real estate man, has as good a chance as any of the aspirants. Francis White is also being mentioned for this post.

Noted Ecclesiastic Vanishes on Liner

Canon Monroe, of London, Believed Suicide on Berengaria.

Aboard S. S. Berengaria, en route to New York, April 17 (U.P.).—Canon Horace Granville Monroe, prominent South London ecclesiastic, has been missing from his cabin on board this liner since early morning. The general opinion aboard is that he is drowned.

Canon Monroe was on his way to visit relatives in Newfoundland. He recently was ordered by a physician to take a long rest, having been ill for months. He had grieved deeply at the death of his wife last December.

The Canon, since 1930, had been subdean of Southwark Cathedral. He was known as an eloquent preacher and a capable administrator. He was 61 years old.

Canon Monroe's cabin was reported empty by the steward when he went to rouse him this morning. The steward reported that the porthole was wide open, and it was assumed the canon drowned during the night.

Drive by Japanese Perils Tientsin And Peiping.

BOMBS CRASH NEAR MISSION

4,000 Slain and 70,000 Wounded Suffered By Defenders.

Peiping, April 17 (U.P.).—Americans prepared to evacuate their posts in north China tonight as the Japanese offensive below the Great Wall threatened to sweep on to Peiping and Tientsin.

The United States Minister, Nelson T. Johnson, notified his consul general to Tientsin, Frank Lockhart, a veteran in the China service, that he would be held responsible for the safeguarding of United States citizens in the war zone.

Plane Drops Bombs.

The minister empowered Lockhart to advise American nationals to evacuate outposts between Tientsin and the Wall, where considerable United States mission property is located. Consular and diplomatic authorities have no power to force Americans to evacuate, but ordinarily in emergencies such as this their "advice" is sufficient.

The station master at Changli, where American Methodist mission property is located, including a hospital and school, informed his superiors that Japanese planes had dropped five bombs near the mission buildings.

Bomber Is Reported Shot Down.

The telegram from Changli was supported by an official Chinese military communique declaring that a Japanese plane had dropped 30 bombs at Shihhsi, 50 miles north of Peiping, killing the leader and ten workers in the Red Swastika (Cross) Association's relief unit there.

The communique claimed the Chinese shot down the Japanese air raider, but not before he had done wide damage.

18,000 ARMY SLASH PLAN IS ADVOCATED

priation authorized in the last session of Congress.

In discussing his budget plans, Postmaster General Farley told his radio audience he intended to establish the department firmly on a pay-as-you-go basis.

"We have got to get back to business principles," he said. "The postoffice should run along on what the people actually pay for mail services—and that without making the rates so high that they can not afford to give our branch plenty of trade."

Although it is expected that the Army curtailment plan also will involve the gradual elimination of a number of Army posts, Secretary Dern declined after his conference with the President to say how the selection might be made.

Rivers and Harbors Cut.

The rivers and harbors projects to be stricken from the 1934 schedule will be selected by the Army engineers. Congress is to have no voice in these matters. Later, it is expected, when a department of public works is established under the plan to reorganize the entire Federal establishment, many of the rivers and harbors projects postponed under the Army budget will be carried forward in the new department. In a sense, therefore, this paper saving of $54,000,000 in the Army represents a mere transfer of appropriations from one department to another.

A third sweeping economy plan still awaiting the formal approval of the President is that touching the Department of Commerce. This plan, which is intended to save some $10,000,000 over and above the pay cut for 1934, was presented at the White House by Secretary Roper last week.

If all the plans now before the President are fully realized the total budget savings enacted or ordered since March 4 will aggregate $740,000,000, as follows:

Pay cut	$120,000,000
Veterans	440,000,000
Postoffice	40,000,000
Army	144,000,000
Total	$744,000,000

Increase in Borrowings.

As offsets to this total, however, there is an item of about $50,000,000 representing the increase in interest on Federal borrowings during 1934, due in part to larger needs for credit and in part to generally higher interest rates.

Other offsets against the budget cuts will arise from the operating costs of the civilian conservation army and from the expanded farm administration machinery contemplated in the commodity bill and the mortgage relief program.

After deducting these estimated increases of $50,000,000 from the savings already realized, the net budget reductions thus far tabulated aggregate slightly more than $600,000,000. Of this paper reduction, however, the Army and Postoffice economies totaling $184,000,000, have not yet been officially ordered.

On this basis, actual savings in sight to date aggregate $442,000,000, or a little less than the total veteran cuts authorized in the economy bill.

Berry E. Clark's Third Trial to Begin May 15

Berry E. Clark, former clerk of the county commissioners of Montgomery County, will go on trial the third time on a charge of embezzling county funds on May 15 in the Circuit Court at Rockville, Md. The date of the trial was announced yesterday by Chief Judge Hammond Urner of the Sixth judicial circuit of Maryland, who, with Associate Judge Arthur D. Willard, will preside at the trial.

Clark was first tried last spring and again in January of this year. On both occasions the jury failed to agree. There are 97 separate embezzlement counts pending against Clark. The specific count on which he is to be tried has not been announced by State's Attorney Stedman Prescott.

Student Involved In Hitler "Plot"

Wearer of Nazi Uniform Is Seized Before Visit of Chancelor.

Berchtesgarden, Germany, April 17 (A.P.).—Criminal police today arrested Paul Orlowsky, a medical student who was wearing a Nazi uniform, as he loitered near the Platterhof a few minutes before Chancellor Adolf Hitler was scheduled to visit the neighborhood.

Police said they were suspicious that a plot was being hatched on the chancellor's life because of Orlowsky's recent actions in the vicinity of Hitler's Bavarian mountain retreat.

COL. WILLIAMS HELD SUICIDE BY CORONER

But Walter Reed Plans to Probe Plunge of 62-Year-Old Officer.

Lieut. Col. Charles R. Williams, U. S. A., of 1661 Crescent place northwest, formerly on duty in the office of the judge advocate general here, was instantly killed yesterday afternoon when he either jumped or fell from a third-floor porch at Walter Reed Hospital. He was 62 years old.

A certificate of suicide was issued by Acting Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald. At the Medical Center a special board was called to study circumstances surrounding the officer's death, but no announcement had been made by them up to a late hour last night.

The officer had been at the Army Medical Center for about three weeks undergoing treatment for a heart ailment. Yesterday he took an examination to determine his fitness for duty. It was found that he had improved and that he was ready to return to his duties in the War Department.

Following the examination he walked to the sun porch on the third floor of the hospital building. Shortly afterward his body was found on the pavement below. No witnesses to the fall or plunge could be found.

Army officials and friends of the dead officer last night were unable to shed any light on Col. Williams' death. In the near future he was to be examined again to determine whether he was to be placed on the retired list of the Army one year in advance of compulsory retirement.

Col. Williams was born in Columbus, Ga., July 21, 1870. He was appointed major in the judge advocate general's section of the Officers Reserve Corps, July 8, 1918, and was placed on active duty later that month.

He was honorably discharged from the Army September 23, 1919, and was appointed a major in the judge advocate general's department of the regular Army July 1, 1920. He was promoted to the rank of lieutenant colonel November 1, 1932. In addition, he was a member of the General Staff Corps from October 1, 1924, to June 30, 1928, and at the time of his death was assigned to duty in the judge advocate general's office.

Col. Williams is survived by his wife, also of Crescent place northwest.

Delay Given Mitchell In Income Tax Case

New York, April 17 (A.P.).—The case of Charles E. Mitchell, former chairman of the National City Bank, indicted on charges of evading the Federal income tax laws for the years 1929 and 1930, was put over until next Monday when called for trial today in Federal court.

United States Attorney George Z. Medalie announced that the case had been put over by agreement.

Iowa Farmers Threaten Shots to Stop Eviction

Le Mars, Iowa, April 17 (A.P.).—Several hundred farmers gathered at the Edward Durband farm today and threatened to "shoot it out" with Sheriff F. E. Rippey if he attempted to carry out an eviction order.

Sheriff Rippey did not appear at the Durband farm during the afternoon. The farmers got a report that he likely would defer the eviction, but they hung around several hours.

MISS PERKINS ASKS CONTROL OF OUTPUT

came to light yesterday, two separate Federal boards would be created to carry out provisions of the act.

In addition to the agency set up for control of industrial production, a second body would be established to determine hours of labor under one of the so-called flexible provisions. This board, it was said, would have authority to exempt industries from the 30-hour work limitation, or, if need be, modify the limitation.

The amendments were said to propose several flexible features, extending to the proposed minimum or reasonable wage law. They were reported to embrace an arrangement for arbitrating wage disputes and adjusting wage requirements in different localities.

Market Flood Preventive.

Although the detailed set-up of the proposed new agencies and the full scope of their operation could not be determined, it was said they would operate independently to eliminate unfair competition growing out of hours of work or varying wage levels.

The principal function of the production control board would be to forestall flooding of the market by unfair production methods. Restrictions on output would be the weapon used.

President William Green, of the American Federation of Labor, and Secretary of Labor Perkins probably will be called to testify before the House Labor subcommittee that will be named to study the measure.

Robinson Forces Vote.

Yesterday's Senate vote on the motion to reconsider the former Senate approval of the bill was adroitly forced by Senate Democratic Leader Joseph T. Robinson, who promised to move to table the motion if action was not taken.

Senator Trammell (Democrat), Florida, who moved for reconsideration, wanted to subject foreign products to the same conditions imposed on domestic goods by the bill. Senator Vandenberg (Republican), Michigan, and Senator Hatfield (Republican), West Virginia, led the fight for his motion. They contended it would be unfair for foreign goods, produced by labor working as high as 60 hours a week, to be placed in unrestricted competition with American goods turned out by 30-hour-week labor.

This foreign clause, espoused in the House by Connery, has been incorporated in a bill already reported out by the House Labor Committee.

or reduce the gold content of the dollar.

Debate on it will open at 11 a. m. today, the Senate meeting an hour earlier than usual in an effort to speed the administration farm price lifting and mortgage relief bill through by Wednesday night.

Seven Republican Votes.

Seven Republicans, and Shipstead, the Farmer-Labor member from Minnesota, joined 25 Democrats in voting for Wheeler's proposal, while 20 Republicans and 23 Democrats voted it down, despite the impassioned pleas of Wheeler, Borah and Long (Democrat), Louisiana.

"Uncontrolled inflation would be an evil equal to that of deflation," Borah warned his colleagues, "but that does not, in my opinion, argue against a reasonable and controlled inflation.

"I am prepared to vote for any measure, whether in its details it satisfies me, whether in its details it is wise, which indorses the principle of inflation."

Wheeler, asserting that countries with depreciated currencies were ruining American markets, contended his amendment would double commodity prices in a year and linked with his argument the coming economic conference and an attack upon Great Britain in that connection.

Advantage Laid to England.

His statement came after Senator Connally (Democrat), of Texas, had suggested that the silver advocates hold up their campaign pending the outcome of the conference, since silver is on its agenda.

"I make the prediction that nothing will come out of the international conference," retorted Wheeler, shouting:

"I don't believe England will agree to remonetize silver. They have the advantage over us and want to keep it. They want to keep us on the gold standard. The only thing England is interested in is cutting down the debt she owes America. She's not going to permit the American dollar to be cheapened unless we cut those debts."

Connally replied that he did not think Wheeler was helping the conference's chances for success "by denouncing one of the most powerful countries that will participate, adding as an answer to the Montanan:

"I haven't jumped through the hoop of Wall street at any time, or Great Britain, either."

Rainey Favors Expansion.

Connally referred to a declaration by Wheeler that Wall street told the Senate what to do about the monetary system and members "sat supinely by to jump through the hoop."

Remonetization of silver as the preferable method of expanding the currency was advocated earlier by Speaker Rainey at a press conference.

"There is strong sentiment throughout the country for some inflation," the Illinois Democrat said. "Sentiment is rapidly crystalizing in the House for it. I personally favor it."

Rainey said he was an "irreconcilable Bryan 16-to-1 man" and preferred expansion through silver. He added, however:

"The trouble about it is, that the silver advocates can't agree on any one plan. Apparently they can't get together.

"I favor anything the silver advocates can agree on. I think the United States can go ahead on a plan to remonetize silver without an agreement with England and France. But it will be better if we can get concurrency with those countries."

His Personal Views.

The Speaker made it clear that he was giving his personal views. He explained he had not discussed silver with President Roosevelt and that he was unaware of the administration's attitude.

Long, whose proposal to buy $100,000,000 in silver, was replaced by Wheeler's amendment, late yesterday, off the floor hailed the vote as a victory, because it showed greater strength than in the last inflation test.

Borah, former chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, in commending the International Economic Conference, asserted:

"If there is any one enterprise in which the whole United States is interested and to which it should give its support it is the National Economic Conference.

"Without a solution of the currency and disarmament problems the United States must readjust its entire economic policy, because with the race in the fall of currencies there is no bottom except the abyss.

"I am talking about a permanent return of normal prosperity. Without an adjustment of these international problems, I can not see any return of normal prosperity.

"If these problems can not be adjusted by international agreement we will have to adjust ourselves. The sound, safe way to deal with the money question is through international agreement. I doubt if the United States alone can do much with silver, but if the President can stabilize silver through international agreement it will be definitely better for the people of the United States."

WAR DEBTS ACCORD HELD KEY TO PEACE

Speedy Settlement for Any Amount Is Urged by Catholic Speaker.

A settlement of war debts immediately for any amount which the debtor nations would agree to pay, however small, was advocated last night by Dr. John A. Ryan, of Catholic University, in speaking at the international dinner of the seventh annual conference of the Catholic Association for International Peace at the Mayflower Hotel.

Dr. Ryan's plan for the removal of the war-debt sore which threatens world peace went even further. He declared that the United States should make the settlement and sell the obligations to private persons, thus washing its hands of the debts.

No longer, he said, have the debtor nations a moral obligation to pay, because to pay would mean their collapse even if it was possible. It is impossible that they pay in gold, he said, and this Nation will not accept the payment of the debts in goods.

War Danger Spots.

Despite war danger spots throughout the world threatening to flame at any time, Parker T. Moon, president of the association, saw hopes for furthering the cause of international peace in the attitude of the Roosevelt administration toward tariffs and other economic problems.

He declared that there were threats of a world war in the policies of Hitler and in the Manchurian situation. The Kellogg Pact, he said, keeps nations from declaring war but not from fighting.

The Most Rev. John M. McNamara, auxiliary bishop of Baltimore, declared that if the "Catholics of the world would unite a desire for peace would sweep the world."

Doyle Is Dinner Chairman.

Michael Francis Doyle, international lawyer, was chairman at the dinner, which was sponsored by Archbishop Michael J. Curley, of Baltimore; Postmaster General and Mrs. James A. Farley, Representative Mary T. Norton and many others.

Discussions at afternoon sessions included the report on the committee of international law and organization which was presented by Dr. Charles G. Fenwick, of Bryn Mawr College. In another report Dr. Edgar Schmiedeler, of the National Catholic Welfare Conference, blamed the present political and social disorders of the world on modern cities, captains of industry and monarchs of finance.

The conference will close today with morning sessions at the Music Hall at Catholic University, a luncheon at the university and afternoon sessions which will include the election of officers.

ARMS EMBARGO BILL IS PASSED BY HOUSE

(Republican), Massachusetts, charged the measure would carry the United States into the League of Nations "through the back door" and that it was "aimed at Japan."

Chairman McReynolds, of the Foreign Affairs Committee, declared that it was not "aimed at any country," and that the administration felt "it will be a great advancement toward the establishment of peace whether used or not used."

The Tennessee Democrat forced the roll call vote on the adoption of the resolution. The 22 Democrats who voted against it were:

Cannon of Wisconsin, Church, Claiborne, Condon, Connery, Dockweiler, Duffy, Granfield, Healey, Hoeppel, Kelly of Illinois, Lehr, Maloney of Connecticut, Marland, Martin of Oregon, Moynihan, Murdock, O'Malley, Pettengill, Secrest, Taylor of South Carolina and Young.

The nine Republicans who voted for it are:

Andrew of Massachusetts, Frear, Gilchrist, Luce, Peavey, Reed of New York, Rich, Strong of Pennsylvania and Wolverton.

The resolution provides:

"That whenever the President finds that in any part of the world conditions exist that the shipment of arms or munitions of war from countries which produce these commodities may promote or encourage the employment of force in the course of a dispute or conflict between nations, and, after securing the cooperation of such governments as the President deems necessary, he makes proclamation thereof, it shall be unlawful to export, or sell for export, except under such limitations and exceptions as the President prescribes, any arms or munitions of war from any place in the United States to such country or countries as he may designate, until otherwise ordered by the President or by Congress."

A penalty of a $10,000 fine or two years' imprisonment, or both, is imposed.

AMERICANS PREPARE TO FLEE TWO CITIES

Japanese push southward, seizing a 250-mile triangle in the Chinwangtao area, foreign observers who went over the battlefields reported they found 70,000 Chinese wounded.

The Peiping authorities estimated 4,000 killed and 3,000 others so badly wounded that they were unable to be brought into the capital for hospital treatment.

The Chinese fell back to the south bank of the Luan River for a "last stand" in defense of Tientsin. The Japanese consolidated their positions at Chinwangtao, on the sea, and Peitaho, popular summer resort outside the port, setting up local self-governments.

U. S. Soldiers Menaced.

Lieut. Joseph G. Felber, a United States officer, stationed at Chinwangtao, reporting to Col. Walter S. Drysdale, United States military attache in Peiping, declared that prior to the Japanese occupation of that port, numerous bombs fell within 200 yards of the U. S. Fifteenth Infantry camp.

The Manchukou forces are holding the towns occupied, while the Japanese troops proceed with the advance.

They were reported proceeding down the railway toward Tientsin and Peiping. The ancient capital is about 90 miles inland from Tientsin. Their apparent objective was to break up the Chinese defenses at the Luan River, which might take them into Tientsin before the end of the week.

Refugees flocked into Peiping from the north with further reports of the fighting at Kupeikou and other passes in the Great Wall.

SCOTTSBORO TRIALS PUT OFF BY HORTON

Judge Says Defense Counsel Has Prejudiced Cases of Accused Youths.

Decatur, Ala., April 17 (A.P.).—The Scottsboro cases were postponed indefinitely today because the court held that a purported criticism of Alabama juries by Samuel L. Leibowitz, of defense counsel, had prejudiced the cases against his own clients.

Judge James E. Horton directed postponement of the remaining cases against seven Negroes charged with assaulting two white girl hoboes and rebuked Leibowitz.

A statement that appeared in the New York Herald-Tribune and credited to the New York attorney, who volunteered to defend the Negroes and lost his first case down here, was responsible for the unexpected action.

Concerning the jury that convicted Haywood Patterson—first of the Negroes to face retrial here—the New York paper quoted Leibowitz like this:

"If you ever saw those creatures, those bigots whose mouths are slits in their faces, whose eyes pop out at you like frogs, whose chins drip tobacco juice, bewhiskered and filthy, you would not ask how they could do it."

Judge Horton, who was praised by Leibowitz for his conduct of the Patterson trial, said he did not know "whether the leading counsel for the defense made the statement imputed to him. It could make little difference whether he actually said it or not. The effect would be the same. The published statement was uncalled for."

The court then ordered a continuance of the case against Charlie Weems, second of the Scottsboro boys to face a retrial—"until such time when in its judgement a fair and impartial trial may be had."

The dramatic climax to the long-drawn-out Scottsboro cases came after Judge Horton had sentenced Patterson to die in the electric chair June 16 for criminal assault on Mrs. Victoria Price, a Huntsville cotton mill worker and a hobo. The case of Charlie Weems was to have been called today.

Oh to Be a Youngster When Easter Monday—and Eggs—Rolls Around!

PRISONERS UNEASY AS JUDD CASE LAGS

Warden Concerned Over Situation; Family Asserts Slayer Insane.

Florence, Ariz., April 17 (A.P.).—The elderly parents and the husband of Winnie Ruth Judd, 28-year-old confessed slayer of two women, testified today that they believe she is insane, while reports seeped out of the State prison here that there is unrest among the convicts over the case.

Meantime, Mrs. Judd's counsel dispatched a formal request to the State pardon board that the date of her hanging be moved back from next Friday morning to assure completion of her sanity trial.

Another outburst of the blonde, slender woman threw the hearing into confusion late today. She was led screaming and fighting from the courtroom.

"Leave me alone!" the blonde young woman shrieked suddenly in the midst of arguments of counsel, her features contorted and her hair streaming over her face.

"Quit torturing me! You bullies! You cowards! You're gangsters! Quit torturing me."

The Rev. H. J. McKinnell, gray-haired retired minister from Darlington, Ind., and his 73-year-old wife both testified that their daughter has been "more or less insane all her life." They told of several cases of insanity in the family ancestry.

While the condemned woman's husband, Dr. William C. Judd, was telling of her emotional outbursts and strange requests, reports came from the prison that mutterings had been provoked within the walls by the State's victory in a fight to have Mrs. Judd examined by two psychiatrists with her lawyers excluded.

Word was reported to have been sent from the prison to Dr. Joseph Catton, San Francisco alienist, that if he examined Mrs. Judd and testified she is sane:

"Watch yourself if you ever come in the prison again."

Warden Walker unofficially expressed some concern at the reports, but indicated he was prepared to preserve order if any open insurrection developed.

47,000 Take White House For Easter Egg Rolling

Only Threatening Weather Prevents Smashed Record; Roosevelts Are Happy Hosts, First Lady Mingling With Celebrators; "Sistie" Radio Speaker.

Thousands and thousands of children, their new clothing as colorful as the eggs they tumbled over the sodden grass—the hot sun—the President's grandchildren on the south portico of the White House—a band blaring and pounding in the crowd—that was the Easter egg rolling on the White House lawn yesterday.

A crowd of record proportions, 47,000, filed through the gates between 9:30 and 4:30 yesterday. The record was set several years ago—White House police don't know just when—with a mark of 48,000. And the attendance yesterday would have been even larger if the rain clouds had rolled back earlier.

The high point of the day—and of the week and month for most children—was the appearance of the President and Mrs. Roosevelt on the porch of the Executive Mansion. The President waved from the south portico, while Mrs. Roosevelt, her daughter, and granddaughter walked through the crowd.

There were the usual casualties of the day. About 50 sick cases were treated by doctors and nurses from Emergency Hospital and the Red Cross. Most of them were cases of faintness, of persons overcome by the heat. But one was a woman who had been struck in the eye by a hurled Easter egg, it was reported.

A clearing house for lost children also had a busy day, returning 45 to anxious parents and guardians before 4.30 when the crowds began to troop out of the grounds. A score or more Girl Reserves and Girl Scouts patrolled the White House lawns on the lookout for stray celebrators.

The girls took lost children in tow and proceeded on a search for "mamma" in the vicinity. If she couldn't be found, the child was taken to a clearing station in the east wing and questioned. If the mother's name could be learned, the girls then went out and paged the parent.

Music during the morning session of the festivities was furnished by a children's band recruited by a local theater. In the afternoon, the Marine Band played on a bandstand set up between the big fountain and the White House itself.

As Mrs. Roosevelt and her grandchildren came on to the porch yesterday morning, they spoke to the Nation over a hook-up with microphones set up on the porch by the National Broadcasting Co. Said Mrs. Roosevelt:

"Happy Easter to you all and I hope that you all have a lovely day. I wish you could see the crowd on the lawn and enjoy it as much as we are."

Then little "Sistie" Dall said, with the dignity of her 6 years, "Hello, and happy Easter." And her brother, "Buzzie," 2½, piped, "Hello, happy Easter."

The President leaned on the rail and waved as he waited for the cheering to subside. Then, "I am glad to see all of you. I only wish I could come out and join you." He waited a moment while his eye went over the crowd, and then he commented, "It seems to me that there are just as many grown-ups as children."

Grass Is Trampled.

He went back to the White House offices, but Mrs. Roosevelt, her daughter, Mrs. Anna Dall, and little Sistie descended into the crowd. Accompanied by Mrs. Roosevelt's Scottie, "Meggie," and the police dog, "Major," and preceded by police, who cleared a way for them, they wandered about the grounds for some time, watching the children at play and occasionally speaking to the children.

As the crowds milled about over the carefully-tended lawns, they trampled the young grass into a paste of mud and broken eggs. At her press conference, Mrs. Roosevelt said the whole lawn might have to be re-seeded, but added that even so the egg-rolling was worth it.

During the afternoon the Dall children had their own Easter party on the south portico and in the halls of the White House. Boxes of chocolate Easter eggs were hidden about the Executive Mansion and the little guests engaged in an exciting "treasure hunt" for them. As they played on the porch, or watched the milling throngs below, they were stared at by scores of thousands in the crowd. The mass of people below the portico, in fact, was far larger than that congregated within hearing distance of the bands.

HERRIOT IS ON WAY, BEARING DEBT PLAN

Sails Hoping to Pave Way for Lump-Sum Offer to United States.

Le Havre, France, April 17 (A.P.).—Former Premier Edouard Herriot, France's special representative for President Roosevelt's economic discussions in Washington, sailed today with the hope that he might succeed in clearing the way for a French offer to wipe out the war debt with a lump-sum payment.

Although M. Herriot has been instructed to play the part of an observer, rather than a negotiator, he will lose no opportunity to prepare for later debt negotiations through Andre Lefebvre de Laboulaye, the new French Ambassador at Washington.

France agrees that the debts are only a part of the program of world economic recovery, but they loom large in parliamentary and press discussions.

Reparations Slash Cited.

The French debt to the United States is $3,921,547,000, with $19,261,000 in default.

There have been several indications that the government would like to obtain a lump-sum settlement from the Roosevelt administration somewhat along the line of the Lausanne agreement by which Germany's reparation debt to the former allies was reduced by nine-tenths.

Government officials and economic experts have said that unless the Lausanne accord is taken into account by the United States it will be necessary to reexamine the entire reparations question, which might mean grave political and financial consequences.

Confers With Experts.

Aboard Steamship Berengaria, April 17 (A.P.).—Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald, who is on his way to Washington for economic discussions with President Roosevelt, spent today in busy preparations for the conversations at the end of this week.

He conferred with his experts and drafted speeches he will give during his brief stay in the United States.

(Associated Press.)

President Roosevelt laid the groundwork for his forthcoming conference with Edouard Herriot, of France, at a lengthy meeting yesterday with the new French Ambassador, Andre de Laboulaye.

The ambassador, who formally presented himself last Saturday, was in conversation with the President at the Executive Office for more than an hour.

Asked afterward about the story from Paris that the French are preparing to offer a lump sum payment to wipe out their war debt, the ambassador said:

"I know nothing about it."

Wife Gets Reno Decree From Inattentive Mate

Reno, Nev., April 17 (A.P.).—The socially prominent Elizabeth Fiske Clarke obtained a decree of divorce here today from E. Thurston Clarke, of New York, after telling the district judge her husband was "terribly attentive to other women and not to me."

Mrs. Clarke was awarded custody of a son, Jeremy, aged 3, and $500 per month alimony. The Clarkes married in Newport, R. I., March 19, 1928.

$50 REWARD POSTED FOR SNIPER OF DOG

Bullet Extracted, but Pet Shot Near Boy at Play May Succumb.

A reward of $50 has been offered by two officials of the Washington Humane Society for any authentic information taken to the office of the organization, 1230 New York avenue northwest, concerning the identity of the sniper who shot 2-year-old Teddy Cash's pet dog, Fritz, Friday afternoon in front of the Cash home, 4530 Ninth street northwest.

Dr. E. S. Mullins, veterinarian, of 2130 P street northwest, who has been assigned to the case by Mrs. Herbert W. Elmore, president of the Humane Society, yesterday extracted a .22-caliber bullet from the animal's spine. X-ray pictures taken at the offices of Dr. Casimir Liebell, in the Medical Science Building, revealed that the dog's spine is fractured.

Even though the dog has a very slim chance of living, Dr. Mullins said last night he would do everything in his power to save his life.

Fritz is getting the best of care and attention from all members of the Cash family, but probably what eases his suffering most of all is constant attention from little Teddy, who spends most of his time in the basement where his friend lies helpless.

The dog was shot from ambush while he was tagging along behind his young master, playing on his tricycle. The shot, the source of which is a mystery, hit the dog while he was only about 10 feet away from Teddy.

CARPENTER CALLS FOR RUMP CAUCUS

penter said, "and for those who do not want to be gagged to the extent that it will be impossible for them to offer legislation upon the completion of the present emergency program. If the present rule is amended to 218 members, we might as well go home and vote by proxy for all the value we will be in this special session of Congress. If you are not in favor of being further gagged, come and attend this meeting."

Speaker Rainey and Representative Byrns, of Tennessee, Democratic leader, were defeated in secret caucus last week in a move to bind the Democrats to support the tighter rule. The vote was 147 to 86, or 8 shy of the necessary two-thirds.

Rainey said yesterday, however, he planned to bring the issue to a vote in the House this week and predicted the change would be approved. The House Rules Committee is to consider the proposal today.

It was during the last Congress, when Vice President Garner was Speaker and the Democrats had a bare majority of 11 over the Republicans, that Rainey and other liberals urged the liberalization of the rules. The number of petitioners necessary to force a vote on bills tied up in committees then was reduced from a majority of 218 to 145.

Rainey said that under the liberal rule it might be possible for the 117 Republicans, the five Farmer-Laborites, and a radical Democratic group to seize control of the legislative program from the 313 Democratic majority.

Dissatisfied with treatment of their legislative proposals, including currency inflation and cash payment of the bonus, many of the old and new Democrats hope to defeat their leaders' move to obtain votes on their measures.

A bill has to be before a committee 30 days before a petition can be filed, and the House will have been in session 30 legislative days on Thursday.

Gangsters Bomb Legal Beer Cafe

Owner Says He Refused to Buy Bootleg Beer From Gang.

Cleveland, April 17 (A.P.).—Bootleg racketeers invaded the realm of 3.2 beer today, police said, with the bombing of an East Side restaurant. Joseph Zabukovec, the proprietor, his wife and their three children were thrown from their beds by a bomb which wrecked the interior of the restaurant, causing damage estimated at $1,000.

Zabukovec told police that two men approached his son, Joseph, jr., last Saturday after he had obtained a license to sell 3.2 beer.

"They wanted us to buy bootleg beer," the proprietor said. "My son told them he wouldn't have anything to do with racket beer. The men said they would come back." Police pointed out that the sale of legal beer has cut deeply into the profits of bootleggers.

"False Economy" Warning Issued by Mrs. Roosevelt

(Associated Press.)

A warning against "false economy" and budgetary savings now that would harm future generations came from Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt yesterday as she paused to speak to the press in the midst of a busy day.

The First Lady spoke shortly before boarding an airplane for New York to assist last night in awarding a medal to Cecilia Bow, portrait painter, the winner of this year's prize given annually by the Chi Omega committee to some woman outstanding in science, literature or art.

Contemplating no slackening in her busy pace, Mrs. Roosevelt plans to attend a party today at her own Tod Hunter School, address a Jewish welfare federation luncheon tomorrow and attend a meeting of the Travelers Aid Society before returning to the Capital tomorrow night by train.

Informed by newspaperwomen yesterday that scientific workers in Washington were apprehensive of their fate under the economy bill, Mrs. Roosevelt replied she herself had received a "flood of telegrams" on the curtailment of funds for experimental and extension work.

She said she had sent these telegrams on to the Budget Director, but that naturally she did not know what the Budget Director might feel he must do about it.

In the desire for economy, Mrs. Roosevelt added, this country must weigh what will do possible harm and what can be done without harm to future generations.

She gave as her own opinion that considerable weight might well be given the argument that much of the scientific work belongs in the States, and that the question might well be agitated more in the States, where economy cuts are likely to prove most serious.

Women of this Nation, Mrs. Roosevelt added, should pay attention to what and where curtailments come.

easily fell under the influence of Vassilli Gusev, one of the Russian defendants, and "other Russian counter-revolutionaries," the attorney charged.

Gusev, one of three Russians for whom the prosecution demanded the death penalty, was said by Smirnov to have sold his country, along with some of the others, for a few rubles.

"MacDonald merely obeyed orders of his superiors," the defense attorney maintained. "MacDonald made a sincere and courageous confession, and others of his fellow citizens did not."

Russian defenders of Gusev, V. A. Sokolow, P. E. Olyenik, M. O. Krasheninnikov and others, pleaded that their clients had fallen under the influence of the Britons and therefore were entitled to consideration in the verdict, notwithstanding their pleas of guilty.

Five other defense attorneys, including those for L. C. Thornton, Charles Nordwall, Albert W. Gregory, John Cushny and Allan Monkhouse, the other British defendants, will resume the defense summations tomorrow.

Thereafter, Assistant Prosecutor Roginsky probably will give the rebuttal. The defendants subsequently will have a chance to make statements in their own behalf.

48TH D. A. R. CONGRESS IS OPENED HERE

ally, and it is in this spirit we pay tribute to President Roosevelt."

A storm of applause broke over the audience at the conclusion of her remarks. As an offset to the disappointment, it was recalled that President and Mrs. Roosevelt will receive the entire Congress at the White House at a reception on Friday.

Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace spoke informally to the delegates after an introductory program of music by Sylvia Lent, violinist, of Washington, and by Benjamin de Loache, barytone, of the Philadelphia Grand Opera Co.

"Prejudice, fear, ignorance and greed are the sources out of which spring misunderstandings between nations," declared the Secretary, who rehearsed the course of American history from the days of the Revolution in developing his theme of the spirit of the American people. He predicted that the present measures for the relief of agriculture in this country would succeed if the people maintained a spirit of toleration and a willingness to pay attention to other points of views in dealing with the vital issues involved. A necessity at the moment, he pointed out, is to develop a sense of even-handed justice in all the workings of government.

Connally Tells Citizens' Part.

Secretary Wallace was followed by Senator Tom Connally, of Texas, who described himself laughingly as having "been in more wars and fought less than any living veteran."

"The lesson of today," said the senator, "is that our liberties can not be secured alone by the soldier, but must be upheld also by the citizen at the ballot box, also a protector and conservator of these inherent rights." Taking the life of George Washington as his main theme, the senator stated that in his opinion too much emphasis had been placed on the military career of Washington and not enough upon his civil service, lasting as it did over a much longer period of his life.

"America today," concluded the senator, "is beset with economic problems that challenge the welfare of the people. In handling these America must be true to its own past if it would serve the world." He called upon the delegates to devote themselves to the great cause of world peace and support the doctrine that "international differences must be settled in the courts of reason and law rather than by butchery on the field of battle."

New Minister to Danes

Former Representative Ruth Bryan Owen, the newly appointed Minister to Denmark, made her first public address since her appointment by President Roosevelt to that diplomatic post.

Speaking of her plan in her Florida district of bringing a selected group of boys and girls to Washington each year, Mrs. Owen told of the eager response of these young folk to the training thus given for citizenship.

"The idealism and energy of youth are valuable qualities in building the life of the Nation," she exclaimed. "The youth of today have a brand-new point of view. They are fearless, well informed and anxious to be of service to their country. The modern child sees the world as a neighborhood through the magic of the radio and feels that he must share the responsibility for world good by doing his part in his community and State. We must pass on to the young the heritage of ideals we have received from the founding fathers of the Republic."

Another high point in the day's proceedings was the pilgrimage to Washington Cathedral, led by the president general, Mrs. Magna, when the D. A. R. official banner was placed in the Great Choir and Sanctuary of the Cathedral in an impressive service. The address was by the Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington.

Cathedral Procession.

Thousands of delegates were assembled in the Great Choir and Sanctuary at 5 p. m. when the procession of choir and clergy began, in the midst of which walked Mrs. Magna, wearing her broad ribbon sash of high office over an attractive blue silk gown, escorted by one of her personal pages bearing the large silken banner of the society.

After singing of a patriotic hymn, Mrs. Magna, accompanied by the page bearing the banner, advanced to the chancel steps and in a clear voice made the presentation to the cathedral of the beautiful banner. Bishop Freeman accepted the flag on behalf of the cathedral authorities while the thousands of delegates looked on, greatly pleased to have their beloved emblem receive permanent place in the Washington Cathedral.

Bishop Freeman in his address reminded the delegates that the supreme task of citizens at the present time was to exercise every possible caution to see that this Government "shall not perish from the earth." "We are passing through perilous times," the bishop pointed out, "even more so than in days of strife, and the responsibility rests on right-thinking citizens to stand for American ideals and to remember that 'eternal vigilance is the price of liberty' today as in Revolutionary times.

"We must make religion more articulate in the lives of the people. The world needs today people to demonstrate religion in their lives rather than to just enunciate it in creeds.

Custodians of Conscience.

"Women as custodians of the conscience of the Nation must see to it that the religious ideals of the founding fathers are maintained. As guardians of the home they must see to it that the essential virtues of American ways of thinking are not lost through modern drifts and tendencies away from religion and the high standards of the American home."

"In speaking of President Roosevelt, Bishop Freeman declared that he admired him most of all because of his qualities as a Christian gentleman.

"I believe his judgment is controlled by his Christian convictions," the bishop stated. "We have great need of such qualities now, for we must not forget that America is a Christian nation based on Christian ideals.

"We must not expect the President to be infallible in judgment but I hold him a man of great initiative, great devotion and utter consecration, who is willing to give the utmost of his strength to the task of restoring this Nation to its normal existence and a leader in world influence."

Following the service hundreds of the Daughters of the American Revolution delegates remained to participate in a pilgrimage through the Cathedral, including the crypt chapels and the bishop's garden.

Throughout the three sessions of the first day of the forty-second Continental Congress the recurring theme struck again and again by the speakers was present economic problems and remedies for them and, the necessity for courage in meeting the emergencies of the moment.

Mrs. Magna, in her annual address, laid stress on the need for thrift, conservation and the preservation of high standards for the home. She urged the support of national defense upon the delegates and declared that all the defense measures are essential to the preservation and protection of the Nation and our welfare as a people.

Mrs. Magna came out strongly against recognition of Soviet Russia and stated:

"I stand shoulder to shoulder with you in not recognizing a country which has for its avowed purpose the destruction of our system of government and the very fabric of our civilization. Its purpose is to destroy democracy, religion, family life, property right, freedom of the press and of speech. By its public acts and pronouncements it has proclaimed and is proclaiming that it will destroy our form of government under the Constitution. It would set up in its place a Communist regime which is the flat negation of all the articles in the Bill of Rights.

Only Laws Effective.

"The sooner we make up our minds that a bill should be passed making it unlawful to advocate the overthrow of our Government, the better. No amount of printed matter of oratory can stop the spread of Communism. Only laws against it will be effective.

"Any country has a right to any form of government it desires. We stand against recognition of their government because of her avowed purpose to destroy ours.

Other high points of Mrs. Magna's address were as follows:

"The women of America can and must answer the challenge flung to them by recent developments in the crime conditions of their country.

"Crime in America today is a well-organized and a well-financed force, it is a flourishing business.

"Bring intelligent pressure to bear upon legislators as your individual voice to insist that crimes and racketeering of all types be put out of business."

Mrs. Magna expressed the belief that "balanced minds go with balanced budgets."

"The sooner we reject extremes for temperate thought, superlatives for honest descriptions, wisecracks for simple truths," she exclaimed, "the sooner will radical thought on any subject become reasonable and sane. Time and loyal friendships can adjust a world. If individuals and groups holding extreme views on any subject would temper these with calm judgment and each give to the other an exchange of thought rather than censure, each would derive benefit."

Reports Show Advances.

That the D. A. R. is in a healthy state of progress, financial soundness and foremost in constructive service to the State and Nation was shown in the various reports of the national officers which featured the afternoon session.

Before these reports were made the congress listened to brief greetings from the honorary presidents general of the society who are in Washington. In extending her good wishes, Mrs. Grace Lincoln Hall Brosseau, of Connecticut, said:

"We are living in an age when our sanity, our resourcefulness and our God-given faith are being put to the severest possible test. Not since the days when our foremothers were compelled to share shoulder to shoulder the hardships laid upon their men, has the call to serious performance to duty been so clear-cut and so insistent.

"When we unflinchingly face the facts, we must admit that while we still have boundless faith in our country, life is not for the moment simple and can not be lived heedlessly."

The first mention of beer in the Congress came when Mrs. George Thacher Guernsey, honorary president general, of Independence, Kans., in her address, took occasion to register her protest against the recent legislation which made it legal. She said, in particular:

"We are having, or rather have been promised, a 'New Deal.' A new pilot is at the helm. He shall have the people's confidence and cooperation even though some of the men of his own party may try to stick spokes in his wheels. The people believe in his honesty and courage. We await the future to confirm his wisdom.

"Our great patriotic society will withhold no meed of promise or effort to the loyal support of the President. Nevertheless, we entertain no false hope that more beer will bring business. Less beer and more bread is what we need today. More sobriety and less 'riotry' is needed in these critical times. A sober pilot at the Nation's helm is no more needed than sober drivers at the wheels of cars."

Political Issues Barred.

Whether Mrs. Guernsey's attack on beer is the forerunner of the injection of the prohibition issue into the deliberations of the Congress could not, of course, be learned last night. It will not be officially brought forward, for no political or dividing issues are to be a part of the proceedings, according to the stand recently taken by the national board of management. Individual speakers, however, may introduce the subject in their remarks, of course.

Progress in D. A. R. work was noted in reports of the national officers and more reports will feature the morning session today. Among those reports will be that of Mrs. Brosseau, chairman of the Constitution Hall Memory Book, the report of the Constitution Hall committee, by Mrs. Magna, chairman, and the report of the committee on buildings and grounds, Mrs. John M. Beavers, chairman.

Pilgrimages to Arlington and Mount Vernon will occupy most of this afternoon while State meetings and those of national committees will also be held. At the close of the morning session the president general and the delegates will place a wreath upon the grounds of Constitution Hall.

He had been ill for a year and had been confined to his bed for two months.

He was appointed to the Tax Appeals Board on March 28, 1925, by President Coolidge and reappointed for a 12-year term by President Hoover on June 1, 1932.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Ophelia Love, and two daughters, Mrs. Willie Schwartz, who also lives at the Roosevelt, and Mrs. James Burnett, of San Antonio, Tex.

CIVIL SERVICE POST TO GO TO ADDAMS

of as envoy to another Latin-American country.

Guy T. Helvering, former representative from Kansas and chairman of the Kansas State central committee, has been definitely chosen as Commissioner of Internal Revenue to succeed David Burnet. Robert Gore, another aspirant for the revenue post, will be given another job, but what it will be has not been decided.

J. F. T. O'Connor, of Los Angeles, is still the favorite contender for the post of Comptroller of the Currency, while A. C. Miller, a close friend of the President, is being discussed for appointment as governor of the Federal Reserve Board. No definite decision has been made on this latter post, however.

Although efficient Republican postmasters will be allowed to fill out the terms for which they were appointed, this policy will not apply to U. S. marshals, district attorneys and collectors, it was indicated yesterday. Appointments will be made in a few days to fill the places of those whose terms have expired and the others will be lopped off shortly afterward. Other Government employes holding office under Civil Service rules have no cause for worry, it was said authoritatively.

On the Hill, a fight was launched on the nomination of John Collier, of California, to be Commissioner of Indian Affairs. It was indicated that Collier's name would not be confirmed until after he had been questioned on his policy in regard to Indian affairs. Senator Thomas (Democrat), Oklahoma, asked that action on the appointment be deferred. Senator Thomas said Collier was familiar with the Far Western Indians, but not with the Cherokees of Oklahoma.

The nominations of James G. Biggs, of North Carolina, to be Solicitor General and of James A. Donohoe, of Nebraska, to be Federal district judge of Nebraska, were referred to select Senate committees.

Edward M. Watson was confirmed as judge of the Circuit Court of Hawaii, and the Senate also approved the nomination of Clifton Mathews to be Federal attorney for Arizona.

CITY'S RELIEF NEEDS DECLARED AT CRISIS

Millan Points to Gravity of Health, Education and Poor Situation.

Inadequate funds for the maintenance of health, education and social welfare of the needy of this city were said to be at a crisis by leaders of social projects who addressed the Monday Evening Club at the Willard Hotel last night.

W. W. Millan, president of the Board of Public Welfare, told the group of the dangers facing Washington's destitute if Congress does not appropriate sufficient funds for relief. He stated that he appeared before a congressional committee yesterday and explained the need of funds.

The appropriation of $1,500,000 would, he asserted, be a sustaining fund to the 10,000 destitute families of this city. This amount, he said, would give them "starvation rations."

Dr. Harry A. Fowler, president of the Medical Association of the District, stressed the need of both preventive and curative medicine. "Without the protection thrown about us today by health agencies present society could not maintain itself," he asserted.

Others who spoke on the increasing needs of their fields were Mrs. Philip Sydney Smith, of the Board of Education; Dr. George F. Bowerman, librarian of the Public Library, and Miss Sibyl Baker, supervisor of playgrounds.

Members of the club adopted a resolution favoring a retention of the present tax rate in preference to a reduction in funds for educational, relief aid, and recreational facilities of the city.

The organization also favored a housing plan in which alley dwellings and other unlivable houses would be abolished and which would better living conditions throughout the city.

The Rev. Russell J. Clinchy presided at the meeting. Leifur Magnusson is president of the club.

Daniels Is Received By Puig Casaurano

Unofficial Hostility Melts as Students Hail First Remarks of Envoy.

Mexico City, April 17 (A.P.).—Ambassador Josephius Daniels was formally received by Foreign Minister Puig Casaurano today after some of the unofficial critics of his appointment had publicly indicated a change of heart.

Mr. Daniels chatted for 45 minutes with the foreign minister—a much longer time than usually is allotted to a new envoy. Within a few days he will be received by President Rodriguez. El Nacional printed interviews with student leaders in which they said that the new ambassador's first remarks in Mexico had created a good impression and had started a reversal of the opinion of him previously held by students.

Criticism of the Daniels appointment, particularly by students, was based on the fact that he was Secretary of the Navy at the time of the occupation of Vera Cruz.

FARLEY SCANS PLAN TO CUT POSTAL COST

postoffices, cutting transportation costs, being more careful with supplies and equipment, and not filling vacancies caused by deaths and resignations.

Saving the remaining $22,000,000 presents a more complex problem, for it has to be done without impairing the postoffice service, Mr. Farley said. "Innumerable suggestions have been made, some of them practical and some of them pretty violent. Perhaps the most radical plan that has been recommended is a proposal that all letter carriers be discharged and all mail be delivered under contracts awarded by competitive bidding. We are told we could save $100,000,000 a year by the process," he went on.

A more reasonable proposal, he said, is to reorganize all rural deliveries, with longer routes and fewer carriers. This will be made possible by improved roads in rural districts. Such a reorganization would eliminate 10,000 of the present 40,000 carriers. It had not been decided whether these reorganizations would be made at all once or gradually, he said.

Although the Postoffice Department has lost about one-third of its business since the beginning of the depression, it is reluctant to dismiss workers who have given the best part of their lives to the service. He explained: "We are giving thought to a plan of carefully surveying each postoffice and each railway mail unit, fixing the quota of clerks and carriers at the minimum complement necessary to handle the present volume of business and then rotating the work among the employes so that all will be retained on the pay roll with shortened working time. This plan would reduce the overhead of the Government and still protect the employes in their jobs.

"It might be possible to abandon the delivery service in small towns and villages where no particular hardship would be involved in having people call at the postoffice for their mail. There might be some curtailment in the larger cities, where we have at present two deliveries daily in residential sections, three in districts which have both homes and stores, and four in strictly business districts," Mr. Farley stated.

Postoffice revenues have been declining since 1919, Mr. Farley said, and the deficit has been growing larger every year. The decline is due to the fact that people are writing fewer letters, that there is not so much parcel post business, and business houses are delivering their bills by messenger. The department could handle twice its volume of business without any additional cost, he said.

The Postmaster General made a plea for people to use the postoffice facilities more, and also asked for suggestions to improve efficiency and reduce expenses. Briefly he explained the recommended 2-cent rate on local postage, and pointed out that he had not had time to take care of all the patronage demands, due to the economy study. He also outlined the administration's policy in regard to replacing postmasters already appointed.

Rites for Mrs. West Tomorrow.

Funeral services for Mrs. J. Weasley West, mother of Millard F. West, 3 Hesketh street, Chevy Chase, Md., former deputy commissioner of internal revenue, who died Sunday in Tulsa, Okla., will be held tomorrow at Lancaster, Ky.

The Federal Diary

By GEORGE D. RILEY

A TRIP AROUND THE CITY OF WASHINGTON.

YOU have often heard of a trip around the world in so many days, but this was a trip around the city in so many hours and embracing so many subjects.

I started to foot it to purchase a jig-saw puzzle of the map of the United States. Of course, this represented geography. Then I skipped around the upheavals of the excavations near Seventh and Pennsylvania avenue, making my way south to the Army Medical Museum at Seventh and B streets southwest. No, I wasn't ill. I was feeling fine. This is a very rare museum and should be visited if one is inclined to be interested along those lines. The dental exhibit, the studies of the eye, nerves, anatomy, embryology, diseases of the skin and those horrid monstrosities were all very well illustrated.

An hour in here represented my lesson in medicine.

Then I tiptoed across the Mall, peeping into the Agricultural hothouses, and saw a touch of spring—the flowers and citrus trees there. After the breath of Agriculture, I met a friend at Commerce.

We viewed the aquarium and also the exhibit of salmon, herring and rainbow trout hatching.

FROM there we wandered into the exhibit on the fifth floor and tried to absorb the aeronautics display. Of course, some of this registered in our minds, but most of it was far above our heads in the sky. There was machinery of all kinds and the latest inventions of research in this branch of work—aviation.

Visiting the enormous cafeteria in Commerce, we got the idea of the number of employes working there.

Up the Avenue again we marched to the Capitol, and visitetd the Senate. We were able to identify quite a few senators and also to hear their talk on the reconstruction finance amendment. That was our subject of law.

GROWING weary of this, we made our goal, the Folger Shakespearean Library. Jumping from law to literature was not so bad. This library is indeed a very beautifully constructed building of white marble and stone, situated at East Capitol and B streets, near the Congressional Library.

The small white statue of a boy at the north end, taken from "Midsummer Night's Dream," says 'Lord, what fools we mortals be." So often we need to stop and remember these words of Puck, the fairy, in Act III, Scene II, of this play. The white marble along the front of the building is carved with quotations from a number of other plays.

The interior of carved woodwork contains an immense study of rare volumes and is very artistically arranged. Letters, manuscripts, a rare clock from Stratford-on-Avon, hand-carved chests like used in the "Merchant of Venice" and many such curiosities can be seen here.

At the south end of the building on the inside we came to the quaint theater, consisting of two balconies, red plus chairs, upper and lower stage, richly colored curtains, little balcony windows off from the stage, and beautiful stained glass windows. There is an immense tapestry ceiling in this theater, with various designs and the words, "All the world's a stage, men and women merely players."

In a case to the left as you enter the library from the north entrance one could see a very old collection of prompt books and books containing sketches for costumes and scenery. The carved woodwork itself is a treat.

If one has not visited this library they should do so. Government employes on furlough leave may be repaid in literature by a visit to this newly added structure in this city.

EDNA MAE PHELPS.

You know, if others who live here would tour Washington in leisure we wouldn't be embarrassed when strangers ask questions about the city.

It is a fact that thousands never go to a public building except when friends come to visit. Those living in other parts of the Nation would be thankful of the opportunities for a liberal education gained simply by a tour of Washington. Know your Washington.

Miss Phelps has set a very good example.

* * * *

At death no life remains, so sings the song of fate; but still our hope retains the question for debate. Must we but cry "Farewell" when Death his specter rears? Have you no hope to swell beyond this vale of tears? Like sweet and fragrant flowers, sweet lives seem heaven sent. Do these but leaven ours and die—their fragrance spent? Like seeds, beneath the sod, perhaps the soul can rise from out its home of cold—this, too, is just surmise. When chills of death intrude, what will the answer be, finale or interlude? The ends of soul set free.

Mrs. Barbara B. Aller, fisheries, is rearing the first black mollinesia (sailfish) for the aquarium, grown from a pair presented by William Chaumberg, New Orleans, about a year ago. They're an inch and a half long and are turning black. And when they grow up they'll be given over to the care of Fred G. Orsinger.

WHYS AND OTHER WHYS

Why is it that with all our talk about economy that Government buildings yesterday were plenty hot with radiators full tilt, while the weather alone was warm enough to demand open windows?

Two points stand out from postal workers' standpoint beside the fact that employes who give satisfactory service and who avoid "offensive" political activity will not be superseded, we gather from Postmaster Farley's address last night. They are:

1. Carriers may be dispensed with in small towns and villages.

2. Ten thousand rural carriers may be lopped off, with further consolidations of routes, added to the 5,000 consolidations made in the last seven years.

Strange As It Seems.

DID you know of the following architectural curious details of the new Commerce Building?

That the east facade does not match the west facade?

That neither east or west facade is of balanced perfect type, the first two stone courses below the windows in the northern end differ from those on the southern end?

That no ventilation of the air in the closed stairways has been provided?

That the third story on the Pennsylvania avenue section is off level with the rest of the building so a ramp takes care of that difference?

That one can not pass due north and south in the corridors on the Fourteenth and Fifteenth street sides in the first two stories without going out doors?

That the windows on the ground floor of the Patent Office section are not the same size as those of the central section?

That the aquarium tanks only in part ever get any sunlight?

The Diary apologizes. Astigmatism. The new board walk on the north side of the South Building, Agriculture, was reported as being of full length. A change of glasses shows that it is an "economy walk." It is just half across the front of the building. Occasionally, economy can be carried to short lengths, so as to defeat an utilitarian purpose.

Catches 40 Fish At Once.

"Strange as It Seems," George Goergens, motion pictures, Agriculture, whose departure to Puerto Rico was reported in the Federal Diary several weeks ago, is now back with a "true" fish story, which he is ready to affirm by raised hand.

While the proud ship Caroline, on which he was a passenger, was at anchore in the Caribbean, one line was cast, one hook was used, and 40 fish were caught, the largest being 11 feet 6 inches, with a total weight of 660 pounds.

HOUSE RESTAURANT STARTS BEER SALE

Congress Members Imbibe 720 Bottles as Drys Sip Milk.

The House restaurant was no fit place for a self-respecting dry yesterday as wet members of Congress went about assuaging a 30-year thirst by downing 720 bottles of their favorite brew.

At the stroke of noon, just ten days after ale made its initial return to Washington, beer was placed on sale in the restaurant. On hand to do their duty by the first consignment were Representatives Boylan and Delaney, of New York; Berlin, of Pennsylvania, and Fernandez, of Louisiana.

Representative Wright Patman, Texas Democrat, and more than a score of his no less dry colleagues, ruefully sipped their ice water while cries of "Skoal" and "Here's How" echoed about them.

Adjacent to Mr. Patman sat Representative Florence P. Kahn, of California, three empty Budweiser bottles before her. In the nearby grill, Representative John J. Cochran, of Missouri, vigorous champion of St. Louis' more celebrated brew, was surprised quaffing a glass of milk. There were many such sidelights.

Thirty more cases have been ordered for today. Chairman Warren, of the House Accounts Committee, thinks it might help to wipe out the restaurant's $10,000 deficit.

Factor's friends have indicated that he was seeking gangdon cooperation to effect return of Jerome. Today Factor said he would "do anything" to get the boy back and in a statement issued through newspapers appealed to the kidnapers to contact him. The ransom supposedly had been set at $50,000.

Roberts said to the best of his knowledge none of the alleged "downstate" kidnap ring had any affiliations wth Chicago gangs.

He taught school until the Civil War and then joined the Army of Gen. Robert E. Lee as a member of Company B, Second Maryland Infantry, C. S. A., in which he served until Gen. Lee's surrender.

Mr. Neale engaged in farming at the close of the war and was elected superintendent of schools of Charles County and served until 1887. He was appointed as deputy clerk of the Court of Appeals in 1892 and retired in 1906 when he moved to Washington.

Surviving him are three daughters, Miss Hattie A. Neale, Miss Nettie M. Neale and Miss Rose C. Neale and five sons, James F., Thomas M., Raphael A., Augustine W., jr., and William Joseph Neale, all of Washington.

Ohio Forbids Beer Sale to Motorists

Curb Service Clamp Also Extends to Serving on Trains.

Columbus, Ohio, April 17 (A.P.).—To keep beer and automobile drivers as far apart as possible, the State Liquor Control Commission ruled today against the serving of the legal brew to any person in an automobile.

Restaurants, barbecue stands, confectionaries and similar establishments may continue to give curb service in sandwiches, ice cream—and even near beer; but if a motorist wants a bottle of 3.2 he must go inside and drink it at a table.

Further, the commission ruled against depot or station restaurants dispensing beer to train and bus passengers through venders sent aboard. However, as in the case of the motorists, the passengers may slake their thirst unhindered simply by going into the station restaurants after it.

JAPAN INVADES CHINA.

While representatives of the leading nations are coming to Washington to discuss economic questions, Japan invades China proper. Strong Japanese forces are driving the Chinese troops south of the Lwan river. The apparent objective of Japan is now Peiping, the ancient capital of China. Assurances that Japan would not go inside the Great Wall have been falsified, as have all Japanese assurances since the seizure of Manchuria was begun.

The statesmen gathering at Washington can not confine their attention to economic questions when the world is thus threatened with war. Japan is on the rampage. The western nations have no means of knowing what Japan has in view, but they are already compelled to take steps to protect their nationals in areas where Japan is advancing. American troops—not many, but too many to be browbeaten by Japanese commanders—are now in the fighting region. So are British and other troops. Large European properties are in danger of destruction.

The House yesterday adopted the resolution authorizing the President, in co-operation with other nations, to deny shipment of war materials to countries where hostilities are in progress. The Senate should adopt this resolution without delay. The nations, having found Japan culpable in the Manchurian aggression, and being endangered by Japan's invasion of China, would be wielding a knife against themselves if they should permit Japan to obtain war material from them. They must combine to discourage war between Japan and China, or at least to limit and minimize the conflict.

A Japanese spokesman has said that Japan would immediately search and seize vessels bound for China with war munitions, if an embargo should be placed upon munitions bound for Japan. But the seizure of vessels is an act of war, and Japan may think twice before inviting reprisals from many powerful nations. Moreover, it would constitute a declaration of war against China, which Japan has avoided thus far, pretending that the invasion of Manchuria was in self-defense. If Japan should declare war on China the nations that have condemned Japan would not be neutral. There would be no reason for neutrality. They would sympathize with and assist China. Instead of facing a disorganized and impecunious foe, Japan would run up against insuperable obstacles and invite her own ruin.

The situation that is developing in the Orient does not admit of a policy of indifference. The United States will become involved if its troops are attacked in the discharge of their treaty duties in China. Opposition to Japan's aggressions is not American intermeddling in a Far Eastern squabble. It is unavoidable if the United States is to safeguard its rights, interests, and citizens. The proposed embargo will serve as a solemn warning to Japan to refrain from a course which jeopardizes the rights and the peace of nations. If she does not refrain, more vigorous action will be necessary.

FINLAND'S EXPERIENCE.

An interesting record of government-owned business enterprises is found in Finland's undertakings during the last fifteen years. State participation in industry has always been a feature of Finnish life, but the last few months has seen most of these enterprises turned into joint stock companies. The comparison of records of government-administered concerns as compared with those directed by independent boards is responsible for the change.

In 1918 the state bought two paper and pulp making factories, which had formerly been in the hands of private Norwegian companies. These concerns were left under independent management and have since made a good showing. The Veitsiluto Sawmill Company, a similar concern, but under direct government control, was far less successful. The Finnish Diet, therefore, resolved to turn this concern as well as the state-owned copper company and electric power organization into stock companies. This tendency toward independent management was also seen in the method adopted for controlling the sale of liquor after the rescinding of prohibition. Manufacture and sale are in the hands of a special company working under the government monopoly. The government appoints an administrative board, which chooses the executive management.

In the reorganization of most of these concerns the government continues to hold most or even all of the stock, but the management is taken out of the hands of the government and put under the control of independent boards of administration, which appoint the executive bodies that run the business.

The railroads and nearly 40 per cent of the country's forest land are government owned, as is the Bank of Finland, which was founded over a century ago. Parliament elects a board of supervisors for the bank, and the directors are nominated by the president on the advice of this board. The national forests yield an income of about $700,000 a year.

CONFUSION IN CONGRESS.

Congress is apparently nearing the end of the spurt with which it began the present session. For a few weeks both houses worked in harmony and with dispatch to lift the country out of its economic crisis. Now enthusiasm for straightforward action is beginning to lag. Congress is slipping into its old habit of discussing everything under the sun, while the country waits impatiently for constructive action.

Some parts of President Roosevelt's program have provoked widespread controversy. Democrats in both houses disagree with the Executive on some vital issues. Instead of ironing out their differences Congress seems disposed to talk about them and to waste time while vital needs of public welfare are neglected. A few weeks ago Congress was responsive to leadership. It was a well disciplined body, acting in harmony with the mandate delivered at the polls last November. Now it is drifting again. It is not surprising that the public begins to be alarmed when it notes the recurrence of the stagnation which marked the Seventy-second Congress.

Disagreement with President Roosevelt's program does not justify this delay and this reckless drifting toward dangerous policies. The Roosevelt program is the only one before the country. If it is not enacted, the leadership of the Democratic party will disintegrate and the whole country will flounder without direction or effective guidance. There will continue to be widespread differences as to what the Roosevelt program should consist of, but there is no excuse for delaying its enactment while the country drifts toward inflation.

For the next four years the country will be dependent upon President Roosevelt for leadership. If the radicals in Congress break away from his leadership and try to force through a program of their own, confusion, disillusionment and further distress in economic circles will be inevitable. The events of the last week on Capitol Hill give rise to grave misgivings. It may be necessary for the President to manifest his leadership more vigorously to bring Congress out of its confusion.

For a time the radicals were obedient to the national demand for constructive action, but now every one is coming forth with his fantastic scheme, although knowing that it will be rejected. The 30-hour week bill sponsored by Senator Black led to a demand for minimum wages, and now the country is startled by a report that members of the House are preparing a bill to give a Federal bureau control over industrial production. It is inconceivable that such socialism has the support of President Roosevelt and his Cabinet.

Having arrested progress on administration measures, Congress is running wild with schemes to put the entire industrial and business structure under the stultifying influence of bureaucracy. This stampede must be stopped or its effect upon business will do more damage than all the corrective measures proposed by the President. The country is looking to Mr. Roosevelt for leadership out of this wilderness of radical ideas. The people will rally to his support if he exercises his leadership to keep Congress on the right track.

SCHOOLS IN DISTRESS.

The plight of the school teachers in Chicago attracts particular attention, but there are many similar situations throughout the country that call for action. When Chicago paid its teachers one month's salary last week it was for their stipend due last June. Teachers' pay is in arrears $28,000,000. Probably in no other profession would employes have remained at their posts under such conditions.

The difficulty in Chicago, as in many other places, has been greatly aggravated by the depression, but the breakdown is primarily due to antiquated tax systems and official extravagance in other lines. Chicago's tax muddle began before the depression started, arrears becoming harder and harder to collect as the economic situation became worse. Information reaching the National Education Association shows that various States are having serious difficulty in keeping their schools going. Alabama is $7,000,000 in arrears in teachers' salaries, with the schools closed in a number of counties. Oklahoma is paying teachers in scrip.

In several States curtailment of the current school year is contemplated. In this situation it was inevitable that, along with so many other interests, appeal should be made to the Federal Treasury to come to the rescue of the schools. This is an indefensible attitude for States and cities to take. The Federal routine budget is being trimmed in the efforts of the administration to match income and outgo. State, municipal and local taxes have only in very rare instances made any such effort to effect savings. In many instances reductions of old taxes have no more than offset necessary increased expenditures for relief.

Of the tax burden of the United States only about one-fourth will be chargeable to Federal demands during the coming year. The President, while cutting to the bone in making Federal economies, has urged similar action upon the various local governments. In most instances his appeal has received scant attention. Greater opportunity for consolidations and elimination of useless offices exists in the various categories of local government than in the Federal administration. Not only should State and city systems be overhauled, but the possibilities of consolidations in county, township and school districts are unlimited. States and school communities should be ashamed to ask the Federal Government to educate their children. The spirit of America should demand whatever economies may be necessary in all other directions in order to maintain adequate school facilities.

ECONOMY IN THE ARMY.

The War Department budget is under scrutiny at the White House and the Budget Bureau. President Roosevelt is trying to make considerable savings in all the departments, and their expenditures are being closely studied. It seems reasonable to suppose that each division of the Government will be called upon to contribute to the economy campaign, and of course the War Department can not be excepted.

Theorists are attempting to secure amalgamation of the War and Navy Departments as part of the economy program. There is every indication that they will fail. President Roosevelt does not have authority under the reorganization power granted him by Congress to merge two departments, and he would probably frown upon a merger act if the pacifists should succeed in getting it through Congress. Indications are that the President is going forward with economies within the two departments. The merger scheme is not an economy measure. It is only a mask for pacifistic interests that are seeking to weaken national defense.

A more pertinent issue is the extent to which expenditures of the War Department should be reduced. It is unfortunate that the Government has to spend taxpayers' money on armaments, yet to deprive the Nation of adequate defense would be as foolish as to deprive a city of its agencies for law enforcement. The needs for maintenance of an army are relative. While the world remains armed to the teeth and wars are threatened it would be folly for the United States to neglect its national defense.

With the exception of the nations that were disarmed as a result of the World War, the United States has the smallest armed force per capita of any important power. Organized military forces in this country include only .35 of 1 per cent of the population. France, Sweden, Switzerland and Italy have about 15 per cent of their population under arms; Yugoslavia, Soviet Russia, Norway, Latvia, Finland and Czechoslovakia about 11 per cent. These facts, aside from the disturbed status of the world, suggest that the strength of the American Army ought not to be diminished.

For several years the United States Army has been held down to the status of a national police force and a nucleus for training a defensive machine in case of emergency. Every rule of reason suggests that it should not be further curtailed. President Roosevelt will doubtless effect whatever economies are possible without reducing the efficiency or the strength of the Army. It may be that considerable savings are possible within these bounds, but it is not to be supposed that the President would support any program that would further accentuate the inferiority of the American defense forces.

JOBS OR FREE MEALS?

From the Cincinnati Enquirer.

Near New York City, the "forest army" mobilized under the emergency law numbered 1,791 men when it first reported at an Army post. After two days, it was smaller by 257. That many did not want work at all. Seeing a chance to get a bed and free meals, 257 idlers had joined, but not for the "duration of the war." They were promptly eliminated, for the forest corps is an army of workers, and not a dole.

This incident suggests a problem which will be increasingly serious as the months continue. Unhappily, three years of unemployment has created a situation where many persons have come to depend on hand-outs, have come to expect a dole. They do not want hard work. This, of course, has nothing to do with the vast majority of unemployed, whose only request is for honest labor, and who are willing to work at any job, however uncongenial.

There is an important lesson in the dwindling of that forest corps. We are reminded how much better it is to provide work for the unemployed than to provide a dole, in whatever form. The Federal Government, cities and States could well make every possible effort to organize their relief along the lines of supplying jobs, rather than supplying groceries or money.

Obviously, city welfare departments and charitable organizations can not apply such a principle rigorously. There are countless cases where they must provide direct aid for families without resources. But in every possible instance where the resources of the city can be used to provide employment, that is the better way. It is the way that prevents the development of an attitude such as the 257 idlers at the New York camp displayed.

Aladdin's Lamp.

POST HASTE.

Chairman Steagall prefers to call inflation expansion, which is something of a rebuke to Noah Webster.

A sugar-coated plan to help Cuba is being considered, but it won't work like the one that helped Congress swallow the Philippine pill, which was physic for the islands and profit for beets.

It might relieve the demand for refreshment parlors if closed banks with suitable counters could be used temporarily.

Necessary emergency measures have all been accepted in good spirit, but apprehension is visible over the talk of ruling industry by a plan located "a little left of the center."

No coddling luxury for the first D. C. forest contingent. They marched to camp in autos as democratically as a hunger army.

What with Mr. MacDonald interested primarily in debts, M. Herriot in arms and security and Mr. Hull resolving everything through tariffs, the conversations are going to be a real test of executive ability to square the triangle.

"Tokyo will not oppose U. S. recognition of Russia." We should reciprocate by permitting Japan to raise silk worms.

No one can deny that President Machado is a dictator, but what kind of bait would Mr. Fish use to catch rebels?

"Russian embargo up to King George." Prime Minister MacDonald must have hesitated to sail, leaving such a critical matter in the hands of a mere hereditary ruler.

Confidence in boosting prices and reducing mortgages to cure farm ills is weak if inflation must be added to accomplish the same end.

Tokyo thinks Americans sit up nights worrying about the Far East and plotting against Japan. Mr. Matsuoka can report that when Japan occurs to us once a week we joke about her taking herself so seriously.

High tariff advocates will have to admit that their views are "antiquated, obsolete and bewhiskered," as Secretary Hull says, if he demonstrates that for every dollar of imports admitted four dollars in exports will result.

New England fishermen will sail up the Potomac to ask Congress for relief. Wear a straw in the mouth and a little hayseed in the hair, my hearties!

Legislation is piling up at both ends of the Capitol and an investigation is proposed to determine whether members are getting sleepy or waking up.

It is the common destiny of Mexico and the United States to respect territorial rights, said Ambassador Daniels on arrival at the Aztec capital, diplomatically limiting his historical retrospect to the last 80 years.

The House, with double-barreled politeness, is holding up the 30-hour bill until the Senate revises its leap in the dark and Secretary Perkins slips in a minimum wage provision.

A Kansas beer seller arranged to be arrested so the courts can determine whether innocent congressional lager is intoxicating in the Sunflower State.

Sticking at modification of the anti-trust laws seems like small change in the face of wartime mobilization of industry.

The U. S. has a contingent right of intervention in Cuba, but keep the accent on the shun.

PAUL HUDSON.

If You Set Up a Bird-Bath, You Have No Right to Let It Get Dry.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

FORTUNATE are those who expect little, and wise are those who give nobody reason to expect anything.

Shipwrecked people in a lifeboat are supported by hope, but they expect nothing definite and therefore invite no disappointments.

But when a sail appears on the horizon and hope of rescue becomes an eager and reasonable expectation, the change of mental attitude invites unbearable hurt. If the ship sails on, the poor creatures in the lifeboat give up hope. Their spirits are broken.

Yet they are in no worse plight than they were before the sail appeared. Nothing is changed. Despair and madness are the result of expecting too much.

Hope deferred maketh the heart sick.

Take the case of the veterans. They didn't demand a bonus or compensation for imaginary post-war ills. But scheming politicians taught them to expect these things as a right, and there was bitter disappointment when the promised benefits were denied or taken away.

To arouse expectations is to invite trouble. If there is one rule of life that will help more than any other to avoid quarrels, recriminations and resentment, it is this one: Never set a pace you can't keep.

Suppose you acquire a new neighbor who has two attractive children. The neighbor expects nothing of you; the children expect nothing. You can ignore them forever without arousing any resentment.

But suppose you get acquainted with the children and begin to court them. You buy them sweets; you take them out in your car; you invite them to your house.

Within a month, through no fault of their own, they become nuisances. They are always underfoot. You have no peace. And then you realize that you have made a mistake and endeavor to correct it. You ignore the children.

What happens? The children and their parents wonder why you have changed. They are hurt, suspicious and resentful. You have made enemies simply by quitting something you shouldn't have done in the first place.

The same rule holds in all relationships. The boy courting a girl, the husband being generous to his wife, the philanthropist giving to the needy, the merchant serving his patrons, the statesman dealing with foreign peoples—all alike invite disaster if they arouse vain expectations by setting a pace they can't keep.

Woe to the public man who teaches the people to expect miracles he can't perform.

POLITICAL COMMENT

National Guaranty of Bank Deposits.

Minneapolis Journal.

Report that the President has made known his disapproval of the section of the pending banking bill that would provide for guaranty of bank deposits is interesting. It may be that the President has been studying the results in States where such guaranty measures were tried out and proved failures. Or he may have arrived at his attitude through direct consideration of the practicability of such a plan as presented in the pending bill and nation-wide in application.

The greatest fundamental error in dealing with this question heretofore has been the tendency to regard bank deposits as money rather than as credits, which they so largely are. If we consider that there is, roughly, $4,500,000,000 in money in the country and that deposits of all banks approximate $42,000,000,000, this becomes clear.

Association of Ideas.

Boston Herald.

When Japan bids us listen to "the voice of the people of Manchukuo," we somehow sort of get to thinking about those old-time ventriloquist shows.

Moley's Mouthful.

Louisville Herald-Post.

"We would have better government if fewer people voted," says Prof. Raymond Moley. Certain Republican congressmen buried in November's Democratic landslide probably will agree.

Bar War.

Boston Globe.

Paraguay and Bolivia are fighting over forts with about half the enthusiasm shown by restaurant keepers in striving for beer permits.

Politics and Jobs.

Detroit News.

The question in job dispensation are manifold, interesting and important. Controlled by top-heavy Democratic majorities, Congress thus far, in yielding to and working with the President, has reversed its habit for years of antagonizing Presidents. Roosevelt's popularity and the economic exigencies are factors; but never yet has the appointment or nonappointment to jobs of men whom representatives and senators want appointed failed to constitute another factor in determining the attitude of congressional majorities toward the President of their same party faith.

Behind the curtain, President Roosevelt holds over Congress a club as long as he postpones lading out the jobs. Operating, as without a doubt it does, to strengthen him in working out schemes for national and international reconstruction, delay is more than justified. If politics first is to govern the appointments when made, an indefinite postponement would do the President and the people much more good than harm.

An Unsatisfactory Bill.

Cincinnati Enquirer.

The administration farm relief bill was a bad bill as originally drafted. It embodied a conglomeration of unworkable principles and sought to lift agricultural prices by taxing the consumers and restricting acreages. But the bill is infinitely worse now, with the price-fixing feature added by an insurgent Senate. By the Simpson-Norris amendment the bill seeks to guarantee to the farmer his "production costs" plus a "reasonable profit." This absurd effort to legislate away the validity of supply and demand is the final doom of an agricultural program that was unsound to begin with.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Classmate of James C. Biggs Applauds His Appointment as Solicitor General.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Permit me a word of congratulation to the administration upon its appointment of Honorable James Crawford Biggs, of North Carolina, as Solicitor General. For the information of the general public it may be said that the Solicitor General is one of the most important officers of the Government, as he assists the Attorney General in all his duties, succeeds him in case of vacancy, absence, or disability, and has charge of the business and appears for and represents the Government in the Supreme Court of the United States.

The writer and Judge Biggs grew up as children and neighbors in the beautiful little town of Oxford, N. C. As boys we were classmates at the Horner Military School.

Young Biggs was regarded by pupils and professors as a model student, and an exemplar in all the manly virtues. He afterward graduated with unusual distinction at the University of North Carolina, and then entered upon his career as a lawyer. He has been an ornament and an honor to the profession, both as lawyer and as judge of the superior court of his native State. He was also for some time a professor of law at his alma mater, and is the author of some legal works. He rendered eminent services to the Government under the Wilson administration as Special Assistant Attorney General in the prosecution of important suits against the Southern Pacific Railroad.

Best of all, however, and more important than merely brains and professional achievements, he has character, and is a man of moral courage and integrity, which are virtues that are greatly needed in our public men at this time of general moral decline in social and political life.

No One Man Can Cope With Europe in Tariff Matters, Says Bostonian.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: President Roosevelt has been right most of the time in asking for autocratic power to enable him to settle perplexing problems with the least possible delay. Had he depended upon Congress to cooperate with him heaven only knows when we would have got anywhere.

However, when the President requests full authority to negotiate tariff treaties with foreign powers, as he now has done, it is time to refuse his request. No one man in this country is capable of meeting and coping with the intriguing methods of the European powers. From the Treaty of Versailles to the present day, including the more recent attempts to sidestep debt payments, our friends (?) on the opposite side of the Atlantic have demonstrated that they can not be fully trusted, and consequently it will require the united efforts of the best brains in America to prevent them from putting it all over us in the settlement of tariff schedules. Let us therefore hope that Congress will say "no" when it comes to granting the President power to meet the foreign representatives single-handed.

Open Whisky Drinking in Cafeterias Will Bring Reaction After Repeal.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I hope you will allow me space to agree with the correspondent in last Sunday's Post who thinks we must restore the old-time saloon for the well-ordered consumption of "strong drink" when it comes back. As he indicates, present arrangements for beer drinking are questionable; and certainly, as was proved in the past, we must see to it that whisky drinking is sequestered when repeal of the prohibition amendment takes place; that is, we don't want it to be a flop.

Of course the saloon should be much more strictly regulated than it used to be. But if the licensed cafeteria takes the place of the licensed saloon, then it will only be a few years till the eighteenth amendment will come back.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

A GENTLEMAN SNORING.

We'd sat in the smoker and chattered awhile
Of the troubles besetting the Nation today
And then as we walked through the green-curtained aisle
We heard a loud snore from a man tucked away.
And I said to my friend: "Although mighty banks fall,
There's one chap, at least, who's not worried at all!"

We'd talked of our losses; our bank accounts gone;
Bewailed the depression in moments of gloom.
We'd recited our troubles (and who now has none?)
And filled with forebodings that small Pullman room,
But I chuckled to think as I sought lower four,
The world is all right for the chap who can snore.

That man may have burdens of sorrow to bear,
His bank may have told him he can't have a cent;
But just at this moment his prospects are fair.
He may wake up to worry, but now he's content!
When a man snores like that in the dead of the night
For eight hours at least everything is all right.

ECONOMY is a question of Performance, not Price

Women who know the price of everything and the value of nothing, are false economists. They waste money in experimenting with beauty preparations that are "bargains" or in purchasing untried preparations.
Elizabeth Arden's Preparations are always a sound investment, for they work. They beautify. They justify every claim made for them. They are not the creations of a group of chemists working out a new theory, but of a brilliant, capable woman whose life has been devoted to a real interest in making women lovelier, and who has never offered anything to the public which she has not thoroughly tested on herself first. Use Elizabeth Arden preparations faithfully and be sure of beauty.
Here are Miss Arden's essential Preparations
CLEANSING CREAM...Melts into the pores, rids them of dust and impurities, leaves skin soft and receptive.
SKIN TONIC...Tones, firms and whitens the skin. Use with and after Cleansing Cream.
VELVA CREAM...A delicate cream that smooths and softens the skin without fattening.
ORANGE SKIN FOOD...A richer cream for thin faces to keep the skin full and firm.
POUDRE D'ILLUSION...A lovely powder for those who demand ultra quality. So soft, so fine, so pure that it protects the skin. Twelve enchanting tints.

Telephone questions on The Meanderer's column to The Washington Post, National 4205, Extention 19; or address The Meanderer, The Washington Post, inclosing self-addressed, stamped envelope for reply.

Many of the neat and attractive young paraders in the spring style showings who are examples of what the well-dressed boys should wear must have found their suits at a store on Seventh street. The Meanderer saw three-piece suits there that are fairly irresistible to mothers of small sons, of ages 4 to 10. The suits include coat, pants and blouse for $2.94. The suits may be of flannel or novelty mixtures. Their styles may be Rugby—with a collar on the coat—or the collarless Eaton coat for the smaller boy, to be worn with the collar of the blouse outside the coat. Caps to match the suits sell for 79 cents.

Cotton covert cloth suits, newly displayed in the boys' wear section of a Fourteenth street store, are about the sturdiest garments of their kind the Meanderer has ever seen. "Bar tacks," or stitching with stout thread at right angles with the seams, prevent any ripping of these garments. The covert cloth is in dark shades, attractively self-striped.

Boy Scout clothes in complete array are shown in at least two Washington department stores, with salesmen in charge able to outfit boys in the regulation Scout manner.

Boys who accompany their mothers into the department store showing the covert suits will want to see the airplane builder sets of many sizes that are selling rapidly. All parts for the making of the small planes—priced from 25 cents up—are included in the packages.

Spring foods that have appetizing appeal as well as health value include some special Smyrna figs that are vacuum packed in tins. Many shoppers object to figs packed in any container other than tin. These foods sell in a health food shop on upper Fourteenth street. Some pure fruit juices with tonic value—with no alcohol content—are interesting for the spring diet. They sell also in the Fourteenth street health food shop and include blackberry, currant, blueberry and cherry juices.

A "coffee dispenser," which is a glass coffee container with a knob arrangement, which brings out a tablespoonful of coffee at each turn, shows in the housewares department of a big F street department store. The coffee so measured does not spill. The glass container is said to keep the coffee strictly fresh, as the container is opened only slightly for a few seconds and exposes to the air only the coffee to be used.

Near the "coffee dispenser," said to be a great improvement for the kitchen, are some new-styled vegetable graters guaranteed never to cut the users' fingers, and guaranteed never to be difficult to clean. The graters may be used on a large number of different foods, as the demonstration now in progress is proving.

WHAT'S GOOD TO EAT

GOOD COOKIES IN A JAR STILL SPELL HOME TO MILLIONS

By ANN BARRETT

TIME has not dimmed the romance of the cookie cult. Youngsters bounding in from school with ravenous appetites can still find a cookie jar to raid. And older folks, seized at midnight with the longing for a bedtime snack, can likely find the same means for comforting themselves.

This appears to be pretty good news to a large number of people. Including even the new Secretary of War, George H. Dern, who has a special yen for sugar cookies—thin and crisp. And songstress, Ruth Etting, who goes so far as to say she likes cookies better than any other sweet and can eat them before, after, if, when and how!

So if you're a cookie-fan, too, just let yourself go. On plump drop cookies, when you're in a hurry. On rolled and cut cookies when you have more time. On those magic refrigerator cookies that you mix one day, make into a roll and chill; then next day slice paper-thin and bake.

Hints On Making.

By the way, this trick of chilling cookies thoroughly is a slick way of making the mixture firm enough to be rolled out and cut nicely without adding more flour (which toughens cookies). Other useful points to remember in cookie-making are: Use pastry flour, sifted before measuring. Have your oven pretty hot for most cookies—from 375 to 425. Leave at least 2 inches between drop cookies, so they won't run in together. And finally, always remove thin, rich cookies from the pan while warm to prevent breaking.

Hermits.

As an example of drop cookies I'll give you a recipe for those delicious, spicy concoctions so bumpy with raisins and nuts some people call them rocks.

First cream together ¼ cup butter or other fat, and ¾ cup brown sugar. Then add 1 tablespoon milk, 1 well-beaten egg, and mix well. Next, combine 1½ cups sifted pastry flour with ½ teaspoon soda, ¼ teaspoon nutmeg, ¼ teaspoon cinnamon, and stir this into first mixture. Then add ½ cup currants, ½ cup chopped raisins, ½ cup chopped walnuts and 1 teaspoon grated lemon rind.

Drop this mixture from a teaspoon onto a well-greased cookie sheet—2 inches apart. Bake 8 to 10 minutes in a fairly hot oven (375). This makes about 24 cookies.

Soft Molasses Cookies.

For a rolled and cut cookie, I'll give you an old-time farm recipe for molasses cookies made with brown sugar and sour milk so as to keep them soft—if you can keep them at all!

These cookies start with 1 cup of fat (most any kind), creamed thoroughly with 1 cup brown sugar. Add 1 egg (well-beaten) and mix well. Then combine 6 cups pastry flour with 1 teaspoon soda, ¾ teaspoon salt, and 1 teaspoon ginger. Add this to first mixture alternately with 1 cup molasses and ½ cup thick, sour milk. Then chill this mixture till it is stiff, roll out (with as little flour as possible) ¼ or 1-8 inch thick. Cut with plain or scalloped cutter and bake on a greased sheet 15 minutes at about 375 F. If you should want to change the spicing of these cookies by using mixed ginger, cinnamon and clove, you'd find that good, too.

Butterscotch Refrigerator Cookies.

For refrigerator cookies you'd find it hard to beat these nutted, wafery creations with the delicate, buttery flavor. Notice that you need butter to get this flavor. And you need to chop the nuts very fine, so they won't get in the way of your knife and break your mixture when you come to slice it.

Otherwise, here's how: Cream ¼ cup butter thoroughly. Then gradually cream into it 1 cup brown sugar. Add 1 well-beaten egg, and beat mixture thoroughly with a spoon. Next, combine 1¾ cups sifted pastry flour with 1½ teaspoons soda, 1½ teaspoons cream of tartar, and ¼ teaspoon salt. Stir this into first mixture. Then add ½ cup walnuts (finely chopped), and 1 teaspoon vanilla.

Then shape this mixture with your hands into a long roll not more than 1½ inches in diameter. Wrap this in heavy waxed paper and chill in refrigerator at least 8 hours. Then (with a sharp, thin-bladed knife) slice this roll as thin as possible. Lay slices at least 2 inches apart on a greased cookie sheet. Bake about 10 minutes at 425, removing from pan with spatula while still warm. (Note: If you don't bake these all up at once, return mixture to refrigerator so it will keep stiff for good slicing.)

Send for More Recipes.

Maybe you've guessed by this time that I'm a cookie-fan, myself! I'd like to run on and on, giving the recipes that time has proved to be favorites. Ginger snaps, brownies, sour-cream drop cookies, oatmeal drop cookies, sugar cookies both soft and crisp, pin-wheel refrigerator cookies, macaroons and rich buttering cookies that just melt in your mouth. Since space is up here, I've packed better than a baker's dozen of these favorite recipes into a special, new 5-page bulletin I hope you'll enjoy having. Please send 3-cent stamped, addressed envelope.

Interpreting the Mode

By DARE

An evening gown with jacket that is all sleeves, which ties at the back in two places. (From Paris.)

ALL of my friends are doing their own housework. Not that I advise this—frankly, I think it is wrong both to themselves and to the maids that they should be employing. However—if you do do your own housework, there are things to consider, things, things——.

One lovely lady I know makes a play of her housework—dressing up in houseworking clothes as though she were playing at dolls, or getting ready for a masquerade. She has fun—and her friends have fun—and woe to the unwary visitor who drops in at the wrong hour! The visitor just naturally finds him or herself with a dustmop or a dishtowel in hand, and the visit goes right on!

This is one way to turn drudgery into fun. And the most important thing of all, the thing that every woman who suddenly finds herself maidless must remember, is order. It is not the cleaning up that one should learn to do, but the keeping up——. One gets into the habit of dropping everything where it falls and letting maids pick things up—and that is the one thing that one must not do when there isn't any maid—hubby and visitors included.

And for dressing to one's housework—that is important. House dresses today are simply cunning, that's all one can say about them. They flatter and fit, look like work and act well under work—and wear well under cleaning. Practical housework-ing togs one must choose, too, not the fussy and play-like ones which one is forever washing and ironing! Practical and chic ones, some for real work and some for off hours.

* * * *

For just a certain type of lovely lady, the evening outfit I sketched today is especially designed. One would have to be able to wear it—and handle it, much in the manner that one has to handle a shawl—with ease and grace. Although I must admit that the couturiere knew what she was about when she tied the sleeves together at the waist and back of the neck!

The whole was white, and the dress beneath the wrap was as severe as anyone could wish—but the sleeve-wrap gives it a soft and almost negligee appearance. Odd, and lovely.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

SHALL THE BABY BOSS?

ONE of the very bad habits of babyhood is holding the breath. The mother may be unhappy when her baby develops other bad habits, but this is one that throws her into a panic and sends her to some one looking for help.

The foundation of this habit is anger. The baby has a temper tantrum and holds his breath as a part of the performance. As a rule the basis of anger in a baby is restraint or frustration. In one of his temper tantrums he discovers that his outbreak has won for him what he wants. Presently he tries it again. He finds that it works. If nature is allowed to take its course almost before the parent knows what is up the baby has the breath-holding habit. He holds his breath until he becomes livid. Even unconsciousness and convulsions are not beyond the range of experience.

The remedy is very simple and is not on sale at the drug store. It consists in throwing a little cold water into the child's face or against the body. Of the two, the face is the better, though not quite so effective.

The proper time to begin this method of treatment is in one of the earlier manifestations—the earlier the better. The stronger a habit has grown the more severe and the more sustained must be the treatment used to break it.

It is objected to this method of treatment that there is such a thing as a thymic baby and that severe shock may cause the death of such a child. Maybe so, but certainly the small amount of shock needed if the treatment is used early is safe enough and the seriousness of the situation where a baby has been long neglected and his personality is pretty well ruined by bad habits may make it advisable to take a chance.

Holding the breath is but one of a group of bad habits which generally results from bad training. Of course, inheritance may be a factor. A baby starts with no habits except a few simple ones such as sleeping. Nevertheless he inherits from some ancestor a tendency to react in a certain way to the things about. Parents who are instable in their nervous systems are apt to endow the children with nervous instability. But most of the transfer of qualities from parent to child results from association rather than inheritance. Living with a badly balanced mother is harder on the kid than is being of her flesh.

The training of babies in habits starts on the first day of life. This training may be either right or wrong, mixed right and wrong. The customs of the people take care of some of this training. But the greater part is the duty and responsibility of the parent. There should be conscious, intelligent, thought-out efforts to train exerted by the parent, and this effort should start at the beginning.

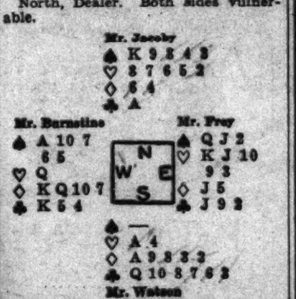
ONE OF THE "SWING" HANDS.

IN the final match for the Reisinger Team-of-Four Trophy, played between the Crockford's Club team and the Bid-Rite team, the latter won by a score of 1890 points. The following hand accounted for 1310 of these points:

North, Dealer. Both sides vulnerable.



At the first table Mr. Jacoby and Mr. Watson were playing North and South against Mr. Burnside and Mr. Frey. The bidding proceeded as follows:

North	East	South	West
Pass	Pass	1◇	1♠
Dbl.	Pass	2♣	Pass
2◇	Pass	Pass	Dbl.
Pass	Pass	Pass

The Opening lead was the singleton Queen of hearts, which was won by Declarer with the Ace. The Ace of clubs was then taken out of Dummy and the spades and clubs cross-ruffed. The result of the hand was that Mr. Watson made two diamonds, which scored 90 points, the new scoring not permitting any bonus for fulfilling a double contract.

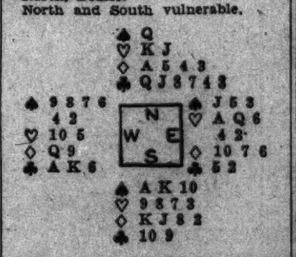
At table No. 2 Mr. Lochridge, in the South position, opened the bidding with one club, Mr. Gottlieb, sitting West, overcalled with a spade, which Mr. Schenken, North, passed. Mr. Lightner, sitting East, made a free Raise to two spades, which bid is slightly open to question. After South passed, Mr. Gottlieb carried the bidding to four spades, which was doubled by Mr. Schenken. Due to the unfortunate distribution of the cards, Mr. Gottlieb was forced to go down 1400, although Double Dummy play could have held the set to 900.

It will be noticed that if the cards had all been favorably placed, four spades could have been made by East and West.

TOMORROW'S HAND.

If North and South reach a contract of three notrump on this hand, should East and West further defend in the bidding?

North, Dealer.
North and South vulnerable.



The answer will be given in tomorrow's article.

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE

"ARIES."

IF APRIL 18 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 6:35 a. m. to 8 a. m., from 10:50 a. m. to 12 noon and from 8:30 p. m. to 9:30 p. m. The danger periods are from 2 p. m. to 3:15 p. m., and from 6 p. m. to 7 p. m.

Influences operating on this April 18 will act against the one who takes risks of a physical or business nature. Luck will very decidedly run against the gambler. Do not count on people to react normally to any set of facts or circumstances; actions will be unreasoned.

The child born on this April 18 probably will be firm in nature and energetic. He will be inclined to be domineering, but at the same time possessed of sufficient tact to handle himself well in any situation, whether it be going for or against him. Splendid mental development.

If April 18 is the date of your birth, you will never allow any one to "walk over" you. You are not an antagonistic sort of person, but when a fight is brought to your door, you are not above relishing it. In the handling of your personal and business matters, you much prefer to sit down quietly and discuss them with your opponents. You are willing to submit them to arbitration, but if you find it necessary to fight to maintain your position or your rights, you can become a most unmerciful and even a cruel enemy. In purely family concerns, you are business-like and your relatives may deem you a "hard sort of person." On the contrary, you are very understanding, kind and loving; invariably you seek the common good.

Born on April 18, your interests will be in lines that appeal to a vast number of people. You are unselfish and you will be most successful in life if you can find yourself some kind of work that will have for its aim the betterment or welfare of a group. You keenly enjoy music and the finer arts and take great delight in healthy and wholesome home surroundings. Your mate and your children ever come first and you always strive to give them all the things vital to their health, happiness and advancement in life.

Successful people born on April 18:
Henry P. Tappan, educator.
Sanford E. Church, jurist and politician.
Beriah Magoffin, Governor of Kentucky.
John Henry Dolph, artist.

Guiding Your Child

By MRS. AGNES LYNE

CHILDREN obey easily and happily only when they feel confidence in and affection for those who tell them what to do.

This confidence and affection depend upon the child's feeling that his grown-ups are truly fond of him and kind, that they really do know what is best, that they keep him comfortable most of the time, and that the same things happen at the same time day after day.

This state of affairs makes the child feel good will toward his elders and with it a desire to win and keep their approval. It makes him want to do as they wish because in his experience doing so is associated with a feeling of general well-being.

From this, as the child leaves the nursery, it is not such a great step to wanting to do right merely because it makes him feel satisfied with himself. In other words, he accepts for himself the standards to which he has been held. Thus he makes a beginning of self-discipline—the only sort of discipline that makes for good behavior after the pressure of authority is removed.

Every mother should aim to get voluntary obedience. To this end she must refrain from discipline by threats. She must punish judiciously, preferably by small doses of disapproval, which remain effective while cruder punishments tend to make the child's feelings callous.

She must make only reasonable demands while the child can meet without strain and without making too great efforts of self-control. She must try to make interesting and pleasant the routine which is best.

She must remain patient and reasonable when the child is impatient and unreasonable, and let him feel that love and approval are his the moment he tries to be good.

Radio Dial Flashes

By ROBERT D. HEINL

HERE is our idea of the way to get news on a fine spring day, when nobody feels like working.

A friend drops in.

"How many radio sets do you suppose they have at the White House?" he asks. "I'll bet they've been showered with a million of them!"

"That would be interesting to know," we reply, reaching for the telephone.

We call National 1414 (the Executive offices). A sweet feminine voice answers—that of Miss Louise Hackmeister, brought here by President Roosevelt, first woman telephone operator the White House has ever had.

R. D. H.: "May I speak to Mr. Stephen T. Early, the President's news secretary?"

A slight pause. Then:

S. T. E.: "Hello, Bob!"

R. D. H.: "Hello Steve! Who at the White House could tell me how many radio sets you have over there now, how much the President and his family listen to the radio, and so on?"

S. T. E: "I can tell you that myself. There are three sets. There is one in the President's study—the oval room on the second floor of the Executive Mansion. Another is in Mrs. Roosevelt's sitting room. The third is in my office so I can tune in on the news flashes."

R. D. H.: "Do President and Mrs. Roosevelt spend much time listening?"

S. T. E.: "Not much. Both are very fond of the radio, but they are simply too busy to tune it on. They seldom have the opportunity to listen."

R. D. H.: "Thanks, Steve!"

S. T. E.: "O. K., Bob!"

NEITHER did President and Mrs. Hoover have "about a million" radio sets.

How many were presented to them is not known, but at the time they left the White House they had eight radio receivers. One of them was in the President's study, another in Mrs. Hoover's sitting room and the rest scattered about the White House.

Larry Richey also had one in his office. It was the first thing carried out that memorable Christmas Eve when the White House offices were threatened with destruction by fire.

The Hoovers had a set at Camp Rapidan, but it was seldom used because of bad static conditions which prevailed in that mountainous section most of the time.

A PROGRAM direct from Jerusalem will be heard when Field Marshal Edmund Lord Allenby's address today at the dedication of the new home of the Jerusalem Y. M. C. A. is picked up and rebroadcast for listeners in the United States.

The occasion also will mark the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the International Committee of Young Men's Christian Associations of the United States and Canada, and addresses of leaders in this country will be included in the program, which will be broadcast over WMAL at 12:30 p. m., E. S. T.

The broadcast will open in New York with brief addresses by Dr. John H. Finley, Dr. Solomon Lowenstein and Maj. Gen. John F. O'Ryan, representing the Protestant, Jewish, and Catholic elements in the United States.

"Lives at Stake," a series of dramatizations of the feats of national heroes, makes its bow over WRC at 10 o'clock tonight. Actual events that carried famous persons into the fold of popular heroes will provide the subjects for the broadcasts which means that radio listeners will live through the moments of daring and danger as did the heroes themselves.

Sergt. Alvin York, termed by Marshal Foch and Gen. Pershing the outstanding hero of the World War, is the subject of the opening broadcast and a radio cast will unfold the story of this stolid, slow-spoken son of the South.

The actors, with suitable incidental music by a large orchestra, will portray the days in York's life immediately preceding his entry into the service and will follow him through his training and experiences overseas to the day when he captured, single-handed, a company of German soldiers. Later listeners will return with York to his mountain home.

ARTHUR KROCK, Washington correspondent for the New York Times, and Dr. E. Pendleton Herring, of Harvard University, will address the WMAL audience during the broadcast of the You and Your Government program at 7:15 p. m. The subject to be discussed is "Parties and Pressure Groups."

In the second of his new series of symphonic concerts, Dr. Walter Damrosch will present a program illustrating the contrasts in temperament and ideas between Mozart and Berlioz (WRC, 10:30 p. m.).

Sally Belle Cox, champion baby-cryer heard whenever the wails of an infant are required in the studios, discovered her unique talent while employed in a Midwestern orphanage. A squawling baby who wouldn't be pacified inspired Miss Cox to imitate her cries. Instantly the fretful one was intrigued, and Miss Cox found herself possessor of a gift which later she was able to sell to the National Broadcasting Co.

The pageantry of setting sail from Honolulu Harbor will be described for the WJSV audience at 11 o'clock tonight, when the S. S. Lurline, new Matson liner, makes its maiden departure from Hawaii. The broadcast will be carried over the Pacific by short wave and fed into the network from San Francisco.

When a boat arrives at or departs from Honolulu, it is an "occasion" in every sense of the word. A large part of the population lines the docks. The Royal Hawaiian Serenaders are on hand to greet the newcomers or bid others a musical goodby to the strains of "Aloha." Young natives add to the merriment by diving into the harbor in pursuit of small coins, and as each passenger reaches the gangplank a lei is thrown over his shoulder. In addition to the description of the scene, there will be interviews with several of the officers and passengers on board the Lurline.

COL. SAMUEL REBER, who passed away at Walter Reed Hospital on Sunday, was a radio pioneer. He was chief signal officer of the Army during the time of the trouble down on the Mexican border in 1914-15. Later he directed many experiments in radio communication.

Upon his retirement from the Army, he joined the Radio Corporation of America as chief foreign representative. He was a vice president of the Radio Communications Co., Inc. He was connected with both companies at the time of his death.

Dr. Francis Pendleton Gaines, president of Washington and Lee University, will make the principal address during the ceremonies attending the unveiling of a bust of Cyrus H. McCormick in the Old Hall, Virginia House of Delegates, in Richmond today. The program will be carried over WMAL at 3:15 p. m. John Garland Pollard, Governor of Virginia, will preside and will introduce the donors of the bust, Mrs. Emmons Blaine, Cyrus McCormick, jr., and Harold McCormick. McCormick was only 22 years old when he invented his grain-harvesting machine which changed the course of empire for the American farmer.

Addresses before the American Legion's mass meeting against the recognition of Soviet Russia will be carried over WMAL and WJSV at 9:30 o'clock tonight.

Speakers are expected to include Louis Johnson, national commander of the legion; William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor; Representative Hamilton Fish, jr., of New York; Senator W. H. King, of Utah, and possibly Senator Copeland, of New York.

Graham McNamee made a slip once and said "gasoleon," and Ed Wynn never lets him forget it. In fact, to keep Graham's memory fresh, Ed presented him with a new hat—on the order of a policeman's—with the word "gasoleon" in quotes, set off with gold braid.

Stocks Defeated in Advance As Quarter's Earnings Fall

Midsession Rise Is Lost on Mounting Sale of 1,005,416 Shares.

New York, April 17 (A.P.).—Reactions were rather general in financial markets today. Sugar forged ahead to new 1933 highs and silver futures improved, but most other commodities evinced a slackening of speculative ardor and under this negative example stocks softened.

Uncertainties as to inflation, which has become the chief topic of discussion and argument in financial circles, together with a few first-quarter earnings statements, some profit taking and, presumably, increased offerings here and there for the short account contributed to the sag of stocks.

Declining tendencies were pronounced in the early dealings and again toward the close when rails weakened. Between times there was a fair recovery from the initial letdown. Sales totaled 1,005,416 shares.

Net losses ranged up to 2 and 3 points or more. American Telephone had another day of heavy going and was down 2½ net. Allied Chemical's loss was 3½, while Santa Fe, Union Pacific and Corn Products yielded about 2 to 3. Several rails and a number of industrials lost a point or thereabouts; steel issues, however, attained mild firmness as word was received that U. S. Steel's current operations had risen to 21 per cent of capacity, the best level since March, 1932. A few commodity shares, including metals, foods and oils, likewise finished higher.

Du Pont's first quarter earnings, including the return from the General Motors investment, were equal to 35 cents a share compared with 74 cents a year ago. The stock dropped 2 points. Seaboard Oil, up a point, responded to its report of 24 cents a share for the first three months against 14 cents in the same 1932 period.

Sentiment at U. S. Steel's annual meeting seemed to reflect a conservative cheerfulness, especially Chairman Taylor's expressed belief that "we are on the way to better things;" the corporation's first quarter income figures will be announced a week from tomorrow when action is also due on the preferred dividend, few guesses are being heard as to what the board will do in this connection; three months ago 50 cents was ordered.

THE MARKETS AT A GLANCE

What the Stock Market Did

	Mon.	Sat.
Advances	144	261
Declines	308	151
Unchanged	127	131
Total issues	579	543

Stocks.

General reactions in commodities and other lines gave stocks a blow and the market closed 1.1 points down. There was a midsession rally, but profit taking and several detracting factors caused a final decline. Sales advanced in volume to 1,005,416 shares.

Bonds.

Leading loans sagged three-tenths of a point average after cross-purpose dealing. The session verged on dullness. Trading dwindled in volume to $8,211,000.

Curb.

An indecisive trend marked curb trading as prices reacted. Trading was dull. The turnover declined to 135,000 shares.

Wheat.

Lower prices for wheat and corn were recorded as speculative demand relaxed. Oats gained. May wheat sold at 60¾ to 60⅞ cents.

Cotton.

Later Southern selling changed a fair rally into losses. July dropped to 6.75 and the general market declined 17 to 21 points. Red Cross cotton was blamed in the drop.

CURB PRICES REACT IN DULLER TRADING

Indecision Marks Trend as Sales Volume Drops to 135,000 Shares.

New York, April 17 (A.P.).—The Curb Market was reactionary in spots today, but its general trend was marked by indecision. Trading was comparatively dull with sales aggregating 135,000 shares, compared with 179,000 last Thursday, the final five-hour session of the week.

Most of the trading favorites slipped back a little on professional selling and realizing prompted by the notion that a technical setback was in order following the substantial advance last week.

The losses ran from 1 to 2 points in such issues as American Gas & Electric, Consolidated Gas of Baltimore, Aluminum Co. of America and Deere & Co. Electric Bond & Share was a firm spot in utilities, gaining fractionally. Creole Petroleum climbed a point and Lake Shore Mines, Ltd., gained slightly more. Great Atlantic & Pacific common dropped nearly 7 points on a small trade.

Steel Output Gains In Cleveland Area

Automotive and General Needs Boost Capacity to 20 Per Cent.

Cleveland, April 17 (A.P.).—Automotive and general miscellaneous requirements lifted the steel operating rate 3 points to 20½ per cent last week, with indications of a further gain of a point or two this week, the magazine Steel said today. Consumer interest, which for several weeks has been strongest in raw materials—notably pig iron and scrap—has spread to finished steel products, the magazine said.

In fact, the magazine continued, all the principal consumer classifications except the building industry have participated.

"The Erie's order for 24,549 tons of rails, its inquiry for more than 4,000 tons of track fastenings; the Missouri Pacific's inquiry for 7,000 tons of tie plates, and the New York Central's authorization of 9,000 tons of rails are believed forerunners of slightly improved rail buying," the publication said.

Business Throughout Nation Reports Increased Activity

Peoria, Ill., April 17 (A.P.).—The local distillery of the U. S. Industrial Alcohol Co. resumed production today, using 4,000 to 5,000 bushels of corn daily for its estimated 10,000-gallon daily capacity.

Minneapolis, Minn., April 17 (A.P.). Directors of the Ninth Federal Reserve District reported today that marketing of bread, wheat, flour, cattle, sheep and linseed products increased last month.

St. Joseph, Mo., April 17 (A.P.).—The local plant of the National Biscuit Co. is 30 carloads behind in filling orders for pretzels, officials said today, despite 120 workers added to its force in the last month.

Birmingham, Ala., April 17 (A.P.).—The Ensley plant of the Tennessee Coal, Iron & Railroad Co. called back more than 700 men today for a week's work in its open hearth furnaces. Ingot production will be increased from 12½ per cent to 20 per cent of capacity.

Lisbury, Md., April 17 (A.P.).—Chesapeake Bay fishermen noted today they were still unable to overtake the demand for crabs—a favorite dish with beer, steamed or deviled—and prices have jumped from $1.25 to $3 a barrel.

Milwaukee, Wisc., April 1 (A.P.).—The Milwaukee road announced today that operation of its West Milwaukee shops has been increased almost to the 1929 level, with 800 men at work. The outlook is that the present operating level will be maintained until at least June 1.

Receiver Is Sought For S. A. Railways

Public Utility Holding Unit Linked in Complaint Against Road.

Wilmington, Del., April 17 (A.P.). Appointment of receivers for the South American Railways Company and the Public Utility Holding Corporation of America, is asked in two bills of complaint filed in chancery court here by Joseph Greene, of Brooklyn, N. Y.

Mr. Greene, who states he is the owner of a $2,000 6 per cent gold note of the corporation which fell due on Saturday, alleges both concerns are insolvent and unable to meet maturing obligations.

He states in the bill aginst South American Railways that substantially all the assets of the corporation consist of obligations in the Ferrocarril Terminal Central De Buenos Aires (Buenos Aires Central Railroad and Terminal Company).

These obligations, say the bill, are $14,500,000 8 per cent gold notes due January 15, 1933, and $2,996,771 7 per cent credit notes due to same date. The Buenos Aires Company, the bill states, operates a subway in Buenos Aires, a railroad system in the Argentine Republic and a trolley system in Buenos Aires.

BONDS' FIRM STAND YIELDS NEAR CLOSE

Trading Verges on Dullness as Sales Dwindle to $8,211,000.

New York, April 17 (A.P.).—Bonds worked at cross purposes today and various corporation leaders, after mulling about nervously, closed the session with losses ranging from fractions to 2 or more points.

Although profit-taking was apparent in most of the recently firm categories, trading usually verged on dullness. Sales totaled only $8,211,000 par value. The average for 60 domestic corporate issues was off three-tenths of a point.

After displaying a firm front for a week or more, the United States Government list eased off moderately. Liberty fourth 4¼s, the most active of this group, yielded 6-32ds of a point and some of the Treasuries sagged 8-32ds to 21 32ds.

Secondary rails were a bit erratic. Principal losers in this section included some liens of Baltimore & Ohio, Canadian Pacific, Burlington, Great Northern, Missouri Pacific, New York Central, Nickel Plate, Southern Pacific and Union Pacific. At the same time some bonds of Rock Island, Cleveland Union Terminal, K. C. Ft. Scott & Memphis, Louisville & Nashville, Reading, and Southern exhibited resistance.

Among the utility and industrial losers were bonds of American & Foreign Power, American Smelting, Chile Copper, Columbia Gas, Goodrich, Goodyear, Hudson Coal, International Telephone, Phillips Petroleum, Pure Oil, Remington Rand, Shell Union Oil, Standard Oil of New York, Texas Corp, and U. S. Rubber. Issues of Illinois Steel, Remington Arms and Western Union firmed.

Foreign obligations were quiet and irregular. German government loans were steady to firm, but some of the Reich Corporation issues were heavy.

Visible Supply of Grain.

New York, April 17 (A.P.).—The visible supply of American grain shows the following changes, in bushels: Wheat decreased 1,822,000; corn decreased 1,123,000; oats decreased 225,000; rye increased 107,000; barley decreased 5,000.

Hop Prices Steady.

New York, April 17 (A.P.).—Hops steady; Pacific Coast, 1932, prime to choice, 38@40; medium to prime, 36@38; 1931, prime to choice, 31@33; medium to prime, 30@32.

Dollar Continues Rally On European Markets

New York, April 17 (A.P.).—Although most European foreign exchange markets continued closed today in observance of the Easter holidays, the American dollar displayed further rallying tendencies in limited trading done in New York.

The British pound sterling dropped 2⅝cents at $3.45⅝, for cables, while Dutch guilders lost 10 points at 40.54 cents, Swiss francs were off 16 points at 19.44 cents and the three Scandinavians yielded 10 points each. French francs were unchanged at 3.95 cents and Canadian dollars were fractionally lower.

On the other hand, German marks recovered 4 points at a cable rate of 23.94 cents, Belgian belgas were up 2 points at 14.02 cents and Italian lire, Spanish pesetas and Shanghai dollars steadied.

Court Denies Bar To Film Litigants

Writ to Restrain Actions Against Paramount Publix Is Refused.

New York, April 17 (A.P.).—The United States Circuit Court of Appeals unanimously denied today a motion for a writ of prohibition restraining any litigants from proceeding further in the equity receivership against Paramount Publix Corporation.

The requested writ, which was denied in full, would also have restrained litigants from electing trustees in bankruptcy in the voluntary proceeding based upon the corporation's own petition.

The decision removed all obstacles to election of trustees at this afternoon's meeting of creditors in the Federal building. The writ of prohibition was asked for by Arthur D. Gochenour, of the Reimar Holding Co., Inc., the estate of Augusta L. Ernst and others.

STEEL MARKETS.

New York, April 17 (A.P.).—Steel prices per 100 pounds, f. o. b., Pittsburgh:

Blue annealed sheets, hot rolled, 150; galvanized sheets, 270; black sheets, hot rolled, 200; steel bars, 160.

U. S. TREASURY RECEIPTS.

(Associated Press.)

Treasury receipts for April 14 were $3,768,327.62; expenditures, $11,901,872.05; balance, $484,925,648.53. Custom duties for 14 days of April, $8,246,914.28.

WHEAT VALUES DROP AS DEMAND RELAXES

Traders Betray Indications of Over-Buying; Corn Down; Oats Up.

Chicago, April 17 (A.P.).—Lower prices for wheat and corn today accompanied an abrupt curtailment of general speculative demand.

Wheat traders in particular were wary on account of indications that purchasing of late had been overdone and that uncertainties of foreign exchange rates might become acute with reopening of overseas grain markets tomorrow, following the Easter holidays. The British pound sterling today underwent 3 points tumble.

Wheat closed unsettled, ¼ to ⅝ under Saturday's finish; corn, ¼ to ½ down; oats, ⅛ off to ⅛ up, and provisions unchanged to 5 cents lower.

Adverse Crop Reports.

More than 1½ cents setback in wheat values took place, and the losses were but partly overcome later by a flood of adverse crop reports from Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas.

Some crop specialists suggested that 15,000,000 bushels decrease of output in Kansas alone had been brought about by sandstorms and lack of moisture since the latest Government report was compiled.

Wichita, Kans., wired that rains now in western Kansas would only improve a few fields at best, and that crop estimates for Kansas as a whole were being reduced as low as 40,000,000 bushels.

Talk Loses Power.

Although wheat price rallies resulted from crop developments, especially during the last part of the day, it was noticeable that damage reports and information talk appeared largely to have lost power to stimulate buyers. Absence of any export business in North American wheat acted as a drag on the market, and the handicap was increased by word of timely moisture in the Canadian prairie provinces.

An opposite factor was active buying for domestic millers and a decrease of 1,923,000 bushels in the United States wheat visible supply.

Corn and oats averaged lower, responsive to wheat action, notwithstanding announcement that 1,000,000 bushels of corn would clear for Eastern ports this week with the opening of lake navigation.

Provisions were irregular, governed mainly by changes in hog values.

COTTON RALLY LOST ON SOUTHERN SALES

July Closes at 6.75 as General Market Dips 17 to 21 Points.

New York, April 17 (A.P.).—Cotton revised its trend today, selling off about $1 a bale.

July contracts, which had closed at 6.94 on Thursday the final trading day last week broke to 6.75 during today's trading and closed at that figure, with the general market closing barely steady at net declines of 17 to 21 points.

Initial prices were 2 to 4 points lower. The continent was a buyer here and there was a moderate demand from the trade, but active months began to sag early in sympathy with early declines in grain and stock markets.

Fair Rally Lost.

The market had a fair rally from its early dip, but prices turned downward again near the close on Southern selling.

Prices made new lows for the day in the late trading with May declining to 6.58 and October to 6.94, closing at these figures.

Increased selling from Southern sources which some local traders thought possibly might be against so-called "Red Cross cotton" was a factor on the decline, while last week's advance had evidently eased the technical position.

Talk of possible inflationary measures was less aggressive than it was on last week's advance.

Exports today 21,581 making 6,408,544 so far this season. Port receipts 11,998. U. S. port stocks 4,267,744.

Cottonseed Oil.

Bleachable cottonseed oil was dull with sales of only one contract, or 150 barrels. Prices showed little change and at the close were 1 to 5 points lower in sympathy with the unsettlement in cotton. Bleachable spot closed 3.90, May 4.04, July 4.24, September 4.40, October 4.42.

STEEL SOUNDS NOTE OF HOPE AT MEETING

Taylor Reveals Operation Is Picking Up; Roosevelt Program Backed.

Hoboken, N. J., April 17 (A.P.).—"Big steel" today sounded its first real note of optimism of the past year or more.

Myron C. Taylor, chairman of the United States Steel Corporation, at the annual stockholders' meeting here, disclosed that the company's operations were at 21 per cent of rate capacity this week, the highest since March, last year. At the same time the shareholders unanimously adopted a resolution supporting President Roosevelt's economic program and Mr. Taylor declared, upon submitting the motion:

"We have always supported the Presidents of our country, but I gladly put this resolution because I feel with you that we are on the road to better things."

Some 200 shareholders, both men and women, braved a steady downpour of rain to attend today's meeting. Unlike the session last year, there were no caustic or pointed questions asked of the management, and nobody wanted to know why there were no dividends on the common stock or why the preferred rate had been placed on a $2 annual basis instead of the previous regular $7 rate.

While the corporation's officials seemingly were a bit more cheerful than usual, there was no intimation as to what action would be taken on the preferred dividend at the board meeting, April 25.

The stockholders, however, received the usual "special dividend" today in the shape of sandwiches—cheese, chicken and ham—coffee and very thick pumpkin pie. These dividends were consumed in short order. Mr. Taylor passed up his portion with the remark that "I'm going rather light on luncheons these days."

All Directors Reelected.

All of the retiring directors were reelected.

Mr. Taylor, while making no predictions of a turn in the business tide, declared that the officials of the corporation "are buoyed up with the hope and comfort that better times are ahead."

"We have come through these difficult years of the depression," he said. "We are now in the fourth year of the great and universal malady. We in the corporation are willing to continue with courage and confidence this fight against dissolution and despair.

"It has been the aim of the directors and executives to conduct the company's affairs so as to withstand not only the perplexities and immediate shocks, but to conserve the property and assets in order that the corporation, with credit and honor, can meet whatever is in store for it in the future."

Mr. Taylor said that every effort had been made to distribute employment and that at the present no employe of the corporation was working on full time. While salaries, wages and pensions had been revised downward, he added, "We hope we won't have to do that any more, and that we can shortly turn the tide the other way.

"It makes me feel," he philosophized, "that because we are in the presence of Easter, that this sort of cross we bear is one all humanity at one time or another has borne."

"The depression," he said, "has touched everyone and left its mark on everyone in the community. It has spared no one. It has tested our endurance and our ability."

The chairman explained there had been no question of bonuses to officials as, under the company's regulations, bonuses can only be given when earnings aggregate at least $100,000,000 in a single year.

Roosevelt's Program Backed.

The resolution of confidence in President Roosevelt's program was introduced by George A. Loehing, a stockholder. Mr. Taylor, in supporting it, said that "we should wholeheartedly and without regard to party support the President in saving this industrial, economic and humane Nation of ours." He added, later, that various measures doubtless would be proposed by the Government for aiding business and that "these efforts should be given our unqualified support."

Percival Roberts, jr., who has been a director of the organization since its inception, in a brief address said that "I have a hopefulness at present which I have not heretofore had."

"I have seen depressions and panics come and go," he said, "and each one has had a common feature. We have never made a start on recovery until we have had a firm foundation on which to build. This is the greatest depression we have ever known. But I believe we have at last reached bottom and found a firm foundation."

There were 2,268,800 shares of the total of 3,602,811 shares of preferred stock represented

Town Council Takes Action Following Receipt of Residents' Petition.

Montgomery County Bureau of The Post, 8706 Georgia Ave., Silver Spring, Md. Telephone Shepherd 2363.

Imposition of a town license fee of $1,000 on all establishments in Takoma Park, Md., which secure State or county licenses to sell beer was voted at a meeting of the town council last night. The new ordinance followed receipt of a petition signed by 132 residents asking the mayor and council to do everything possible to prevent the sale of beer or other intoxicants in the town.

Mayor Frederick L. Lewton read an opinion by Corporation Counsel J. Barrett Prettyman, stating that the State beer law superseded all rights of the town to regulate the sale, but suggested that an ordinance regulating the sale be promulgated under the provision of the town charter which grants the right to license and regulate business establishments that a test can be made in the courts. The Rev. C. S. Longacre, of the Seventh Day Adventist Temperance Society, spoke in favor of a dry Takoma Park. It was pointed out that two-thirds of the town is subject to a covenant in deeds prohibiting the sale of intoxicants.

Police Officer Resigns.

Irvine H. Ware submitted his resignation as a member of the town council and as chief police officer to take effect at the close of last night's meeting. He stated the action was at the request of his wife. C. Earle Thomas was appointed chief police officer with the rank of sergeant. The council recommended H. C. Heffner to Gov. Ritchie for appointment as justice of the peace for Takoma Park.

The council adopted an ordinance setting Monday, May 1, as election day when three members of the council are to be elected to succeed Martin F. Iverson, H. E. Rogers and John R. Adams for two-year terms.

The polls are to be open in the town firehouse from 6 a. m. to 7 p. m. on election day.

Election Officers Named.

The council appointed Robert Lyons clerk of the elections, and Mrs. Herbert Rutledge, Edith Davis, H. K. Presley, B. F. Blackburn and John Coffman, jr., judges of elections.

They also appointed Robert Lyons clerk of registration and Mrs. Herbert Rutledge, Edith Davis and H. K. Presley as officers for the general registration of all town voters to be held April 25 and 26 in the firehouse, from 7 a. m. to 6 p. m., and from 7 to 10 p. m.

The annual caucus will be held Monday night at the firehouse when the nominations for the three expiring terms on the council and probably for the place left vacant by Mr. Ware's resignation will be made.

ABOUT THE SHOW SHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

If one were to see a dramatic screen story in which the hero was the son of a village blacksmith—not the one immortalized by Mr. Longfellow—who, after a series of exciting adventures, imprisonments, daring deeds for which he was awarded a medal; stirring speeches and intrepid actions that eventually precipitated a bloodless revolution, set himself at the head of a great nation, one naturally would be apt to think to himself that that was a pretty interesting and thrilling tale, but wholly outside the pale of probability—it just couldn't happen in real life.

Yet that is precisely what has happened in real life, and within the memory of this theater-going generation, thus once more proving that truth, indeed, is stranger than fiction.

This, to get to the point, is literally the procession of events that has characterized the life of Benito Mussolini, Il Duce, Premier of Italy, and one of the most remarkable figures in the contemporary history of the world. These events, furthermore, are the highlights of the film, "Mussolini Speaks," produced by Columbia Pictures and to be seen for the first time in the National Capital as a special feature of the bill beginning at RKO-Keith's this Friday, April 21.

Benito Mussolini was born in the village of Dovia, Commune of Predappio, Italy, on July 29, 1883. He attended the village school and later, through the insistence of his mother, who was a teacher, went away to boarding school. After graduation he also obtained a position as school teacher, but at the end of a year went off to Switzerland.

His father was a Socialist and the political outlook he had acquired from the paternal enthusiasms was enlarged and inflamed by the new friends he made in Lausanne. Benito became a labor agitator and was deported from the country.

Returning to Italy, he became editor of a Socialist paper. At the outbreak of the World War he left the paper, because it advocated peace, and established his own paper urging Italy's entrance into the conflict. When Italy joined the allies, Mussolini enlisted as a soldier.

At the end of the war, in which he was wounded, he gathered his comrades around him in an organization that demanded that the common people be given first consideration by the government. The organization grew so rapidly that on October 24 Benito gave orders for his famous "March on Rome." In four days, without rioting or bloodshed, the power of state was transferred into his hands as premier. It has remained there ever since.

"Mussolini Speaks" is the silver sheet's first autobiography. Columbia selected Mussolini as the first great figure to be immortalized in celluloid because his life, literally, has been stranger than fiction and so meets the screen's every demand for subject matter that is dynamic, spectacular—and authentic.

The imminence of the National Theater Players' reappearance at the National—next Monday night, April 24, is the date—recalls to mind that Leona Powers, leading woman, is one of the marvels of the repertoire theater as a quick and infallible "study." I doubt if anybody has ever caught Miss Powers fumbling a line on opening night, despite the fact that all stock players are confronted with the intricate task of bearing three plays in mind at the same time—the current vehicle, the one in rehearsal for next week and the one contemplated for the second week ahead, being read in advance preparation.

A man who has seen actresses and actors come and go beyond the experience of most of us, Mr. William Harryman Rapley, owner of the National Theater, paid Miss Powers as fine a tribute as any repertoire actress is apt to receive, upon the occasion of the Players' presentation of the late Edgar Wallace's "On the Spot" last season, when he said, after witnessing her performance: "There is the most striking counterpart of Minnie Maddern Fiske I have ever seen."

This coming from Mr. Rapley, who has known all of the Maude Adamses, Ada Rehans, Otis Skinners, Bernhardts, Duses and the rest, really meant something.

That lamentable Garner, Wolfe and Hakins act, to which we objected in Saturday's review of the Earle bill, has been dropped from the program, thanks to the watchfulness of General Manager John J. Payette of the Warner Brothers interests in this territory. Now if Al Trahan, at Loew's Fox, will delete two bits of crass suggestiveness from his otherwise hilarious buffoonery, everything will be sweet and lovely this Easter week.

It comes to light that Tom McCann, Irish tenor and new master of ceremonies at the Russian Troika, who is attracting enthusiastic crowds to this popular night club, has been studying in New York for a European tour with Michel Khariton, with whom he is appearing locally. Khariton, one of the foremost of the younger Russian pianists and composers, came to this country four years ago as a protege of Morris Gest. He is headlining the Troika floor show.

The dramatic desks have learned with regret that it was illness that prevented the appearance in Washington of Miss Jean Dalrymple, one of the most charming as well as most competent of the peregrinating publicists, in behalf of "Maedchen in Uniform," one of her pet enthusiasms, when it played the Metropolitan.

By one of Fate's annoying perversities, Miss Dalrymple was laid low at just the time her husband, Ward Moorehouse, of the New York Sun, was given ten days off to fly to the Coast and adapt one of his stories to the screen.

Which, it seems, is the way life is, in times like these. It never rains, but it pours—as you may have observed on Easter Sunday.

And I hope you didn't forget to return your borrowed kids to their parents after the egg-rolling!

By NELSON B. BELL.

It is not inconceivable that in the original version, which, we are told, won enthusiastic approval in Paris, Mons. Bourdet imbued the scenes of his cleverly contrived little comedy of love and letters with a slightly more Gallic flavor than most of them now possess.

In its Anglicized form, arranged with some skill but not too much sparkle by Mrs. Dorothy Cheston Bennett, however, there still remain enough of the elements of deftness in characterization, penetrating satire and recurrent surprise to insure an interesting and thoroughly agreeable evening in the theater.

The hearty approval of a large and representative first night audience, upon the occasion of the play's American premiere last night, will be multiplied many times by future audiences who will see "Best Sellers" with the added advantages of a cast fully acquainted with the potentialities of their respective roles, a more spontaneous command of their lines and a facile coordination of speech and action that will permit the movement of the three acts to attain the accelerated tempo they require for best effect.

In his third comedy to reach the American stage, Mons. Bourdet has fashioned less a satirical exposure of the publishing business, its production of "best sellers" and the manipulated award of coveted literary prizes than an amusing revelation of the possible sources of plot material and conclusive proof of the tacit postulation that all authors, even of romantic fiction, are, after all, realists.

This he manages by introducing in the first act a meek little man who haunts the offices of the Great Publisher, who happens, among other things, to have been a fellow soldier in his outfit during the war. The G. P. refuses even to see him, until, largely through his own devious procedures, he causes him to be awarded the Zola Prize for a novel of which nobody has ever heard.

Thus made suddenly famous, the meek little man resigns his clerkship in the Treasury and becomes a man of letters! Sterile of further ideas and incapable of imaginative writing, he fails to incubate any additional masterpieces and threatens to become that bugaboo of all publishing houses, the one-book author. Confessing, in a moment of weakness, that his prize-winning novel was the story of his and his wife's courtship, culled largely from the diary which she had kept, he is made victim of an ostensible hoax in which the wife, in a handsome villa at Biarritz, shall permit herself to be outrageously flirted with by a rival author under her husband's very nose, for purposes of acquiring another diary which may supply the inspiration for another novel. The results are a little surprising to all concerned.

Upon this framework Mons. Bourdet has reared the structure of his drama, which at no time threatens to tumble down, although, it must be said, it sags rather seriously in the middle. This is to say, Mons. Bourdet's first and last acts are infinitely superior to the two scenes of his second—an unfortunate circumstance which will be mitigated at least in part when greater familiarity with lines and situations permits the players to strike a little gayer pace than was the case last evening.

And make no mistake concerning the ability of the members of the cast to do this. They gave a fine account of themselves in their first public performance, everything considered, and are without exception artists of experience, resourcefulness and utmost reliability.

Peggy Wood and Ernest Truex will prove ideal selections for their respective roles of amateur author and romantic wife when first-night restraint has been cast aside. They erred in opposite directions last night—Miss Wood on the side of overemphasis, Mr. Truex on the side of under. The honors of the evening, as a matter of fact, went indisputably to George Coulouris, fresh from the cast of "The Late Christopher Bean," if memory serves, who made a finely conniving, unctuous and volatile Julian Mosca, promoter, publisher and Nemesis of aspiring writers. Ian Keith, as a chilly, austere and impeccably tailored young lover, completes the list of principals who really matter. All might add a dash of warmth to their work to fine advantage.

Ralph Locke, Hildur Ouse and Roman Bohnen fairly head the supporting cast in roles that are largely atmospheric.

"Best Sellers," although less pungent than either "The Captive" or "The Sex Fable," may for that very reason become one on the American market!

"HUMANITY." Fox picturization of the novel "The Road to Heaven," by Harry Fried, featuring Ralph Morgan, Patricia ("Boots") Mallory, Alexander Kirkland, Irene Ware and Noel Madison. Directed by John Francis Dillon. Reviewed Monday evening by W. A. Whitney.

The Great White Father of humanity, the general practitioner of medicine, comes into his own in this picturization of Harry Fried's novel. Stories of the medical profession have come, not in profusion, but with sufficient frequency to be noticeable, but always they have dealt with some sort of specialist, the "country doctor" type has been neglected for the more glamorous and more specialized followers of Aesculapius' caduceus.

In brief, "Humanity" revolves around the efforts of Dr. William J. MacDonald, general practitioner, to bring his son, William, jr., up to follow his footsteps, a life work of healing the sick and the possession of a code of ethics transcending purely material things. But the lure of easy money, aided and abetted by a high-born gold-digger, drags the young medico down through malpractice in league with gangsters. To save the son, the father assumes full responsibility.

A somewhat tragic, but well-told tale, this, of father love and professional ethics, with Ralph Morgan, as the elder doctor, taking the honors for a fine performance. He is ably assisted by Alexander Kirkland, as the son; Irene Ware, as money-mad society girl; Patricia ("Boots") Mallory, as the doctor's assistant and, some time after the story closes, the wife of Mr. Kirkland; Noel Madison, as the gangster, and with Wade Boteler, Christian Rub, Betty Jane Graham, Ferike Boros, George Irving, Crauford Kent, and Nella Walker, completing the supporting cast.

Mack Sennett's Taxi Boys, in "Bring 'Em Back a Wife," and the Paramount News completed the reviewed performance, which is billed also to include the nature picture "Desert Demons."

HALLOCK IS INDICTED AGAIN IN ARLINGTON

Theft of $5,862 in Checks Charged to Former Clerk of School Board.

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST, Tel. Clar. 500, Clarendon, Va.

As a result of a surprise move by Commonwealth's Attorney Lawrence W. Douglas, the Arlington County grand jury at the opening of the April term of the Circuit Court, yesterday handed down a second indictment against F. J. Hallock, former clerk to the county school board.

The indictment charges Hallock with grand larceny in the theft of checks aggregating $5,862.50.

Appearing before Judge Walter T. McCarthy, he pleaded not guilty. The trial was set for May 11. He was released on bond of $5,000. The court entered an order summoning 40 persons as jurors.

At the request of Frank L. Ball, counsel for his brother, E. Wade Ball, former county treasurer who was convicted April 1 on a charge of failure to turn over county funds totaling $515,959, the court continued until Monday arguments on motion for a new trial.

Other indictments returned by the grand jury, of which William E. A. McShea is foreman, follow:

Willie James, housebreaking; Lee Braston, housebreaking; Robert Allen and David Singleton, assault with a dangerous weapon upon Frank Gates; Armstead Gravatt, three indictments, two charging housebreaking and one the theft of an automobile said to belong to Clara Birch; Boyd Frazier, housebreaking; Tapp Biens, housebreaking; Roy Marcey, housebreaking; William Scott, charged with carrying away tools valued at $350 said to be the property of the Mechanical Engineering Corporation; Roy Snelling, charged with slaying T. R. Stoneburner April 3; Raymond Clay, charged with stealing an automobile said to belong to Clara Birch, and Marvin Penn, housebreaking.

The court continued the case of Snelling to the June term of court. His bond of $2,000 was continued.

Red Recognition Target Of Big Meeting Tonight

A determined drive to strengthen and solidify the coordinated opposition of Washington churches and ministers to the recognition of Soviet Russia has constituted a leading feature of preparations for the gigantic mass meeting to be held tonight at the Auditorium under the auspices of the American Legion. The meeting has been arranged by the Legion, assisted by many other patriotic organizations of the city, "to express united opposition to the official recognition of Soviet Russia by the United States of America."

GAYETY

"SUGAR BABIES." Empire Burlesque attraction, featuring Joe Freed, Jimmie Coughlin, Floyd Hallisey, Bobby Whalen, Lew White, Eddie Akin, Estelle Novak, Connie Fanslau, Tiny Huff, Florence Naomi and Wroth, Byron and Wroth. Reviewed by George H. Barrows.

Basing an opinion entirely upon the basis of applause from the cash customers, clever dancing and character interpretations are far more responsible for the enthusiastic reception of "Sugar Babies," the current offering at the Gayety, than are the liberal displays of feminine pulchritude and the more than slightly risque jokes so familiar to patrons of burlesque entertainment.

Although Connie Fanslau, Tiny Huff and Estelle Novak receive well-merited approval of their several specialty numbers, it is the dance team of Wroth, Byron and Wroth who are compelled to respond to repeated encores until their obvious exhaustion moves the audience to allow the raising of the curtain on another scene.

Joe Freed also provides a welcome surprise when he abandons for a moment his typical comedy role for an impersonation of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde which he does in a truly splendid manner, while Lew White supplies the comedy relief. Freed also further displays his versatility in an interesting dance number and harmonica solos. Lew White joins the parade of musical talent with several renditions of popular airs on a one-string cigar-box fiddle, and the fine voices of Florence Naomi and Bobby Whalen add to an offering that brings to a brilliant close a series of road-show bookings at Jimmy Lake's popular emporium of mirth and melody.

Beginning next week, stock productions will be revived at the Ninth street theater and will have to step lively if they are to maintain the high standard set by the current week.

RED SOX SOLVE CROWDER FOR 4-2 WIN OVER NATS

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

THE gentlemanly art of self-defense will be nowhere about the premises this evening when Young Van and Henry Irving step into the ring in the main bout at Portner's Arena. Defense is something that neither of them have learned or cared about. The ungentlemanly art of sock and more sock is what they practice.

No battle in recent local fight industry has captured the imagination of Washington fandom to the degree that the battle of Van and Irving is quickening the collective pulse of the Capital's fight addicts. Van, the handsomely upholstered stereotype apprentice, and Irving, who has found occupation as a beer truck pilot, were the authors of the only real slugfest among the heavy boys during the indoor season, and District fandom is scenting another bout on the same pleasing order.

Ten Rounds Only Label.

The boys will travel over the ten-round route tonight and it may be this factor that has spurred the speculation on the outcome. At the end of the eighth and final round of their last meeting, both were fit subjects for the oxygen tanks, and ten rounds shape up as an ordeal for both.

But the feeling in both camps is that the ten-round label is just a label and that the bout has no more chance of going the limit than a snowball in Key West. The boys are kayo specialists and twice during their last battle one more well-directed punch at the proper time would have put them both away on two separate occasions.

Van's nine-pound weight advantage in their last bout has shrunk to a mere five pounds on the eve of the fight, although there may be significance in the fact that Irving is now a brewery employe.

Right vs. Rapid Infighting.

The battle seems to simmer down to a contest between Irving's trusty right and Van's rapid-fire work inside. The Irving right landed no less than a half-dozen times on the Van chin in last month's meeting of the pair, but the former was unable to follow up his advantage. The tale went the rounds that Van's chin was slightly glassy after Sammy Britt stopped him twice in the first round at Laurel last summer, and it was even said that the stereotyper was using Bon Ami to facilitate his morning shaves, but except for one brief flurry of distress, he took all of Irving's delivery with good grace.

Once inside Irving's guard, Van will be the aggressor. The latter has not been lifting the heavy steel forms in The Post's stereotype department for four years to no good advantage. He brings those arms up from inside in short, punishing jolts, and if there is truth in some reports that Irving does not attend strictly to training, the Northeast boy may have cause to regret it—from a horizontal position.

Baby Arizmendi Under Knife; Loses Tonsils

Los Angeles, April 17 (A.P.).—Baby Arizmendi, Mexican bantamweight boxer, underwent an operation here today for removal of his tonsils. Afterward his condition was pronounced satisfactory. Cal Working, manager of the boxer, said Arizmendi will be ready for the ring in six weeks.

Injuries to Schiefley, Track Ace, Are Slight

Minneapolis, April 17 (A.P.).—A slight bruise below the knee and a bump on the ankle are the only apparent injuries to Charley Schiefley, University of Minnesota track captain, injured Sunday in an automobile accident, examination today indicated.

Schiefley spent some time under a warm sun today in an effort to get in shape for the Kansas relays at Lawrence, Kans., Saturday. He was pitched through the roof of his automobile when it was struck from behind by another machine.

Ferrell's Arm Healing; To Pitch in Few Days

St. Louis, April 17 (A.P.).—Wesley Ferrell, Cleveland right-hander, who tore adhesions in his shoulder loose while pitching here yesterday, tonight was responding to treatment and his baseball career was expected to continue.

Dr. Robert F. Hyland, club physician, examined the athlete thoroughly today and said the injury apparently was slight. Ferrell probably can take his turn on the mound in a few days the physician decided.

For several years the hurler has experienced difficulty with the adhesions.

Throng to See Irving-Van Tonight

New Champ Looms, With Both Fighters in Fine Trim.

Good Card and Much Action Is Promised at Portner's.

By DAVE HERMAN.

HIGH fistic explosives, loaded with perhaps the most dangerous T.N.T. the local cauliflower industry has marketed this season, will be set off tonight at Portner's Arena in Alexandria, where the muscular Young Van and his sturdy rival, Henry (Popeye) Irving, will attempt to bomb one another into defeat with their dynamite gloves in a ten-round battle that may definitely establish a new District middleweight champion and that will be supported by an outstanding brand of semiwindup and preliminary talent.

Clashing in a return match that hung fire for a number of weeks before Portner's officials decided that it was the best "natural" in these parts, Van and Irving will clamber into the ring to be greeted by what bids fair to be one of the largest audiences of the year.

Championing the cause of the Southwest, Van's presence in the roped arena in the first 10-round fight of his life will lure every loyal boxing patron from that section of the District, and the same holds true in the case of Popeye Irving, who is so tremendously popular in the Northeast that if he wins tonight his followers will probably elect him mayor on the next ticket.

Fight Fans Keyed to High Pitch.

Fight fans have been keyed to a high pitch of interest, and indications are that they will not be disappointed. In March, when they scrapped for eight rounds in the feature match at Portner's, Van and Irving staged a battle that was generally regarded as the best waged between two local products since the arena flung open its doors two years ago. So furious was the fighting, and so even the struggle that the three officials found themselves locked in a unanimous draw. It was a good decision.

Those patrons who will glimpse the workings of the two gladiators will be pleasantly surprised at the marked improvement in their punching and defensive work. Both made a number of mistakes in their last battle, and have drilled energetically that they may not crop up again. Irving was guilty of sliding and missing numerous right-handed punches, and Van was afflicted with an epidemic of bad timing with his right.

Their trainers later pointed out the rough spots, and three weeks of careful gym work have served to erase such deficiencies in their boxing repertoire. Irving, groomed for tonight's shot by Harry Kid Groves, a good fighter in his day, has perfected a short, quick right stab that is a far more effective weapon than his rather unreliable looping right punch, the type of punch that won him the title of "Popeye."

Accuracy With Right New Van Asset.

Van, who has always been pretty dangerous with his right, has worked up more steam and accuracy in his right, and, according to Trainer Ray Bowen, is timing his punches in much better fashion.

It is interesting to note that both boys have knocked out eight opponents, and some of them were stiff battlers. Following a six-month layoff, Van celebrated his return to the ring last winter by bowling over Billy Vermillion in the second and winning an 8-rounder from Walter Kirkwood. Irving has lost to Kirkwood, and also has fought him to a draw.

Scrapping in the semiwind-up will be Nick Antonelli, clever punching lightweight, and Willie Essinger, of Washington, who will step 6 rounds. Antonelli is the favorite.

Jimmy Reed, the Jacksonville clown, returns to his ring wars hereabouts in a 6-rounder against Roy Kid Manley, a southpaw with a terrific punch. They step 6 rounds.

A third 6-rounder pits Jackie Simpson against Baltimore Harry Groves, while Bob Lowry opens the program with a 4-rounder against Whitey Graham, of Cleveland.

BOXING BITS' SELECTIONS—Van to beat Irving, Antonelli to beat Essinger, Reed to beat Manley, Simpson to beat Groves and Lowrey to beat Graham.

It was the first victory of the season for the Browns and the first defeat for the Indians. Hadley went the full route for the locals, allowing the visitors only six scattered hits.

Chicago, April 17 (A.P.).—Willie Hoppe, of New York, and Jake Schaefer, jr., San Francisco star, will meet here next week to decide a cushion carom billiards championship for the first time since 1883.

The game, a combination of balkline and three cushions, has been played little in recent years. Maurice Daly was the last player to hold the world title, winning it in 1883.

Ban on Jews Seen Costing Germany Olympic Games

BALTIMORE, April 17 (A.P.).—The opinion that Hitler's anti-Jewish campaign may bring a shift of the 1936 Olmpic games from Germany was expressed by Avery Brundage, president of the American Olympic committee, in a letter received here today.

Writing to K. A. Miller, managing editor of the Jewish Times, a Baltimore publication, Brundage said it was his "personal, but unofficial opinion" that the games "will not be held in any country where there will be interference with the fundamental Olympic theory of equality of all races."

Berlin has been selected as the site for the eleventh Olympiad.

The letter from Brundage follows:

"This will acknowledge your night letter dated April 14 relative to the steps reported to have been taken in Germany that would prevent the participation of Jews in international competition. Direct jurisdiction on the venue of the Olympic games is in the hands of the international Olympic committee which meets in Vienna this summer.

"This matter will undoubtedly come before it. My personal, but unofficial, opinion is that the games will not be held in any country where there will be interference with the fundametnal Olympic theory of equality of all races.

"The Olympic protocol provides there shall be no restriction of competition because of class, color or creed. The matter will no doubt be taken up at the American Olympic committee."

Rain Brings Smiles to Foxx, Anxious to Start With Rest

By EDWARD J. NEIL.

NEW YORK, April 17 (A.P.).—Rain that washes out ball games may fall like the tears of anxious club owners, but that steady drumming in the window panes is sweet music to Jimmie Foxx, long distance belter from Maryland's Eastern Shore.

"This is just fine," he beamed today as he stretched his brawny length on a hotel sofa, watched the rain pour down while the club trainer worked on an ugly sore on his left shin. "A couple more days of this and I can start even with those pitchers."

An infected spike wound suffered in spring training has caused Jimmie a great deal of trouble. It kept him out of A's opening game. It has slowed down the big fellow who hammered out 58 home runs last season and was primed to ruin Babe Ruth's record of 60 this year.

"Anybody who can hit 58 home runs," he remarked, "should be able to hit 60. That sounds reasonable, doesn't it? Connie Mack told me last fall that if I'd thought more of hitting for distance, and less about trying to beat Dale Alexander for the batting championship, I'd have beaten the Babe's record then.

"But it isn't as simple as that. Sometimes you can't take a chance on lofting a ball for distance when a hit means runs because a fielder may get under it. The pitchers have a lot to say about that, too. For instance, I never get a ball inside in the Yankee Stadium or the Washington Park. I can pull those along the left field line and into the stands. They keep the ball outside and I hit to the big fields around center."

Foxx thinks the odds are all against a right-hand hitter breaking Ruth's home run mark. Most of the short stands in major league parks are in right, favoring the left-handed batter. He never has hit a ball into the Babe's favorite spot, the right field bleachers in the stadium.

"It doesn't mean anything now," he said, "but if conditions and rules had been the same last season as when Babe hit his 60 in 1927, I'd have had 65. Five times I hit the screen in front the right-field stands in St. Louis. That's a double now. In 1927 there was no screen there and those drives would have been homers. I got two into the left field stands at the Yankee Stadium on the first bounce. They used to be home runs. Now they're doubles."

But the admiration that all ball players feel for the Bambino creeps into Jimmie's voice when he talks of Ruth.

"He's slowed down a lot. He won't hit this year as hard as people think. But I just hope that in my fortieth year, 15 years from now, I can still scare pitchers like that fellow can today."

FOX'S HOMER IN 10TH WINS FOR TIGERS

Scores 2 Men Ahead to Drub White Sox by 8 to 5 Score.

DETROIT, April 17 (A.P.).—The boys who are fighting for jobs with the Detroit Tigers covered themselves with glory today, one of them, Ervin Fox, hitting a home run in the tenth inning to score two men ahead of him and give the Tigers an 8-to-5 victory over the Chicago White Sox.

Jo Jo White, subbing in the outfield for Gerald Walker, last year's slugger, also got a home run in the eighth accounting for the two runs that tied up the ball game and sent it into extra innings.

Sox Score Five Runs in First.

The Sox got off to an auspicious start, scoring five runs off two Tiger pitchers, Sorrell and Herring, in the first inning which was interrupted for more than an hour by rain. The Tiger cause looked hopeless even after Fox's single and Rogell's double gave them a run in the fourth, until the eighth inning rally that deadlocked the count.

Liberal use of pinch batters sent four Tiger hurlers to the mound. Wyatt succeeding Herring and Marberry holding the Sox hitless for the last two innings. Frasier went in for the Sox after the Tigers' eighth inning attack and was debited with the defeat.

Hayes walked to start the Sox first inning, then Haas and Fonseca singled and Simmons doubled, scoring Haas and Fonseca. Kress' single and Dykes' double accounted for the rest of the Sox tallies.

Appling Sets Stage With Error.

Appling set the stage for the Tiger rally by booting what should have been an out for Walker, who pinch batted for Wyatt. Davis fouled out, but Owen and Gehringer doubled. Stone forced Gehringer at third and then White came through with his homer into the right-field bleachers.

It was the Tigers' second victory of the season both at the expense of the White Sox.

Myer, Manush Alone Able to Solve Red Sox Pitching.

Nats Baffled by H. Johnson During 7 1-3 Innings.

By SHIRLEY L. POVICH
(Sports Editor of The Post).

ALVIN CROWDER'S sixteen-game winning streak collided with some four-hit pitching by the Boston Red Sox yesterday and died of natural causes.

The Red Sox unloaded a constant fire of base hits against Crowder after the third inning, including a ball that Roy Johnson gently caressed over the right field fence for a home run, and Boston took possession of the ball game, 4 to 2, and an even break in the series thus far.

It seems that Henry Johnson was doing some right fair pitching out there for the Red Sox and was holding the Nats to three hits for seven and one-third innings until Manager McManus decided that discretion was the better part of valor, or something. With the Red Sox showing an old tendency to blow up at this point, McManus added a lot of ballast by calling in Whattaman Bob Kline, 255 pounds on the hoof, and the Beantown lads emerged from the clutch with only two runs credited to the Nats.

Nats Fail to Thrive at Plate Again.

The Nats went feeble at the plate again yesterday. It's almost getting so that you can tell how many hits the boys are going to make. On Friday they made six; on Saturday, five, and yesterday four. By next Friday, if the indications and the schedule are correct, some Philadelphia pitcher is going to hurl, a no-hit game against our boys.

Only Buddy Myer and Heinie Manush stood between the Boston pitchers and a no-hit game. The rest of the Nats took an awful sock in the, batting averages from Johnson and Kline, and Johnny Welch, who pitched the last inning. Myer awoke from a protracted batting slump to slam an honest single and a snorting double. Manush opened the Nats' batting attack with a triple in the first inning and a single in the eighth. The rest of the boys were up there swinging, with no tangible results.

Boston Man Walked With Bases Full.

The Nats' two-run uprising in the eighth had reduced the Red Sox lead to 3 to 2, and Boston was by no means out of the woods, but in the ninth the relief pitching of Bobby Burke and Al Thomas proved a great relief to Boston. Two men faced Burke. The first hit a single and the second got on base on an error by Buddy Myer, but Joe Cronin deduced that Burke was of no help, and Thomas finished out the game by walking Warstler with the bases full to force in Boston's fourth run.

After seven barren innings in which Heinie Manush's triple with two out in the first and Buddy Myer's single under the same conditions in the third proved so much wasted effort, these same two Nats put two hits together for the team's only two runs of the ball game.

Red Sox Face Whitehill Today

Failure of Home Hitters Is Beginning to Worry Cronin.

By FRANK H. YOUNG

ALTHOUGH yesterday's victory was the first of the season for the Red Sox, the Nats begrudged it to them and will be out on the field with blood in their eyes this afternoon in the third game of the set. Lefty Earl Whitehill is due to do the slabbing for the natives, while Manager Marty McManus will turn over his pitching assignment to Ivy Paul Andrews. The latter, like Henry Johnson, who held the Nats to four measly bingles yesterday, also is a fugitive from the Yankee chain-gang.

After yesterday's game, Skipper Joe Cronin was wondering whether his charges, including himself, are in a hitting slump, or whether his team has been facing super-pitching the last few games. The only thing he can do about it is to get after his stickmen, so he has called a wand drill for this morning at 10:30 o'clock.

Pitcher Bob Friedrichs, Nat rookie pitcher sent to Williamsport, of the New York-Pennsylvania League, pulled up stakes here yesterday afternoon. The two other Washington rookies recently let out—Outfielder Walter Casen and Pitcher Eddie Edelen—already have reported to the Springfield Central League Club. President Clark Griffith was advised yesterday.

Tom Winsett, Red Sox rookie, who played in right field for the Sox yesterday, has many of the batting characteristics of Johnny Gill. He not only takes the same stance and same style swing, but even carries his bat part-way to first as the former Nat rookie did.

Although Pitcher Henry Johnson was obtained by the Sox in the trade for Danny MacFayden last June, yesterday was his first league start for the Beaneaters. Upon reporting to Boston, he asked to be declared vol-

NEVERFADE SURPRISES IN FEATURE AT HAVRE DE GRACE

Gelding Beats Tambour by 2 Lengths

Mare, Favorite, Unable to Get Up; Action Third.

Ilchester, Corrymeela Give Trueman Double.

By WALTER HAIGHT
Post Staff Correspondent).

HAVRE DE GRACE RACE TRACK, April 17.—Willis S. Kilmer, the breeder of Neverfade, picked an appropriate name for the son of Sun Circle. Today, the 5-year-old, which did not see action in 1932, came back as bright as new and ran Tambour, the odds-on favorite, into defeat in the Westminister—the mile and 70 yards feature race here. Two lengths behind Neverfade came the Preston Burch colorbearer, which figured highly in important racing last season. Third, and another three lengths back, Action, the reformed plater, which campaigned with some success in Florida, was laboring along.

A typical April shower shortly after noon turned the already muddy track into a slimy conglomeration, which made horse riding risky business for the remainder of the day. However, a bright sun soon smiled down—well, we can't have everything.

Neverfade Always Out in Front.

It was a victory for Mrs. F. Ambrose Clark, whose Kellsboro Jack won the Grand National at Ainstree this year. And give credit to the veteran, Renick, who gave as hustling a ride as has been witnessed hereabouts.

The running of the race consisted, for the most part, of attempts by first Action and then Tambour to displace Neverfade. But there was no stopping of the big gelding. He shook off Action at the far turn and Hanford, who had Tambour on the rail, could do no more than make up some ground in the stretch run.

The secondary feature brought victory to Corrymeela, daughter of the famous Colin. Alfred Robertson hand rode her home three lengths in front of Illusive and Manya. Corrymeela, which failed to get out of the maiden class until her last outing at Bowie last fall, started where she left off. She is the property of Ral Parr and naturally is trained by Elmer Trueman, of Washington.

Corrymeela Pays $16 Mutuel.

Robertson took the filly into a three-length lead in the first furlong and this margin served her all the way. Corrymeela's present form was not generally known—hence, a $16 mutuel. The victory completed a double for Trueman and Jockey Robertson, who had scored with Ilchester in the second.

Running Heel, half of the L. E. Keiffer entry, proved a winning favorite in the opening race. It was a mad scramble of 2-year-old maidens through the mud. Toytime, one of the Labrot pair, was second, and the little-regarded Rhyming third. A furlong from the finish, Toytime appeared the winner, but Steffen brought the Bud Lerner colt up under punishment and was sliding away at the end.

The Truemans accounted for the second race when Ilchester stood a stiff drive from Alfred Robertson to outspeed Vishnu in the sloppy going. The well-beaten third was Golden Fate. Ilchester, listed as the property of Mrs. Elmer Trueman and trained by her husband, took the lead entering the stretch and had all the better of a battle to the wire with Vishnu.

Vishnu Tires Battling Pace Maker.

The latter had the disadvantage of contesting with the speedy Cordoba, part of the winning entry, for the pace-setting honor for the first 3 furlongs. Ilchester's victory made two in a row for the favorite players. The 6 furlongs were run in 1:13 2-5.

Johnny Bejahak and the Sagamore Stable combination, which threatened to dissolve in Maryland last fall, teamed to produce the winner of the third race. It was the gelded son of Teddy, Parity, who showed in front soon after the barrier rise and was never headed, to win easily. The chief chasing was done by Syenite and Standout. Parity rewarded the faithful at an $8.40 mutuel.

Marse Robert circled the field after being last at the clubhouse turn to win the sixth race from Worthington and Boscobel. Traffic Judge and Unencumbered faded from the picture when the real test came.

Tom Loughran Reaches Chicago Today for Bout

Chicago, April 17 (U.P.).—Tommy Loughran will arrive here tomorrow from Philadelphia to finish training for his scheduled ten-round bout against Izzy Gastanaga, Spanish heavyweight, at the Chicago Stadium Friday night.

Loughran was supposed to arrive here today by plane to fulfill Illinois Athletic Commission's rules that fighters must be here at least five days before their appearances. Inclement weather conditions prevented him from taking off from Philadelphia. He received the consent of the commission to be here tomorrow.

RUNNING HEEL broke well, but dropped back immediately, settled in his best stride and, responding to punishment when moving up on the outside, withstood a drive gamely to get up in the final fifty yards. TOYTIME raced RHYMING into early defeat, saved ground and finished stoutly under strong urging. RHYMING began quickly and showed a good effort throughout. TAUNTON went wide from the start. Two-dollar mutuels paid—ILCHESTER, $3.00, $3.60, $2.80; VISHNU, $5.00, $3.80; GOLDEN FATE, $3.80.

ILCHESTER, at home in the going and forcing a fast early pace, secured room on the inside to take command and drew out steadily nearing the finish. VISHNU, going in his best form and suited by the footing, disposed of CORDOBA, but tired suddenly after racing with the winner until the final furlong pole. GOLDEN FATE improved his position on the outside in the final half mile and closed gamely. LEAROYD made up some ground during the final drive.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—PARITY, $8.40, $4.80, $4.20; SYENITE, $6.20, $6.00; STANDOUT, $11.80.

PARITY, hard hustled to assume a brief lead, withstood keen contention from SYENITE in the first five furlongs and then came away without effort approaching the finish. SYENITE, a keen contender for five furlongs, weakened after several bold bids. STANDOUT, forced to race on the outside early, came through next the inner rail during the stretch run and finished stoutly. ELECTRIC GAFF closed strongly on the outside. CRACK FLYER, steadied along in the first half mile, weakened fast when the final drive came. The others were outrun.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. The Edgewood. Purse, $800; allowances. For 3-year-old fillies. Start good from gates. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 4:10. Off at 4:17½. Winner, H. Parr's ch. f. (3), by Colin—Kathleen. Trained by H. Trueman. Value to winner, $625; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:23 2-5, 0:46 2-5, 1:14 3-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—CORRYMEELA, $16.00, $7.00, $3.80; ILLUSIVE, $5.40, $3.20; MANYA, $2.80.

CORRYMEELA sprinted into a winning lead directly after the break, saved ground and held sway thereafter. ILLUSIVE, hard ridden the entire trip, finished gamely. MANYA, outrun early, moved up on the outside while losing ground and could not threaten the first two. AUNT MARSA was unable to menace the pacemakers at any stage. ROYAL SEE tired fast after a fast half mile.

FIFTH RACE—Mile and seventy yards. Purse, $1,000; allowances. The Westminster. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from gates. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 4:45. Off at 4:50½. Winner, Mrs. F. A. Clark's ch. c. (5), by Sun Circle—Tweed. Trained by J. Healey. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 0:23 4-5, 0:49, 1:14 2-5, 1:41, 1:46 2-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—NEVERFADE, $11.20, $4.40, $2.80; TAMBOUR, $2.60, $2.30; ACTION, $2.40.

NEVERFADE outran his field to the first turn and, rated along until forced to a drive, resisted TAMBOUR'S effort and came out willingly nearing the finish. TAMBOUR, rated under strict restraint for the first five furlongs, was taken to the outside of the winner when entering the home stretch, but was not good enough in the final drive. ACTION forced a steady pace for the first seven furlongs and tired gradually thereafter. SNOBFUL was unable to improve his position.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $800; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 5:20. Off at 5:21½. Winner R. S. Two-dollar mutuels paid—MARSE ROBERT, $18.80, $8.20, $5.00; WORTHINGTON, $5.00, $3.80; BOSCOBEL, $4.20.

MARSE ROBERT, sulked in the going, moved up stoutly when leaving the back stretch, assumed command when reaching the home stretch and, strongly urged, had enough left to withstand WORTHINGTON. Latter had a lot taken out of him racing UNENCUMBERED into defeat, but fought it out with good courage in the final drive. BOSCOBEL, squeezed back when entering the back stretch, went to the outside for racing room in the final half mile, but weakened fast in the final furlong. CATERER was unable to make up any ground in the final stages. TRAFFIC JUDGE had no excuses. FRIGATE BIRD was badly outrun all the way.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 5:50. Off at 5:51. Winner, C. C. Two-dollar mutuels paid—GENERAL LEJEUNE, $6.80, $4.00, $3.00; MERIDIAN QUEEN, $5.20, $3.30; JAMBALAYA, $10.00.

GENERAL LEJEUNE, shuffled back going to the first turn and then forced wide rounding the turn, was put to pressure early to reach contention, came willingly under punishment and was up in the final strides. MERIDIAN QUEEN, rated in front and saving much ground, stalled off stiff contention from JAMBALAYA and continued with excellent courage until the finish.

AT THE POST

with Bill Bennings

HAVRE DE GRACE, APRIL 17.

DEAR AL:

Two winners for the boy today. Parity and General Lejeune were those to hop, skip and jump for Mrs. Bennings' lovely son. Although I was not involved, the backers of Marse Robert were certainly shocked. Marse closed at 15-1 and they paid off an $18.80 mutuel. Like reaching for a Lucky and picking up the bill for the rent. However, the meeting is young yet and it's just possible we will find one closing at 10-1 and paying $40—just possible, I said. BILL.

FIRST RACE—Only four of this field have seen action, and the race seems to lie between the first-time starters. MISS MERRIMENT comes well bred, and, with good trials as a recommendation, we might not have to look further for the winner. THOUGHTLESS is bred for both running and off tracks and may figure. GOLDEN MEASURE for the show.

SECOND RACE—Although most of the mud will be gone tomorrow unless the rain comes again, I'm inclined to go to OLD BALDY, who packs a lot of speed. Another with good works. WEDDING RING was a fair sort last season and may beat CATTAIL for the show.

THIRD RACE—CARRY THE NEWS has run briskly in the morning trials and gets the Bennings call. POMPOLEON has that Pompey stamp and all that, but I prefer the top one. BALLY BAY, none too courageous, may be third.

FOURTH RACE—KNEE HIGH has her usual light impost, and stepped lively here the other morning, I'm told. Seems ideally placed and I can't see the stable passing up the opportunity. CLOUDY DAY is a possible surprise. LITTLE STOKES may be better than rated.

FIFTH RACE—CAESAR'S GHOST, an old pal of last fall at Laurel, will start early this year. Is said to be fit. POPPYMAN and SILENT SHOT seem to have an edge on the remainder of the field.

SIXTH RACE—POLAR BRUSH gets in this light, and I believe that he will have only WHITE THORN to beat. Both campaigned in Florida last winter and both shipped well. JUST FUN to show.

SEVENTH RACE—FLYING MAX has had a long rest and comes back to racing full of pep, as several fast moves indicate. Not quite as classy as some here, but will do, I believe. EVEN UP and POTENTATE for the remainder of the cash.

Swivel Speedy In Workout For Derby

Goes Mile in 1:49 1-5; Jungle King Also Is Impressive.

HAVRE DE GRACE, Md., April 17 (U.P.).—Adolphe Pons' Swivel, queen of the juveniles last year, turned in the best workout of the large number of Kentucky Derby nominees that limbered up over a sloppy track here today.

The Swift and Sure filly covered a mile in the creditable time of 1:49 1-5, breezing along easily. The Greentree Stable's Jungle King went the same distance in 1:49 3-5, while F. A. Griffith's Sarada required 1:50 3-5.

Rapscallion, Dark Law, Daudet, Dark Winter, Sun Apollo and Sun Alley were other derbyites to stretch their limbs in short trials. Mrs. J. H. Whitney's Crowning Glory breezed 5 furlongs in 1:05 3-5. The Black Toney colt is being pointed for the Kentucky stake and, barring mishap, is almost certain to parade to the post with a large field in the mile and a quarter classic May 6.

Head Play Exercises Over Wet Track.

Louisville, Ky., April 17 (U.P.).—Mrs. William Crump's Head Play, Western choice in the Kentucky Derby, was the only member of that division of 3-year-olds to attempt an exercise trial over the sloppy track at Churchill Downs today. The chestnut son of My Play splashed through a mile of mud in 1:44 2-5, eager to run at the finish.

Trainer Willie Crump expressed himself as extremely satisfied with the colt's training trials to date, and believes his charge will be one of the first three choices for the $50,000 added stake, on May 6.

Isaiah and Pop Try Out at Lexington.

Lexington, Ky., April 17 (U.P.).—Training was light at the Kentucky Association track today, and only two Kentucky Derby candidates were sent out over the muddy course.

The J. W. Parrish nominees, Isaiah and Pop, dashed a half mile together in 0:53 1-5. They were not let down during the trial and will be given public workouts in actual competition during the current meeting.

BEER GARDEN AT TRACK.

Chicago, April 17 (U.P.).—Sportsman's Park, the half-mile race track in Cicero, which will open the Illinois turf season May 1, will have an open-air beer garden on the roof of the clubhouse.

Other local tracks will sell beer, but Sportsman's Park will be the only one with a beer garden.

Barry Faces Babe Hunt Tonight

D. C. Boy on Card as Schmeling Shows in Boston Arena.

BOSTON, April 17 (A.P.).—A heavyweight championship reunion will take place here tomorrow when Jack Dempsey and Max Schmeling break bread with Jack Sharkey, the current titlist.

This pugilistic threesome will sit side by side at a dinner that will serve as the prelude for Schmeling's exhibition, with Dempsey in a referee's role, which will feature the Argonne Athletic Association boxing show at the Arena.

A Washington boy with heavyweight championship aspirations, Donald ("Red") Barry, will perform in a ten-round match with Babe Hunt, of Oklahoma. Dempsey will referee.

Barry Recently Beat Winston.

Barry recently gained the decision over Unknown Winston, sensational Negro fighter.

Sharkey has battled both Schmeling and Dempsey and gained his title on a hairline decision over Max last summer.

The visit of the former champions may have some bearing on Sharkey's immediate future, for Dempsey has announced that he intends to offer him $150,000 for a bout with the winner of his Schmeling-Max Baer bout.

It is no secret that Sharkey would be interested in such an offer. His coming title bout with Primo Carnera will end his contract with the New York Madison Square Garden and leave him free to dicker with Dempsey over a late summer battle.

Indians to Sell Beer At All Home Contests

Cleveland, April 17 (A.P.).—Beer will be on sale in the Cleveland Stadium when the Indians baseball team plays its first home game there Wednesday, Alva Bradley, president of the club, said today.

"We expect to get some beer in by Wednesday," Bradley said after obtaining a beer license, "but we won't sell it through the stands. It will be served at tables." Previously the club management had decided not to sell beer at the stadium.

MANGAN EXTENDS WOOD, BUT IS NOSED OUT IN DIXIE TENNIS

D. C. Veteran In Lead at One Time

Is Finally Eliminated by 6-3, 4-6 and 8-6 at Springs.

Shields Whips Roeh; Hall Advances by Win Over Biddle.

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., April 17 (A.P.).—Rain-soaked courts today threatened to postpone the opening of the Mason and Dixon tennis championships, but the clouds rolled away and the sun came out in time to let six of the eight seeded players lead the advance into the second and third rounds of the singles competition.

Sidney Wood, seeded No. 2, was the only one of the ranking players pressed in the opening matches. The New Yorker, playing his first outdoor tennis since last September, was forced to three sets before he eliminated Thomas J. Mangan, of Washington, D. C., 6—3, 4—6, 8—6, in a first-round match.

Lester B. Stoefen, lanky Los Angeles player, Gregory Mangin, of Newark, and Berkeley Bell, Frank Shields and J. Gilbert Hall, of New York, drew first round byes and then paraded through their second round matches without losing a set.

Van Ryn Withdraws for Doubles.

Clifford Sutter, of New Orleans, winner of the North and South title last week and seeded No. 1, did not play today, while John Van Ryn, placed No. 6, withdrew to concentrate on the doubles with George Lott at the request of Bernon S. Prentice, chairman of the Davis Cup selection committee.

In turning back Mangin, Wood had to call on all of his tennis experience. He won the first set easily, but the Washington player's deep forcing shots surprised the internationalist in the second set. In the deciding set, Mangan led at 5-4 and then 6-5, but Wood rose to tennis heights and evened the count on his own service and then captured the last two games at love.

Stoefen, who teamed with little Bryan Grant to upset Van Ryn and Lott in the doubles at Pinehurst last week, continued his campaign for Davis Cup consideration by defeating H. S. Campbell, of Chicago, 6—2, 6—3. Mangin lost only six games in turning back Walter Guenso, of Flushing, N. Y., 6—3, 6—3.

Shields Crushes Roeh With Ease.

Shields, a member of the Davis Cup team last year, showed a brilliant brand of tennis as he eliminated John Roeh, New York, 6—1, 6—0, with his powerful service as the most effective weapon. Bell progressed at the expense of Arthur Mann, of New York, by default, while Hall cut short the bid of the veteran Craig Biddle, of Philadelphia, 6—2, 6—2.

Van Ryn was slated to play his second-round match tomorrow, but decided to adhere to the advice of Prentice, who will arrive here Thursday to watch the Davis Cup possibilities in action.

Gehrig Must Play in Only 107 More Games to Win Distance Record.

By HENRY McLEMORE

NEW YORK, April 17 (U.P.).—If one burning ambition is usually enough to carry a man to success then Lou Gehrig, of the New York Yankees, should be hard to stop this year, because he has no less than three.

Listed in the order of their importance (maybe) they are:

1. Playing in all Yankee games this year, thus breaking Everett Scott's record for consecutive games played.

2. Establishing a new home-run record.

3. Leading the American League in hitting.

Item No. 1 depends entirely upon Lou himself; there's absolutely no competition. Right now, what with the big Dutchman healthy and strong as a percheron, there seems little chance of his missing out. But, of course, you never can tell. A spike wound, a touch of the flu, or a broken bone might nullify the stamina and perseverance he has shown in getting in every Yankee League game since around the middle of the 1925 season.

Desires to Take Record Set by Scott.

As a matter of truth, Gehrig doesn't need to play in 154 games to crack Scott's mark. To date Lou has engaged in 1,201 games. If he gets in the box score of 107 more, the all-time record will be his.

Gehrig's chances of accomplishing items 2 and 3 involve others. What we mean is, he may go out and hit 61 homers only to have Jimmy Foxx, Ruth, Mel Ott or Chuck Klein go him a couple better. And he may bat .370 and still find himself a couple of rungs from the top.

If a flying start means anything, however, Gehrig is a good bet in the home-run derby.

Never much of a hitter in the spring (says he needs the hot, hot weather to get in stride) Gehrig has hit three home runs in the first four games. This unexpected barrage has given him quite a lead over his rivals, Ruth having popped but one and Klein, Foxx and Ott none.

The fact that all his hitting ability and faculty for driving runs across the plate never has brought him the American League batting crown is a sore point with Gehrig. This is only natural when you remember that his batting averages for the years 1925-1932 were .295, .313, .373, .374, .300, .379, .341 and .349, respectively. That's hitting that is hitting. His best year—.379 in 1930—saw that slugging Pole, Al Simmons, beat him out with a neat and gaudy .381. Brother Simmons, by the way, is the fellow Connie Mack got rid of like you would an old shirt.

Gehrig had a little tough luck in the matter of home runs in 1931, it will be remembered. He wound up with 47 in a tie with Ruth, but would have led the league with 48 had not Shortstop Lyn Lary indulged in a piece of base running a la Brooklyn Robins and nullified one of his four-base drives.

NATS BEATEN, 4-2; LIMITED TO 4 HITS

With one out, Johnson walked Kuhel and the first baseman skipped all the way home when Myer connected solidly to left center field for two bases. This was the point at which Manager McManus decided that Johnson had outlived his usefulness for the day, and little Bobby Kline strolled into the box, promptly shutting off the outfield view of the fans behind the screen. Mr. Manush greeted Mr. Kline with a nice single to center and Myer was home with another run.

Kline then walked Cronin and the tying and winning runs appeared to be on base, but Johnny Watwood, out in left field, came through nobly. Goslin slammed one of Mr. Kline's pitches on a very low trajectory toward the left field bleachers and it breathed extra bases, but Watwood cut across the lot, stuck out one hand and caught the ball up against the fence just like that.

The Sox started functioning at bat after three hitless innings. Little Rabbit Warstler pounded a double into center field and trotted home when McManus handcuffed Cronin with a scorcher at the shortstop who was in on the grass.

Boston's attack gathered more momentum in the seventh when Alexander led off with a single to right, was sacrificed to second and scored on Watwood's single into left. Johnny Hodapp then slammed another single into left and it looked like curtains for Crowder. Shea hit the first ball on a line, but, fortunately or unfortunately, depending on the viewpoint, directly at Myer, who doubled Watwood off second.

The Red Sox eighth consisted of Johnson's home run over Goslin's head into Bohrer street and the Sox had a 3-run lead which was cut to 3-2 by the Nats' stand in the eighth. Bob Burke put Winsett on base in the ninth and Al Thomas finally walked him home. Dave Harris' appearance as a pinch hitter and his walk with two out was the only item of note in the Nats' ninth, because Hodapp threw out Kuhel just like that.

Al Houghton Sets Mark At Manor

69 Leads Pro Field; Orcutt Has 85 at Chevy Chase.

CONTINUING his bombardment of local golf courses, Al Houghton, Kenwood wizard of the links, invaded Manor's layout yesterday and shot a sizzling 69, 2 below par, to pace a skeleton field of Middle Atlantic professionals in the weekly sweepstakes.

In carrying off first-prize money, Houghton established what may well be considered a new record for competitive golf at the Norbeck, Md., course. Winter rules prevailed, a number of temporary tees were used and the contesting pros remarked about the slowness of the course. They believe that Houghton would have scored considerably lower on a day when the layout was fast.

Houghton's 69, which resulted from a 34 on the first nine and a 35 on the home stretch, shaved three strokes off the competitive mark set by Harry Pitt in the Manor invitation two years ago, although Pitt once negotiated the course in 68 during a friendly match.

Houghton Makes Three Birdies.

Three birdies were recorded by the Kenwood pro. He made his first on the fourth, bagged another on the ninth, and played the long fifteenth in championship fashion for a 4 to get his third birdie. One over on only one hole, the tenth, Houghton had only two 5s on his card.

It follows:

Out—
Par	5	3	4	4	4	4	4	3	5	—36
Houghton	5	3	4	3	4	4	4	3	4	—34
In—
Par	4	3	4	4	4	5	4	3	4	—35—71
Houghton	5	3	4	4	4	4	4	3	4	—35—69

Houghton attributed his low scoring blast to an old set of Bobby Jones irons, that were resurrected recently when a new set he had tried out failed to deliver the goods.

Second prize in the sweepstakes went to Walter (Red) Cunningham, Burning Tree pro, who went around in 35, 36—71, 1 below par, while A. B. Thorn, late of Woodmont, crashed through with a brace of 36s for third. Mel Shorey, of East Potomac, had 73; Al Treder, host pro, 7; Leo Walper, unattached, 78, and Cliff Spencer, Beaver Dam, 79. Maury Nee, Georgetown Prep star, the only amateur competing, carded a 78, and Bob Barnett and Bill Hardy, of Chevy Chase, arrived too late to participate in the proceedings.

Maureen Orcutt Shoots 85.

Erratic putting caused Maureen Orcutt, crack feminine golfer from New Jersey, to use up 85 strokes in cruising about the Chevy Chase layout in a friendly match yesterday afternoon in company with Walter McCallum, Mrs. J. Marvin Haynes, Mrs. O. L. Harbaugh, of Cleveland, and Miss Susan Hacker.

It was Miss Orcutt's third trip about a District course, and she discovered before the voyage ended that Chevy Chase was an extremely difficult layout. Out in 41 strokes, the long-hitting Miss Orcutt stroked home in 44, after taking sixes on the eighth, eleventh and seventeenth. Saturday she shot Columbia in 78 and Kenwood in 79.

McCallum shot a fine 78, Mrs. Harbaugh an 89, Mrs. Haynes a 91, and Miss Hacker a 92.

Mrs. Orcutt's card:

4 5 5 3 5 5 4 6 4—41
4 6 5 4 4 5 5 6 5—44—85

125 in Open Today at Rock Creek.

A record field of 125 golfers will tee off today at Rock Creek's course to battle for medal honors in the Rock Creek open championship.

The first to sock the old ball down the fairway will be Frank Ward, Bob Marks and Andrew Oliveri, and they will fire at 8:30 a. m. Other threesomes, in which are included some of the most outstanding municipal players in the District, will follow at five-minute intervals.

Among the late entries and one who is expected to go far in the competition is Ted Burrows, who fought Volney Burnett in the finals of the "uptown" tournament last year, only to lose by 1 up. Burnett also is a contestant, as are such sturdy performers as John Jankowski, Catholic University star; John Connley, Harold Bowers, of East Potomac; Ralph Bennie, Dave Bent and George Marlow.

Manager Harry Graham reports the course to be in tiptop shape, ready to repulse the advance of the would-be par busters. A course has a 33 par and B a 34, both being of a gently rolling caliber.

After the medal round today the players will bracket in various flights and the winners of each are to receive golf equipment. Match play will be waged tomorrow and Thursday.

111 Women Tee Off on Thursday.

A total of 111 women golfers have been entered in the Phyllys Keeler Memorial tournament scheduled Thursday morning at the Washington Golf and Country Club, Mrs. Douglas Tschiffely, chairman, yesterday announced.

Mrs. Tschiffely announced that the pairings and starting times will be printed in tomorrow morning's paper.

It will be an 18-hole medal handicap event and a new champion will be crowned, since Mrs. A. S. Gardiner, jr., of Columbia, who won last season's classic, will not be able to defend her title, due to illness.

The Washington course will be thrown open for practice rounds this morning and a goodly number of the entrants are expected to tune up their shots.

Capt. Watson Miller will present the championship trophy at the conclusion of the tournament Thursday.

District Runners Off For Boston Marathon

A hopeful little band of four District long-distance runners departed yesterday for Boston, where they will run tomorrow in the annual Patriots' Day Marathon in that city. The race is second in importance only to the national run.

Haskell Clark, Jimmy Montague and Bill Greiner, of the Knights of Columbus, and Arthur Dewhurst, of the Y. M. C. A., will represent the District. All are in good condition and confident of finishing among the leaders. The race will be 26 miles.

Mike Lynch, veteran campaigner, will miss the run for the first time in several years, forced to remain at home because of pressing business. Lynch, however, trained Clark for the run and will have a rooting interest in the run.

Despite his 51 years the Irishman appears to be in great shape and is training faithfully for the national championship to be staged in this city.

Caras and Ponzi in Cue Exhibitino Tomorrow

It will be a case of an up-and-coming youngster tackling a veteran at the Lewis & Krauss parlors tomorrow afternoon and night when Jimmy Caras, Wilmington, Del., youth, takes on Andrew Ponzi in an exhibition pocket-billiard match. They will cover the 350-point route, with 125-point blocks scheduled in each performance.

Caras caused considerable excitement in the cue world when he finished second to Ralph Greenleaf in the last world's championship tourney. He plays a flashy game and his self-confidence is one of the factors that has made him quite a drawing card.

Ponzi is one of the four seeded players in the coming title tournament and boasts an exceptional record. He recently ran 141 in a match with Greenleaf, while he clustered the fine total of 159 against Erwin Rudolph.

untarily retired because of stomach trouble and immediately went to his home in Bradenton, Fla. He has regained his health and promises to be of considerable help to Manager McManus this year.

Roy Johnson raced back into the space between the flag pole and the score board to fasten himself on to the end of Manush's drive in the third. It was a mighty nobby catch.

Seward Lee, a right-handed pitcher, who has been playing semipro ball with the Good Shepherd A. C., of New York City, yesterday worked out with the Nats.

The Sox argued long and loud when the Nats ended their third with a double play. McManus was on first when Alexander topped one in front of the plate. The visitors claimed it was a foul, but Umpire Hildebrand saw things differently. Alexander did not even run to first on the tap.

Buddy Myer's nifty suicide in the sixth yesterday was the first credited the Nats this season. The bunt was handled perfectly or Buddy would have beaten it out, for the decision at first was mighty close.

Kline passed Cronin on four successive wide ones in the eighth, moving Heinie Manush, with the tying run, up to second, but Heinie died on the runways.

Senator Walsh Judge At "Y" Ring Saturday

Senator David I. Walsh, of Massachusetts, will be a judge, and his conferee, Senator Arthur Capper, of Kansas, will be a spectator at the boxing matches to be held at the central branch of the Y. M. C. A. Saturday night, starting at 8 o'clock.

Bill Stanley, coach of the "Y" ring team, is arranging an attractive program for the evening. Frankie Taylor and Doc Blue will supply the outstanding bout of the card. Both are well known lightweights. Another bout that should interest local fans is the one between Zuzu Stewart, George Washington U. football player, and Curtis Varah, of the "Y."

Boxers from George Washington and the Y. M. C. A. will appear in the majority of bouts which will be three rounds, conducted in accordance with intercollegiate rules.

Tonight's Foes Meet at Scales

Reports that Young Van would outweigh Henry Irving by fifteen pounds when they clash tonight at Portner's Arena were dispelled last night when the two principals in the feature bout jumped on the scales at Riggs' bath. The impartial scales showed Van with 166½ pounds and Irving with 161—a difference of 5½ pounds. Left to right—Young Van, Earl Johnson, assistant trainer at Frankie Mann's gym; Harry Groves, trainer, and Henry Irving.

A. A. U. Mat Title Tourney Tonight

Preliminary Rounds Due at Boys Club; Entries Open Until 5 P. M.

The District A. A. U. wrestling championship tournament will open tonight at the Boys Club with the first bout scheduled for 8 o'clock. Entries will be received up until 5 p. m. at the club, 230 C street northwest.

Contestants will weigh in at the club between 1 and 6:30 p. m. Tom Clayton, former professional wrestler, will referee tonight's matches. F. H. Kirchner and Harry Child, former athletic director of the Boys Club, will act as judges.

Preliminary matches will be fought tonight and tomorrow the remaining participants will rest in preparation for the finals Wednesday night.

There have been few entries in the 115-pound and 175-pound classes and officials are anxious to fill the two divisions to round out what appears to be a well-balanced card.

Admission to the bouts will be 25 cents.

Robbins Family Takes South African Titles

Johannesburg, South Africa, April 17 (A.P.).—The Robbins family, Mr. and Mrs., today recovered the South African men's and women's singles tennis titles they lost last year.

C. J. J. Robbins, South African Davis Cup nominee, defeated the veteran V. G. Kirby in a five-set final of men's singles while Mrs. Robbins, the former Miss R. D. Tapscott, defeated Mrs. F. H. Lowe in a three-set final of women's play. Robbins held the title in 1929 while Mrs. Robbins was champion in 1930.

Baseball Crowds Larger This Year

Openers Outdrew Those of Last Season by More Than 15,000.

New York, April 17 (A.P.).—Although it required more time than usual to put them on, the eight originally scheduled major league openings have been completed, with an aggregate attendance of 153,526, tabulation today revealed.

The Boston Nationals, compelled to start off against Philadelphia instead of New York, drew only 7,500 spectators because of continued unseasonable weather yesterday.

Despite this and a turnout of only 4,500 at St. Louis on opening day last Wednesday, the 1933 total for eight games is 15,000 in excess of the aggregate for the eight openers last year. The largest crowd—36,221 paid—was registered at the Yankee Stadium.

The figures:

School Meet At Md. on May 6th

Hopkins, Old Liners to Clash on Program at College Park.

DESPITE the fact that numerous other institutions have found it advisable to curtail their spring activities in an effort to round prosperity corner, University of Maryland has announced plans for its sixteenth annual interscholastic track and field meet, to be held Saturday, May 6, at College Park.

Not only will the meet be held as in previous years, but on a larger scale and with more entrants than ever before. Entry blanks have been distributed to all District high schools, and to those in adjacent territory. The meet will be held in conjunction with Maryland's annual dual meet with Johns Hopkins.

Program of Events.

The entire program consists of 25 track events and 14 field contests. In addition to the 13 events in the open interscholastic meet, there will be six special events for the county high schools of Maryland.

Gold, silver and bronze medals will be awarded the first three finishers in each event, and trophies will be given the teams winning in their respective classes. Also there will be trophies for the high individual point-scorers of the meet.

The track program is a lengthy one; there are three other attractions carded the same afternoon for Old Line sports patrons. At 4:30 o'clock the lacrosse ten faces Rutgers University. Earlier in the afternoon the baseball team, which dropped a double-header to Duke at Durham yesterday, will attempt to partially redeem itself against the Blue Devils. Johns Hopkins is sending its tennis team along with the trackmen to oppose the Terps in the final event.

Methodists to Open Season on Saturday

Hyattsville Southern Methodists will open their diamond season Saturday afternoon in Magruder Park at 3 o'clock, opposing Federal Unionists. The Churchmen enjoyed a highly successful campaign a year ago and are hopeful of starting their schedule with a win against the highly touted Washingtonians, who are led by Earle Moser. Methodists will practice Thursday afternoon in Magruder Park at 5:30 o'clock. Ardley Hart is booking Saturday games at Hyattsville 18-J.

$16,650 IS SAVED TROLLEYS YEARLY

15 Per Cent U. S. Economy Cut Applied to Traffic Policemen.

The Washington street railways will save $16,650 a year until their merger is effected under the Federal economy act, which became effective April 1, it was revealed yesterday by Maj. Daniel J. Donovan, District auditor. This represents a 15 per cent reduction in the salaries of the 51 traffic policemen paid by the street car companies.

While a formal opinion was asked of Comptroller General McCarl on whether the deduction made from the salaries paid Saturday should be refunded or deposited in the Treasury to the credit of the District government, it was predicted on the basis of previous decisions by McCarl that the savings would go to the railways, and that in the future they would be billed for only 85 per cent of the basic salaries of the policemen.

The cut on Saturday amounted to about $690 out of a pay roll of $8,928 for two weeks' service.

Last year these traffic police escaped the 8 1-3 per cent slash which was applied to all other District employes. This year, however, the Comptroller General has ruled that the salaries of all persons whose duties come under the supervision of the Federal or District government should be reduced 15 per cent.

San Francisco, April 17 (A.P.).—Here's a good kind of depression—the number of Army deserters.

A New Yorker AT LARGE

By MARK BARRON.

New York—Bernard Shaw's lack of bashfulness when it comes to winning publicity is matched by the success with which Mrs. Shaw manages to retire into the background.

She is photographed rarely, and practically never makes a statement for publication. But, don't think that she doesn't have considerable influence on her husband's works.

If it hadn't been for Mrs. Shaw, he would never have written "Saint Joan." For several years she had tried to persuade him to write a play on the French heroine, but always he had put the subject aside.

She Starts Campaign.

Then Mrs. Shaw decided to start an undercover campaign. She bought all the books she could find concerning Joan of Arc and left them lying around the house where her husband was sure to examine them. Then she quietly managed it so that he came in contact with several persons who were authorities on Joan's life.

A few months later, Shaw announced that, after all, he had decided to write a Joan of Arc drama. Mrs. Shaw merely smiled her approval. Too, for many years she has been trying to get him to write a play based on the Jews, but she hasn't quite brought him around to this as yet. He is afraid he might be misunderstood on this subject as everything he would say would be, as he expresses it, "inverted praise."

Incidentally, his stopover in New York was Shaw's first opportunity to see the Guild Theater which he was invited to dedicate some years ago. His answer to the invitation was that "I am more used to closeing theaters than opening them."

You Can't Foil Love.

There may not be an old hollow tree "postoffice" around Park avenue, but true love will find a way even on that gilded thoroughfare.

Just around the corner from this lane of penthouse apartments is one of those luxurious, diminutive cinema houses where seats are reserved at $1 each.

Every Friday night for several months a pretty debutante accompanied her father there to see the current movie. The girl always came to the window for the tickets, which always had been reserved in her name by a young man who would purchase them in the afternoon. But, he always sealed the tickets himself in an envelope he brought along.

The movie cashier was curious about the procedure, and finally the young man confessed all. He and the girl were in love, but her father disapproved of the young man.

So the enterprising Romeo, not to be frustrated, reserved her tickets every week and enclosed with them a tender billet doux for his lady fair.

HORACE GREELEY, famous American editor, was taught to read at his mother's knee when he was so young that in later life he could not remember learning. By the time he was 4 years old he was able to read print from any angle, upside down, sidewise and in the usual position. When he was 6 he had read the Bible through, and had completed Pilgrim's Progress.

At that age he was also able to spell difficult words, had considerable knowledge of geography, and knew some simple arithmetic.

The famous Boston massacre went down in American history as a massacre when a garrison of British troops fired on a crowd on the streets of Boston. By common definition of the word, it was not a massacre, as only three persons were killed.

Monuments have been erected to almost everybody and everything—including bugs, fish and vegetables—but in Cartersville, Ga., stands a unique monument. It was erected to friendship. Mark A. Cooper, a manufacturer, 1860, erected a granite shaft in gratitude to the friendship of neighbors who helped him through a business crisis.

Colors give added realism to strange things and happenings illustrated by John Hix on a full page in The Sunday Post.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

WHAT! NO LEGS, MISS WIECK?

("Miss Dorothea Wieck, noted German picture actress, on her arrival in America, refused to expose her legs for the newspaper and newsreel photographers. 'Is there something wrong with my face?' she asked when the cameramen requested that she adopt the usual pose."—News item.)

* * * *

DEAR MISS WIECK:

Welcome to America! You are the first actress, so far as the record shows, to refuse to strike the conventional leggy attitude for the cameramen and to raise the point that a lady's face can be interesting, too.

* * * *

There should be some sort of permanent medal struck off for you, Miss Wieck. Newspaper readers have waited patiently for some young woman to arrive by steamship and be photographed in an attitude that would not indicate a profound belief that her knees were front-page stuff. It remained for you to register a conviction that legs are no longer a novelty in any country, and that American cameramen are as old-fashioned as the fellow who still sticks around the Flatiron Building on rainy days or buys art magazines between the acts at burlesque shows.

* * * *

Your picture was one of the most interesting that has appeared in American newspapers for a decade. Nothing like it had been seen for years. Is showed a very pretty picture actress with no legs visible! It showed a charming young woman who evidently realized that the public was fed up on legs, that it had ceased to bother about them in the newspapers years ago, and that it didn't care if it never saw another camera study of an ankle, shank or knee.

* * * *

Of course, the photographers were stunned. They had been photographing actresses with their dresses up to their knees ever since the war. It was part of the union rules.

* * * *

Well, Miss Wieck, you were the first to tip them off and the American public owes you a debt of gratitude, which it can never pay. I understand that the picture of a picture actress with her legs hidden was such an unusual newspaper feature that all circulation figures went to a new high. Nothing more revolutionary could have happened except a photograph of Mussolini without his hand up or a picture of a British steeplechase with all the horses right-side up.

Hooray for you again, Miss Wieck! You're a wonder.

Very appreciatetively,

ELMER TWITCHELL.

HISTORICAL RECORD.

The Metropolitan Museum of Art has purchased a painting by a modern artist. It shows a red rooster lying beside a jug of celery. The museum probably wants to preserve the memory of a chicken dinner.

SEEMS LOGICAL.

Perhaps the recent rise in the stock market was just a natural reaction to Mr. Shaw's predictions that the country was about to go over the precipice.

D. D. D. says that Shaw made such a hit on the radio that three oil companies and two cigarette hours are after him.

The admission to New York race tracks this year has been cut to $2.50. Whether you can make a small deposit and pay the rest in weekly installments is not stated.

Mrs. Vallee says she is definitely through with Rudy. She has, so to speak, left his bed, board and megaphone.

200 CAPITAL FOREST YOUTHS JUBILANT ON REACHING WORK SITE

Camp Near Luray Is Rapidly Being Cleared; "Pioneer" Spirit Dominant.

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

Luray, Va., April 17.—Two hundred youths picked from the ranks of the unemployed of the Nation's Capital accepted the challenge of old man mountain and proved conclusively that young America can match the deeds of their pioneer forefathers as Civilian Conservation Camp No. 1, the first of a series of Nation-wide forestry camps, was established on the wooded slipe of Massanutten Mbuntain, one of the lesser peaks of the Blue Ridge Mountains.

Camp Roosevelt, as the embryo foresters name it, is 1,200 feet above the little town of Luray, Va., reached by a precariously winding roadway 8½ miles from the town famed for its caverns.

The boys turned out of their tents at Fort Washington, where they were camped, at 6 a. m., and packing their baggage in true Army fashion, marched through a drizzling rain which threatened to bring a repetition of the downpour of Easter Sunday to board eight buses and began their 115-mile journey to their new home. Before dusk set in they had reached their destination and working parties were detailed to such routine necessary in establishing a wilderness camp as clearing underbrush, cutting firewood, digging latrines and other jobs which are easy to find for 200 pairs of willing hands.

Pure Water Supply.

The winding road apparently intended for use in the horse and carriage days proved a problem for the ponderous buses which halted a mile from the site selected. The boys piled out and hiked the balance of the distance eagerly.

Being a part of the George Washington National Park the no smoking rule is being forced at the request of U. S. Forest Service officials who had staked out the area boundaries and cleared the site of the larger trees under direction of District Forest Ranger John Crisman and G. S. Wheeler, assistant supervisor of the park.

A well-digging machine has been in operation for several days to procure drinking water close at hand and after reaching a depth of 85 feet struck a limited amount of water. Operations will be continued tomorrow until then, water from Furnace Creek will be used after purification under direction of Maj. D. B. Brinsmade, medical officer.

Willing Spirit Prevails.

The lads seem to have caught the contagious spirit of willingness and thoroughness of the officers and men of the Twelfth Infantry under whose guidance they are being trained and are beginning to snap into every order issued. They have every confidence in Capt. Leo Donovan, commanding officer, a man of 16 years' military experience, and his two assistants, Lieuts. Richard B. Carhart and William F. Train, both West Point men, and 18 of the most efficient enlisted men among the personnel of Fort Washington.

The same mountain roadway which defeated the buses halted the three large vans used to transport bedding and blankets and these were transferred to two light army trucks which had just completed hauling the 40 pyramid tents and 200 cots from the railroad depot at Edinburg.

About 50 natives of the mountain section, including a class of 25 children from Oak Level School, were waiting to see the actions of the "city boys" as they marched into the forest.

Tomorrow the same 200 boys, most of whom are in their teens and early twenties, will polish off the rough edges of the camp and hope President Roosevelt will honor them with his promised visit soon.

Lecture

On World Economics Set for Wednesday by Frenchman.

PIERRE DE LANUX.

"World Economics and the World Situation" will be the topic of a lecture by Pierre de Lanux, director of the Paris office of the League of Nations, at a luncheon on Wednesday, at the All States Hotel at 1 p. m.

Formerly a war correspondent in the Balkans and a member of the staff of Andre Tardieu during the Paris Peace Conference, and since 1923 in charge of coordination of French associations dealing with international affairs, M. de Lanux is recognized as an authority on world affairs.

A group of individuals interested in world affairs, under the chairmanship of Dr. Charles L. Carhart, executive secretary of the Washington Council of International Relations, is sponsoring the meeting. Mrs. J. Borden Harriman will introduce the speaker.

M. de Lanux comes to Washington at the conclusion of a six weeks' lecture tour of American cities. It is his third tour of America. After a tour in 1930-31, M. de Lanux wrote a history of our Southern States, "Sud."

GIRL, 14, DROWNED; COUSIN'S AID FAILS

Child of Parks Employe Loses Balance at Play on Waterfront.

A splash, the shrill scream of a child—then silence.

Tragedy stalked the waterfront, but the buzz of a spring afternoon's activity continued unabated yesterday, as passersby in the vicinity of Eighth and Water streets southwest went on unmindful of a little girl's grim battle against death in the muddy Potomac River a few feet away.

A few moments later, at her home, three blocks distant, Mrs. Mamie Fowler fell in a faint as her youngest daughter, Geneva, 11, rushed into the house to exclaim breathlessly:

"Mother, mother, Annie is drowned!"

It was true. At that moment a police launch sped toward the foot of Eighth street to recover the body of little Annie Fowler, 14.

A short time earlier Annie, her sister, Geneva and a cousin, Johnnie Hall, 11, had been laughing and playing aboard a cabin launch tied to an old wharf. Suddenly Annie lost her balance and tumbled into the water. Her scream frightened the other two children, and Geneva ran to her home at 503 K street southwest, to tell her mother what had happened.

Meanwhile Johnnie obtained a piece of rope and tossed it to Annie, struggling in the water. The rope, however, was too short and the child sank.

Johnnie hurried to the Harbor Police. The rescue squad was summoned. Little Annie's body was recovered 20 minutes later.

She was the daughter of William Fowler, an employe of the District park system.

Pledges Increase At Northeast Bank

Subscriptions Exceed Half of Goal for Reopening Institution.

The drive for subscriptions toward reopening the Northeast Savings Bank has reached more than half the $250,000 goal, it was announced last night by G. F. Hoover, conservator of the bank.

In lauding the civic and generous spirit among depositors of the bank, Mr. Hoover declared that there was now "more than a ray of hope," for reopening the bank.

To date, he said, there have been more than 5,600 subscriptions. The bank has been open every night for the last week to receive stock pledges.

"With continued interest among residents of the community," Mr. Hoover said, "we will look forward to the day when the bank opens its doors."

Bakers' Union to Give Dance.

The Bakers Local Union, No. 118, will hold a benefit dance for unemployed bakers 8 p. m. Saturday at the Knights of Columbus Hall. A bowling contest will be held in the basement of the hall.

Beer Sought

Father McEneaney Consents to License for Restaurant Near School.

His application for an "on sale" license denied because his lunchroom is within 200 feet of the Holy Trinity Parochial School, Peter R. Haley, who with his mother conducts a place at 1300 Thirty-sixth street northwest, yesterday petitioned the District Supreme Court to grant him an order requiring the District Commissioners to grant him a license.

Accompanying his petition was a letter written by the Rev. Joseph A. McEneaney, which was to the effect that the parochial school heads had no objection to the granting of the license.

Haley informed the court through Attorney Joseph A. Cantrell that he was rapidly losing his business to other eating places in the neighborhood that were being permitted to sell beer. These places, he said, were just outside the 200-foot limit and were gaining his customers. He said that most of his business was done with students of the Georgetown University, who ranged in age from 18 to 30 years.

Father McEneaney wrote that Haley had promised to run his business in "a careful and regular manner" if he were granted a license.

ELECTRIC LINE FEE PLAN SUBMITTED

P. U. C. Looks to Broader Refund to Home Owners for Branch Wires.

A revised plan of assessments against home owners who are required to pay for the extension of electric lines to their residences was submitted to the Public Utilities Commission yesterday by B. M. Bachman, chief accountant, and will be suggested to the Potomac Electric Power Co.

While the proposal is still flexible, the original deposit would be based on the estimated monthly bills of the consumer and the refund plan would be broadcast so as to include customers who now receive no refunds. At present home owners not on a regular line are charged $3.25 a foot for underground conduit over 35 feet and 40 cents a foot for overhead wires over 250 feet.

The commission announced that a hearing will be held on a proposal to change the route of the Washington Rapid Transit Co. line running from Sixteenth and Allison streets northwest to Kansas avenue because of the receipt of numerous protests against the change.

A previous order relative to the removal of tracks of the Washington Railway & Electric Co. on Water street southwest was modified so as to include tracks from Eleventh to L streets.

CITIZENS MAKE LAST PLEA FOR ADEQUATE MONEY FOR DISTRICT

Senators Told Scandal Is Brewing in Inadequate Tuberculosis Care.

A last appeal for adequate unemployment relief funds, increased school facilities and proper care for the city's tuberculous residents was made yesterday before the Senate District appropriations subcommittee.

The subcommittee again will attempt to conclude hearings this morning, when the District Commissioners will submit their draft of an amendment enabling them to make shifts in funds to ease the hardships of District appropriation cuts.

In a dramatic statement Dr. A. Barklie Coulter, chairman of the tuberculosis committee of the District Medical Society, told members of the subcommittee that even if they restore the $16,000 which was deducted from the Adult Tuberculosis Hospital budget, "it may not ward off the scandal which is now brewing."

Gallinger Inadequacy.

Following his testimnoy, Senator Royal S. Copeland asked Dr. Coulter's committee to file facts and figures on the need for a new tuberculosis hospital in Washington with the Senate District Committee. It was indicated the report, which will be forthcoming in about two weeks, might be the basis for special legislation setting up new hospital facilities here. Commissioner Luther H. Reichelderfer is among those who favor a large new hospital for District tuberculous patients.

Dr. Coulter declared that Gallinger Hospital's present facilities are hopelessly inadequate to cope with the local situation. He declared the District "has never even attempted to take care of its tuberculosis cases adequately, either from the quantity of beds allotted or the quality of service given." He said 600 District residents will die from tuberculosis this year.

Speaking for the Tuberculosis Association, Mrs. Ernest R. Grant said appropriations should be provided for at least 350 additional beds for tuberculous patients in the District.

An appeal for liberal provisions governing unemployment relief was made by Dr. Frederick W. Perkins, of the Washington Council of Social Agencies, and Walter S. Ufford, A. J. Driscoll and Evan H. Tucker, of the Monday Evening Club.

A delegation headed by E. R. Williams and Mrs. Daisie I. Huff, chairman of the legislative committee of the Roosevelt Parent-Teacher Association, urged restoration of the $400,000 originally estimated for school repairs and improvements, subsequently cut $112,500.

Repair Shop Furloughs.

Mrs. Huff asked that $150,000 be made immediately available to complete unfinished projects and eliminate wide use of the administrative furlough in the District repair shop. Eighty men, furloughed April 1, will be on furlough until June 30, and 187 more will be furloughed thirteen days if the appropriation is not increased, she said. These men will lose a total of $52,026, she said.

Mrs. Williams, who made out a strong case for more adequate repairs to the District's 217 school buildings, pointed out that any curtailment of municipal work means increased unemployment.

Others testifying yesterday included Mrs. Ruth S. McKelway, president of the Voteless District of Columbia League of Women Voters, who opposed cuts in school, library, health and playground items, and Dr. Frances Butts, who discussed the school budget.

Chairman Elmer Thomas indicated the subcommittee may start marking up the bill tomorrow. The Commissioners and additional civic witnesses will be heard this morning.

Another D. C. Brewery Granted Beer License

The District Beverage Permits Board yesterday granted a manufacturers and an off-sale temporary permit to the Chris Heurich Brewing Co., Twenty-sixth and Water streets northwest. This is the second Washington brewery to be licensed, the other being the Abner Drury Brewing Co.

Thirty permits in all were approved in an afternoon session and six were denied. The board will not meet again to consider applications until Thursday afternoon.

Holdup Men Steal $30; Escape in Stolen Auto

Lawrence Pendleton, of 1843 Monroe street northwest, manager of a grocery store at 1400 Twelfth street northwest was held up and robbed of $30 by two white men late yesterday afternoon.

Pendleton told police that the men entered the store while he was alone. One held the gun while the other took the money from the cash register. Both escaped in an automobile believed to have been stolen earlier in the day.

Friend Rescues Woman Unconscious From Gas

Mrs. Flora Reagan, 70, of 2007 Gales street northeast, after inhaling a quantity of illuminating gas in the kitchen of her home, was found unconscious by a friend, Mary Hodkinson, who shut off the gas flowing from a jet on the range.

Mrs. Reagan was rushed to Casualty Hospital in an ambulance, where she was treated. Her condition last night was said to be serious.

Police Scout Car Interrupts Holdup

Victim Assists in Capture of Pair Who Picked Unlucky Spot.

In the opinion of James Stasinos, a merchant, of 1302 N street northwest, Washington police are "100 per cent okay."

As he passed an alley at Twelfth and N streets on his way home early yesterday, two men pounced out of the shadows on Stasinos and informed him that he was being held up.

One of them held a gun against his ribs while the other man started to search his pockets. Suddenly there was a screeching of brakes beside them as a police scout car came to a careening halt, and two policemen leaped out with drawn guns. Stasinos disengaged the holdup man's gun from his ribs and informed him he was being locked up.

At the Second Precinct Station the the two men said they were Charles B. Phelps, 33, 1208½ N street northwest, and John P. Freiseis, 26, 1219 O street northwest.

Man Saved From Gas Death Only Wanted to Find How It Smelled.

An overwhelming desire "to find out what gas smells like" almost caused the death of James C. Acton, 33, yesterday afternoon when he turned on a jet in the bathroom at 342 Thirteenth street southeast and the fumes started to get the better of him.

Tenants in the house smelled the odor of the flowing gas and ran up to the bathroom to find Acton in a dazed condition. The jet was shut off and the rescue squad called. First aid was rendered but Acton refused to go to a hospital.

Upon questioning by police the man said he had no intention of trying to commit suicide but just wanted to smell the gas.

DEMAND FOR MORE FUNDS IS PLANNED BY LINCOLN PARK

Association Claims Section Gets Only 10 Per Cent of Appropriations.

Contending that the eastern half of the city is neglected and discriminated against, the Lincoln Park Citizens Association last night decided to call a mass meeting of the residents in East Washington to demand sufficient appropriations for the section and protest to the new District Commissioners against existing conditions. It was stated that only 10 per cent of the funds appropriated for the District are expended in the eastern section.

Alfred D. Calvert, who made the survey of conditions in the eastern part of the city for the Planning Commission committee of the Federation of Citizens Associations, declared at the meeting that "We feel that East Washington has been shabbily neglected for many years in the matter of appropriations and we are now going out to get what is coming to us."

Crosstown Sewer Cited

The principal protest was based on the existing conditions of the crosstown sewer at Twenty-second and A streets northeast, which drains from three other sections of the city and which is said to concentrate at least two-thirds of the city's sewage. Appropriations will be asked for the continuation of the sewer from that section to the sewage disposal plant at the Navy Yard.

It was pointed out that in addition to safeguarding health the financial outlay for the proposed addition would result in a greater proportion of each dollar going into the pockets of working men than any other local project.

Miss Taggart Indorsed.

Further attacking the system of local economy, members of the association pointed out that there will be in 1934 a $6,000,000 surplus in the Treasury Department derived from gasoline tax and water rates. It was suggested that a part of this surplus could be used in carrying out the construction of the sewage project.

The association indorsed Miss Etta Taggart for judgeship of the Juvenile Court and John P. Mullen as district attorney.

Y.M.C.A. Will Observe Anniversary at Lunch

In joint observance of the dedication by Field Marshal Allenby of a million dollar Y. M. C. A. Building in Jerusalem and of the fiftieth anniversary of the international committee of the Y. M. C. A., members of the Washington Y. M. C. A. today will listen in at luncheon on a world-wide radio broadcast of Lord Allenby's address.

The luncheon, to be held at the Central Y. M. C. A., 1736 G street, will be attended by members of the world service program committee of the Washington Y. M. C. A., the 24-Hour-a-Day Club and others interested in the international activities of the Y. M. C. A. Hugh A. Thrift chairman of the Y. M. C. A. world service committee, will preside.

50 Per Cent Slash Expected in Funds

Budget Bureau Figures for Independent Offices to Be Submitted.

Revised estimates on the independent offices appropriations bill, cut nearly 50 per cent under the form in which it passed House and Senate last session, are expected from the Budget Bureau today, House Appropriations Chairman James P. Buchanan said last night.

The measure will be submitted minus the $400,000,000 to $450,000,000 slashed from veterans' benefits by the President. Other reductions are expected to bring the cut to about $500,000,000.

The estimates will give no other inference as to the forthcoming reorganization plan than can be drawn from the decreased appropriations, Mr. Buchanan intimated. He expects all of the agencies provided for in the last independent offices bill to appear in the estimates.

William Roberts Heads Mann School Society

William A. Roberts, Assistant Corporation Counsel, was elected president of the Horace Mann Home and School Association last night.

Mrs. John G. Ladd was elected vice president; Mrs. Charles C. Gager, secretary; Walter Davidson, treasurer; Mrs. Harry Fowler, recording secretary. Mrs. Alma Partridge was indorsed for appointment as judge of Juvenile Court. Harold Bryant, assistant director of the National Park Service, addressed the association on the service.

"Be Careful!"

UNIT OF FEDERATIONS FORESTALLS RIFT BY CURBING OWN POWER

Conference Bars Action on Any Issue Opposed by Member Body.

The interfederation conference of metropolitan Washington last night averted a threatened disruption through withdrawal of the District delegates by adopting modifications to its articles of organization, which, in effect, bar it from taking any action that is contrary to the views of a member body, that is the federations of Arlington or Montgomery Counties or of the District.

With its two most belligerent delegates absent, the conference reached an amicable agreement on the modification, originally proposed by James G. Yaden, chairman of the District delegation. George E. Sullivan, of the District delegation, and Col. A. B. Barber, of Montgomery, were not present. Mr. Sullivan submitted his resignation, which was accepted, and Thomas E. Lodge was named as his successor.

The new by-law will prevent the conference from ever indorsing Col. Barber's views on the moot taxicab issue so long as the District federation adheres to its stand opposing enforcement of the Public Utilities Commission order requiring installation of meters on all cabs.

Restriction of Press.

Numerous complications were pointed out during a prolonged discussion of the changes in the by-laws, and the conference finally decided to impose what amounts to a censorship on the press in reporting preliminary votes of the organization.

For instance, whenever the conference takes action that is contrary to the vote of a member body, this action is to be considered an "advisory poll" unless that member body reverses its stand. And it is to be treated as if it were taken in executive session, that is, the newspapers will be asked not to report it.

The two most important changes agreed upon by the conference read as follows:

"Action of the conference contrary to that taken by a constituent federation shall not be effective until and unless the member federation shall have concurred in the action of the conference and such vote or action shall be considered to have occurred in executive session.

Deferred One Month.

"Action of the conference on matters on which member federations have not voted shall be deferred for at least one month upon request of a majority of the delegates present and entitled to vote from any member federation."

H. J. McGrath, of Arlington, the only delegate to vote against the first provision, pointed out that the article will "tie the hands of the conference" and prevent it from taking any but affirmative votes.

The modifications were drafted by a special committee composed by Stephen James, of Montgomery, chairman of the conference, Robert E. Plymale, of Arlington, and Mr. Yaden.

Inquest Will Be Today In Fatal Police Shooting

An inquest into the death of Richard Robinson, colored, 23, of 30 G street southwest, who was fatally wounded Sunday morning by Policeman George M. Struder, of the Fourth Precinct, during an altercation at 1513 Massachusetts avenue southeast, will be held at 11:30 a. m. today at the Morgue.

Robinson is said to have attacked the policeman with his own baton while the latter was making an arrest at the Massachusetts avenue address upon the complaint of a woman.
